British Fleet Joins Battle for Channel Ports; Nazis Near Calais, French Cut Into Salient; House Votes for Unlimited Army Air Corps

Bill Authorizes All Necessary Funds to Expand Nation's Defenses

By John G. Norris
Post Staff Writer

The House yesterday passed an emergency national defense bill authorizing an unlimited expansion of Army warplane strength and unlimited funds for speeding production of munitions and supplies.

Passage came on a roll-call vote of 391 to 1, with Representative Marcantonio, of New York, lone American-Labor Party member in Congress, voting in the negative.

As the House was acting, the Senate Naval Affairs Committee approved legislation to give the Navy an air force of 10,000 planes and 16,000 pilots, with large numbers of them manning a chain of air bases to be built in the mid-Pacific, Alaska, Caribbean area and continental United States.

Paves Way for Army Bill

The House action paves the way for consideration early next week of the $1,823,254,624 Army appropriation bill, which passed the Senate Wednesday. It would remove any top limit on the number of Army planes next year and would provide that for this period Congress may hereafter appropriate "such sums as may be necessary" to carry forward the arms program, without any total cost limitation.

Other defense developments yesterday were:

President Roosevelt announced plans for expanding the Civilian Aeronautics Authority college training program, under which 10,000 youths are trained as fliers annually to produce 50,000 pilots a year. The program would be broadened to include young men 18 to 25 without college connections.

Renewed demands for action to prevent any "fifth column" activity in the United States were raised in Congress.

Pepper Renews Plea

Admiral William D. Leahy, former chief of naval operations and now Governor of Puerto Rico, declared after a conference with President Roosevelt that when projected defenses for the Caribbean island are completed, invasion of the United States, Central America or Northern South America would be extremely hazardous.

The Senate heard a new appeal from Senator Pepper (Democrat), of Florida, that the United States give every aid to the Allies short of war. He urged we send them planes, ships, and munitions of our Army and Navy.

Secretary of Labor Perkins, after a discussion with representatives of organized labor on labor problems in national defense, announced A. F. of L. and C. I. O. committees will be appointed to cooperate with the Government.

Representative Randolph (Democrat), of West Virginia, introduced a bill to provide eight hours of military training for CCC enrollees a week.

President Roosevelt said he expected the Governors of the 48 States would get actively behind the defense program at a meeting in Duluth early next month. He discussed such a development with Gov. Stark, of Missouri, he said.

Before approving the naval air expansion bill, members of the Senate Naval Affairs Committee expressed grave concern at the picture presented of the present state of naval

Third-Termers Concentrate On 2d Choice

Reluctance of Garner And Wheeler to Accept Believed Modified

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

Draft-Roosevelt leaders yesterday took another look over the Vice Presidential field in the light of the war emergency.

Reported receiving the once-over for second place on a third-term ticket were both Vice President Garner and Senator Wheeler, of Montana, who recently emphatically told friends they were candidates for first place only.

Senator Byrnes, of South Carolina, was reported highly favored in the event neither Garner nor Wheeler accept or are unacceptable to the President if he were to run. Byrnes, the President's swing man, recently declined a proposed State convention Vice Presidential indorsement.

New Harmony Prevails

Unwillingness of either Garner or Wheeler to take second place on either ticket, meanwhile, was reported to have been substantially modified by war developments and the new harmony that has settled over the Democratic Party.

Some of Garner's most stalwart Senate friends voiced belief yesterday that the Texan would agree to run again with the President for his present post if Europe's war continues and his Chief wants him. Others suggested that Garner might throw his influence to House Majority Leader Rayburn, for the post.

While Garner is not popular with all of the New Dealers since he waged his fight for primary delegates against the President and lost, many of the insiders argue that such a third term liaison in a wartime emergency would supply the most

U. S. Spurs Hunt For 5th Columns; Jackson Weighs 100 More G-Men

By Marshall Andrews
Post Staff Writer

Shocked by success of "fifth columns" against peaceful nations abroad, official and private America strove yesterday to gear an unformed counter-espionage cog to the national defense machine.

In the Senate, debate on the La Follette oppressive labor practices bill, evolved after extended hearings, going far afield into alien control, threatened the bill itself. While the bill had gone to the Senate almost assured of passage, it appeared doomed last night.

At the other side of the Capitol, Representative Dies (Democrat), of Texas, chairman of he Committee Investigating Un-American Activities, said his committee had unanimously indorsed his request for $100,000 above the $75,000 granted last February to extend its work. Dies said the additional funds would be used to establish regional offices in ten cities to investigate complaints of subversive activities.

Mexican Border Bases Reported

President Roosevelt, who frequently has differed with Dies, said at a press conference that the Department of Justice has voluminous information, much of it turned in by the Dies Committee. He suggested that those interested in "fifth column" activities read the committee's full report and added that some of the evidence adduced by it is good, some not so good.

Dies, who said his committee has been swamped with complaints about fifth column activities, declared his attention had been attracted to reports from Latin America. He cited reports "hard for me to believe" of camouflaged air bases along the Mexican border and said he had verified infiltration of Nazi and Communist agents into Mexico.

Attorney General Jackson, who on Thursday cautioned against spy hysteria but called on the public to cooperate with the Federal Bureau of Investigation by reporting "acts, threats or evidence of sabotage, espionage or other disloyal activities," was attacked yesterday by Representative Thomas (Republican), New Jersey.

Thomas labeled Jackson the "chief coddler" of foreign agents in the United States and said that one of the quickest ways to strike down any "fifth column" here "is to take the Federal Bureau of Investigation away from the Department of Justice."

Firm Linked to High Nazis

Evidence purporting to link a Washington law firm with official Germany was in the hands of the Department of Justice, forwarded by a District official who got it, in turn, from a former clerk of the firm. The clerk said his suspicions were aroused by the secrecy with which letters bearing foreign postage were handled and declared the company had received numerous communications from Adolf Hitler and Hermann Goering. He said he had read none of the letters.

Germans Seek World Rule, King Asserts

London, May 24.—On this grimmest Empire Day of his reign King George VI told his people—and anxious neutrals as well—that the British were fighting for their lives against an enemy seeking world domination by brute force.

From Buckingham Palace his words were carried around the world to Australians listening before their radios in the dim light dawn; and to Canadians, like Americans, around loud-speakers in the late afternoon. Before he began speaking in a tired but certain tone, his subjects from all over the world had presented impressive pledges of empire solidarity in a world ra-

Barricades Set Up On Channel Roads, Shore of Irish Sea

London, May 24.—England rolled up the barricades of modern war tonight from her ancient channel ports to the Irish Sea, forewarned on this bleak Empire Day by King George VI himself that defeat and invasion by Nazi Germany will bring "the descent of darkness" upon the ruins of Britain's kind of world.

Victim Sees Pants Leaving, Bandit Suspect Caught

When William S. Scheer, 30, awoke yesterday morning to see his pants walking out the bedroom door of his home, 1201 West Virginia avenue northeast, he did not call his doctor. He called police instead, and led to the roundup of what they described as a holdup gang.

Scheer, an electrician at the Government Printing Office, followed up his call to police by pursuing his trousers to the living room, where they lay on the floor near a window, emptied of his wallet and $2. Shortly afterward, a suspect was nabbed climbing a porch two blocks away.

After investigation at Ninth Precinct Station, where he gave his name as Joseph A. Fletcher, 20, of 1222 Linden street northeast, he was charged with ten cases of housebreaking. Police later picked up several other men in connection with 25 other robberies in the District.

Last October Scheer cowed a thief who had held him up several days before and turned him over to police.

Germans Plan To Shell England, Italian Reports

Copyright by New York Times

Rome, May 24.—The German plan for the invasion of England is stated to be dependent on the "smashing of all military installations in the British coastal towns and harbors," by the Berlin correspondent of the Popolo di Roma today.

Yesterday's bombing of Dover is significant "but we think the English can still sleep soundly as far as the threat of the parachute troops is concerned," the correspondent says.

The newspaper adds that "the Germans are preparing to place long-range guns on the Belgian and French littorals" while another correspondent writes that the Germans have developed an armored motorboat which is manned by a crew of 17 and carries between 100 and 200 men at between 45 to 60 knots. These "motor torpedo boats," he says, "can cross the channel in half an hour under the protection of the naval forces and of airplanes."

Massed Infantry, Rain of Shells Hurled Against German Wedge

Bulletin

Paris, May 25 (AP).—The French army of the north was reported today to have advanced 10 miles in its drive to narrow the 30-mile corridor north of the Somme through which Germany's mechanized troops have been hammering at channel ports.

By Henry C. Cassidy
Associated Press Staff Writer

Paris, May 24.—French troops, standing doggedly at the extreme western rim of the Republic in a great and bloody showdown, were declared officially tonight to be holding the English Channel port of Boulogne against the Nazi rush to the sea.

Just to the northeast, in the equally vital region of Calais, other Allied forces closed desperately with German light units.

[The United Press reported from Paris that Allied Generalissimo Maxime Weygand visited the Flanders battlefront during the morning and returned at noon to Paris, where he was said to have told Premier Paul Reynaud that "within a few hours" he hoped to be able to announce that a "disastrous situation" has been overcome.

[By then, according to Weygand, the French hope to have the Germans along the channel coast securely locked in a pocket.]

The last Allied word on Boulogne tonight was by a French war ministry spokesman, who announced French troops still here holding the city against the German armored columns.

Nazis Don't Claim Capture

The Germans never had directly claimed the capture of Boulogne, saying, rather, that German armored columns had brushed past it on the way to Calais. However, at one point earlier in the day a London announcement assumed the city had fallen.

Capture of Bolougne is not essential to the advance of armored columns on Calais.

The critical struggle tonight was to bar the German legions from footholds necessary to spring across the channel at England. For, across only 22 miles of water from Calais and 26 miles from Boulogne, lie the cliffs of England.

While fighting raged within sight of the Strait of Dover, the main Allied forces—separated by a corridor 30 miles wide through which the German mechanized forces pushed toward the sea—brought out their greatest weapon, heavy artillery, in an effort to cut down the long, thin German line by crossfire.

Allied Troops in Corridor

On both sides of that corridor they set up batteries and, with the famous French 75's, raked the German columns. At the same time, aircraft bombed and machine-gunned roads and troop concentrations.

The Germans, meanwhile, sought with columns of tanks to clean out the last scattered resistance in the GERMANY SMASHED HARD again yesterday toward Calais and Boulogne and a foothold on the channel coast to attack England.

HITLER'S MIGHTY RIGHT WING—the right wing on which the famed von Schlieffen attack plans were based, was pounding toward the channel from Ghent to Boulogne.

THE GERMAN SPEARHEAD, the advanced motorized columns of this right wing, was battering at the outskirts of Calais, 22 miles from England. It was fighting grimly in resisting Frenchmen in the environs of Boulogne, 26 miles from England.

THE VISE AROUND the Allied forces in the channel pocket seemed to be closing.

OTHER GERMAN FORCES hammered into Ghent, to the north, breaking through the Scheldt River lines. If this movement can be continued from the Valenciennes-Tournai-Ghent line to the German Arras-Hazebrouck-Calais line in the south, it would envelop the entire Belgian army and many of its Allies.

THE FRENCH BLASTED at the Germans in the wedge to the sea with intense artillery crossfire, and Generalissimo Maxime Weygand was said to have told Premier Reynaud he expected to make an announcement in a few hours that a "disastrous situation" had been overcome. The announcement had not come early today.

"AN ISSUE OF LIFE and death for us all" is the issue being fought out, King George VI told the world in a broadcast to his empire. As he spoke, England rushed channel defenses and struck at "fifth column" activities with new arrests.

ALLIED EFFORTS to appease Italy apparently have failed. Concessions of colonial possessions and Mediterranean blockade, offered by France and England, were reported insufficient for Mussolini, who continued war preparations.

Tremendous Fire On French Coast Seen in England; Report Bombings

By Ralph W. Barnes
Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

Berlin, May 24.—As the great French channel port of Boulogne, 26 miles from the English coast, was claimed by Nazis to have fallen to the German arms, what the Germans termed "the greatest battle of envelopment of all time" appeared tonight to be drawing steadily towards its close, in victory for the fighting machine of Fuehrer Hitler.

Unconfirmed reports here tonight have it that Calais, 22 miles across the channel from Dover, is on the point of capitulation.

[Later, according to the Associated Press, German military officials formally claimed to have reached a "point south of Calais," but did not disclose just how close that point was.]

As the airplane flies it is 75 miles from Cap Gris Nez between Boulogne and Calais to London. The flying time for a fast German bomber is about 20 minutes.

French Claim City Is Held

[The French War Ministry announced in Paris that French soldiers still were holding Boulogne proper, although Germans had penetrated the environs of the city.

[Neither London nor Paris admitte the capitulation of Calais, although London, earlier in the day, said Boulogne had fallen.

[The Associated Press reported from London early today that vibrations from tremendous explosions, the thunder of gunfire and flames shooting skyward on the French coast were seen and heard from the southeast coast of England and it was believed that British warships had gone into action.

[An air ministry communique told of repeated bombing attacks in the Boulogne area against Germans. It was believed that these accounted for some of the vibrations, but others were of such force as to lead to the belief they were caused by naval guns.]

Nazis Take Tournai

While mechanized forces, including heavy tank detachments which have pushed up along the French coast from the Somme Valley, were battling their way into the channel ports, the German armies in Belgium, which had met stubborn resistance on the Scheldt River, succeeded, according to the Nazi supreme command, in occupying Tournai, and in pushing westward from the Scheldt at some points to positions on the west bank of the Lys River, described as "Belgium's last natural line of defense."

The official news agency announced tonight that St. Omer, east of Boulogne, has been taken, and if this claim fits the facts the mechanized forces moving from the south are striking some distance inland as well as along the coast. Presumably one objective of the inland spearhead is Dunkerque, only 25 miles north of St. Omer.

A semiofficial military commentary issued tonight says the points at which the German forces advancing westward in Flanders have crossed the west bank of the Lys River are near Ghent. Presumably the forces which have broken through the Scheldt line are approaching the Lys but have not yet succeeded in crossing it. A bulletin issued tonight said that hand-to-

249 Killed, 3,000 Injured In Peruvian Earthquakes

By the Associated Press

Lima, Peru, May 24.—A series of sharp earthquakes caused at least 249 deaths and injured nearly 3,000 persons in Lima and other Peruvian communities today.

Callao, Lima's seaport 6 miles away, was the hardest hit. The death toll there was put at 150, with 1,100 injured.

Almost every building in Callao was reported collapsed or cracked and the whole population was camping in streets and plazas.

The shocks started with a one-minute tremor in the early afternoon. The population rushed panic-stricken into the streets. There were 13 more shocks before nightfall.

At the seaside resort of Chorrillos 90 per cent of the buildings collapsed, killing 15 persons.

Two school children were killed in the collapse of a schoolhouse at Hauraz, capital of Ancachs department.

Rescue workers at Chorrillos said many more victims were believed buried in debris.

In Callao, first-aid stations cared for more than 600 seriously injured. Many residents were believed to have been entombed.

There was no communication with southern cities and the extent of the disaster there remained in doubt.

Among the many historic structures damaged in Lima was the sixteenth century cathedral.

Concessions 'Too Late, Too Little'

Italy Holds 3 Liners in Port As Signs Point to Entry in War

By the Associated Press

Rome, May 24.—Sailings of three Italian liners—possibly needed for troop transport—were postponed tonight as reports circulated in Italy that Allied concessions intended to keep Italy out of the war had come "too late."

Today the twenty-fifth anniversary of Italy's entry into the World War on the side of the Allies was celebrated. Now she is linked to Germany by a "pact of steel," and all signs point to her entry into the war soon against the Allies.

The official announcements of the postponement said it was purely a routine matter. New dates were booked, but reports were widespread that these meant little.

Two of the liners were the Rex and the Augustus, scheduled originally to leave Genoa and Trieste May 29 and May 27, respectively. Both are booked now for departure June 6.

The Neptunia, scheduled to leave Genoa June 1 for South America, is listed to go June 21 instead.

The civil mobilization law, which gives the government power to mobilize all citizens over the age of 14 and to requisition virtually any materials or services anywhere in the nation, went into effect tonight.

The news of the delay in liner sailings coincided with announcement that naval reservists who recently completed training have been recalled to the colors.

Naval experts said some time ago that liners would be needed for troop transport in the event of war.

Over Our Shoulder

an advertisement for The Sunday Post

In discussing his outline for the Sunday Post's War Review, Eddie Folliard remarked that before the Germans could attempt to invade England they would have to go through certain preliminaries, such as bombing British airports, and that these preliminaries would serve as a warning.

FOLLIARD

A bystander commented that Folliard's statement of what the Nazis would "have to do" reminded him of the story of the colored man who was ordered by the movie director to put his head in the lion's mouth.

"Go on," urged the director. "That lion's tame. He won't bite you."

"Yassuh," replied the colored actor. "You knows he's tame, an' ah knows it. But do de lion know it?"

Eddie Folliard's really excellent war review each Sunday in The Post gives you a chance to clarify what has gone on during the week, to step back from the confusion of daily moves and countermoves and see the picture as a whole.

Don't forget that The Post's five war services are on the job for The Sunday Post, too, providing the most complete and accurate war news coverage available.

The special articles are equally important. For example, Jack Norris has two on the Army and Navy page in Sunday's Post. One tells what became of the $7,000,000,000 that had already been appropriated for defense by Congress under the New Deal. The other tells you of a coming opportunity to get a personal look at America's air industry: The National Air Forum will be held in Washington from Sunday through Wednesday, with open sessions, movies and an exhibit at Bolling Field. Norris tells you where to go, what to see.

Ed Ryan's Federal Diary Sunday tells how Civil Service is speeding its machinery for defense needs.

Pierre Van Paassen, author of the best-seller, "Days of Our Years," writes of Ribbentrop and Molotoff, the men he claims are behind Hitler and Stalin.

Hedley Donovan offers the story of Gen. Weygand, the man of action who replaced Gamelin, the man of defense.

And the Gallup Poll answers some questions about America's attitude toward:

1. The billion dollar defense appropriation.

2. A special tax to pay for it.

3. The men most capable of handling our foreign affairs right now.

Young G. O. P. Of N. Y. Likes Willkie Also

Dewey's Home Club Switches to Utilities Man, Then Swings Back

New York, May 24 (AP).—Without reversing its indorsement of Thomas E. Dewey for the Republican Presidential nomination, the New York Young Republican Club tonight expressed "positive feelings" for Wendell L. Willkie, potential G. O. P. candidate.

The resolution declared that Willkie "has been strikingly effective in focusing the attention of the American people on the defects of the New Deal Administration," and that "he, therefore, deserves the wholehearted commendation of the Republican Party for his efforts."

This action followed two special meetings of the club's board of governors, the first of which resolved by a vote of 10 to 8 to switch their support to Willkie, the second rescinding this resolution while awaiting tonight's meeting.

It was in this club that Dewey first was active politically and he is a former chairman of the board of governors.

The division of sentiment in the club came into the open during the annual convention of the State Association of Young Republican Clubs at Utica, where there was considerable activity in Willkie's behalf.

Despite this, a resolution indorsing Dewey was adopted by acclamation at the closing session, although some of the members of the New York City club refrained from voting.

Vermont Uninstructed

Montpelier, Va., May 24 (AP).—Vermont Republicans elected a nine-member, unpledged delegation to their party's national convention today after charging the New Deal with "blundering" and urging that the task of building up the Nation's defense be placed in G. O. P. hands.

The delegation, chosen at the party's State convention, will include both Senator Austin and Governor Aiken.

The convention earlier had adopted a resolution demanding "coordination of all the Nation's industrial resources for mass production of planes, ships and all other instrumentalities of war necessary for the protection of the country."

House Minority Leader Martin (Republican), of Massachusetts, keynote speaker, charged that the New Deal's record "constituted the best argument for return of the conduct of national defense to Republican hands.

"The safety of the United States," said Martin, "the financial well-being of this Nation, and the security of the people's liberties, all demand that we reverse this trend toward an ever-increasing bureaucracy and more complex government and get back to a more simplified form of government, fewer tax-eaters on the pay rolls, and more returns per dollar of salaries and expenses in government."

Nevada Unpledged

Reno, May 24 (AP).—The State Republican convention named six uninstructed delegates to the National Convention today.

The delegation will be composed of Noble H. Getchell, National Committeeman; Stuart Williams, State chairman; Morley Griswold, Frank McNamee, Jr., Lloyd Smith and C. R. Pugh.

400 CCC Boys To Go Down to Sea

By the Associated Press

The Civilian Conservation Corps said yesterday it had released 400 CCC boys to the United States Maritime Service for Coast Guard training at Boston. An additional 100, officials said, will be given similar training at St. Petersburg, Fla.

James J. McEntee, CCC director, said the releases were in connection with a program initiated a year ago to train young men for the American merchant marine, and were not connected with President Roosevelt's national rearmament program.

Hughes Opens Judicial Conference, Warns of Court's Place in Democracy

CHIEF JUSTICE HUGHES PRESIDING JUSTICE GRONER JUSTICE MILLER

Ovation Welcomes U. S. Chief Justice On Appearance

Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes inaugurated the District of Columbia Judicial Conference yesterday with an admonition to the judges and lawyers that the security of democracy depends upon them.

A hearty ovation welcomed the 78-year-old Chief Justice of the United States when he strode to the bench of the United States Court of Appeals, where he was introduced by the presiding Chief Justice, D. Lawrence Groner.

Chief Justice Hughes told the judges and attorneys:

"You can not maintain the institutions of democracy by forms of words or occasional vows of patriotism. You can maintain them by making the institutions of this republic work as they were intended to work, with the full confidence of the people."

Small Courts Are Vital

Chief Justice Hughes recalled that he once told a police magistrate, "Your court is more important than mine." Thousands of citizens face the inferior courts, he pointed out, for every one person who is a litigant in the Supreme Court.

Thus, he said, it is in the small courts that most citizens have their only experience with the processes of justice and their confidence in the Government depends upon the honesty and efficiency they encounter in these courts.

"Every judge, whatever his court, has a very important obligation to see to it, as far as his power goes, that the machinery of justice receives the confidence and respect of every citizen," Chief Justice Hughes said.

Judicial conferences, he explained, were one means to this end. He counseled the judges and lawyers to keep their meetings informal, saying it was a good thing for district judges to meet the appellate judges "face to face and tell them what they think of them."

Other Justices Attend

Chief Justice Hughes shared the bench with Chief Justice Groner, Senior Judge John J. Parker, of the Fourth Circuit, and Henry P. Chandler, director of the administrative office of the Federal courts. Facing him, with their chairs set in a semi-circle within the bar, were five other justices of the Court of Appeals and 11 justices of the District court. The spectators' seats were occupied by 100 representatives of the District, Washington Patent, Federal and Women's Bar associations.

Few of his hearers failed to remark the strength and vigor of Justice Hughes. He arrived at the court unaccompanied. Escorted by the marshal, Chief Justice Hughes walked briskly to the chambers of Chief Justice Groner, where he chatted with Judge Parker, Justices Bolitha J. Laws and T. Alan Goldsborough of the District Court and Justice Justin Miller of the Court of Appeals.

Poses for Photographers

Chief Justice Hughes agreed to pose for several news photographers. He posed with his features austerely set. When one photographer pleaded for some conversation to liven up the scene Chief Justice Hughes almost barked, "You go on and take your pictures." His eyes twinkled and he broke into a smile.

Judge Parker, who has 10 years of experience in the conduct of such judicial conferences, praised the pretrial procedure by which Justice Laws "streamlines" cases before they are tried here, saving much time for the court.

Chandler, who is the fiscal officer of the national court system, promised his support of the project for a new District Court building here. At present, three justices maintain their chambers and quarters in the new Police Court Buliding. Justice James M. Proctor will discuss this subject at the conference today.

Other speakers today will be Paul E. Lesh, Andrew D. Sharpe, Mrs. Elizabeth M. Cox, Lloyd H. Sutton and Frederick A. Ballard.

Indiana G.O.P. Names Willis For Senator

After Minton's Seat; Convention Delegates To Be Uninstructed

By the Associated Press

Indianapolis, May 24.—Indiana Republicans, meeting in State convention, today nominated Raymond E. Willis, chubby country editor, for United States Senator and Glen R. Hillis, Kokomo lawyer, for Governor and named an uninstructed delegation of 28 to the party's national convention.

Willis won without opposition. Publisher of a weekly newspaper at Angola, he was the Senatorial nominee in 1938, losing a close race in the general election to Senator Frederick Van Nuys, opponent of many New Deal policies. This time Willis will be after the seat of Senator Sherman Minton, ardent New Dealer, who so far is unopposed for renomination in the Democratic State convention June 27.

Action Unanimous

A bandwagon movement brought victory to Willis on the second ballot and his nomination was made unanimous on motion of his closest competitor, State Senator William E. Jenner, of Shoals. There were five others in the gubernatorial contest.

The veteran James E. Watson, who was named a delegate-at-large, has expressed favor for the candidacy of Senator Robert A. Taft, of Ohio. Former Senator Watson, now 75, was floor manager for Taft's father, William Howard Taft, in the 1912 convention and boasts of having attended every Republican National Convention beginning with that of 1876.

Will G. Irwin, national committeeman and another delegate-at-large, was host to Wendell L. Willkie, Indiana-born utilities executive, when Willkie, who has been talked of for the Presidential nomination, visited here recently. Other delegates-at-large are William L. Hutcheson, president of the International Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, and Archie N. Bobbitt, the party's State chairman.

Condemn Defense Waste

"Keep out of war" was the keynote of the platform adopted by the convention. The longest plank deplored "our present state of unpreparedness," and asserted there had been "a shameful waste of defense appropriations."

The convention also resolved that "Republican Congressmen be respectfully requested to oppose adjournment of the present session, lest our form of government suffer by such adjournment."

Gov. John W. Bricker, of Ohio, said in the keynote address that Republicans "don't want" a coalition government.

3d-Termers Look For Running Mate In New Harmony

effective answer to a Republican campaign attack on the third term issue, and serve to weld the party into its old unity.

Wheeler's Stand Uncertain

The Vice President, most independent of Democratic candidates in the field, has frequently said he expected to return to Uvalde if he failed to win first place.

Senator Wheeler has even more firmly voiced his unwillingness to take second place on any ticket, and his friends yesterday were divided on whether he would alter his stand because of the grim change in the international situation.

Others observed that if the President can change his mind because of developments abroad, Wheeler might also. Third-termers who seek Wheeler as the running mate, point to his pulling power in the west and his life-long liberalism. Also cited is the President's call for an all-liberal ticket.

Postmaster General Farley, prominently mentioned for either first or second place on all nonthird-term tickets, could not run with the President as both hail from the same State.

President Spikes Coalition

Farley, privately opposed to a third term, has not publicly dropped a hint of his political intentions since Europe's war turned for the worse. But in Postoffice and national committee circles the betting is 2 to 1 that he not only would support the President in the present emergency but would want his old job back in directing the campaign. Friends often cite his Winston-Salem, S. C., speech in which he said in effect he would hold his duty to his country above his political beliefs.

Die-hard coalition talk, meanwhile, received a lethal blow at yesterday's White House press conference.

Roosevelt said all reports of Republicans coming into the Cabinet to form a nonpartisan coalition Government were cockeyed and made out of the whole cloth. And yet he said the coalition idea continues to be discussed baselessly and written about because the press got out on a limb and now the limb was sawed off. He called it a case of barking up the wrong tree.

Landon Sees Dewey

In New York, former Gov. Landon told reporters the President will have to take "a lot of men out of the doghouse" before the United States can have the mass production essential for national defense. Landon had breakfasted yesterday with New York District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey, poll-leading Republican candidate for President.

Other developments:

Already assured of enough third-term nominating ballots, the President picked up eight more at the Rhode Island Democratic convention yesterday, which gave the "great world crisis" as a reason for reelecting him.

Uninstructed delegations were chosen by Republican State conventions in both Vermont and Indiana, with the Indiana convention nominating for the Senate Raymond E. Willis, who narrowly missed election two years ago.

Sidney Hillman, president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers Union, announced his union would push the "Draft Roosevelt" movement.

Willkie Calls On Republicans To Restore U.S.

Utility Chief Says Sound Economy Is Vital to Defenses

By the Associated Press

Kansas City, May 24.—Wendell L. Willkie said tonight "the Republican Party would become America's first "fifth column" if it failed to undertake its vital task of restoring sound government and sound industry in our land."

"We are facing a period of danger," the utility executive, who has been mentioned as a possible Republican Presidential candidate said in an address prepared for a dinner of the National Republican Club of Kansas City.

"In ten years of continuing unemployment, of enormous government deficits, of stagnant industry and frightened investment, we have become weak and dispirited at home.

Land in Jeopardy

"Meanwhile, the world abroad has burst into flames. . . . Steadily the menace of war draws closer to our borders. Never has this "sweet land of liberty" been in greater jeopardy.

"Two weeks ago the President . . . asked for more than a billion dollars for a vast defense program. . . . Americans throughout the land understood and approved his words. The Nation was of one heart and one mind in its desire for adequate national defense.

"In the excitement of the moment, there were a few who advanced a strange interpretation of this unanimity of feeling. They said that there was only one man capable of handling the defense program, namely the President, and that the Republicans should abandon all opposition. . . .

"This theory can mean only one thing: That we the people should permit the New Deal to spend the billions of dollars for national defense just as it has spent the $60,000,000,000 that have passed through its hands in the past 7½ years.

Spending "Ruinous"

"And I say . . . that another four years of New Deal spending in this critical period will be ruinous to this country. . . ."

Asserting "we are today pitifully unprepared for even the most rudimentary defense," Willkie added: "The basic factor in national defense is a sound economic system.

"The first step in our defense system is to free American business from unnecessary restrictions . . . and to encourage the flow of capital into industry. This would create the best kind of army which any nation can have—an army of 10,000,000 working men. . . .

"At the present critical time there is something more important than reform—that is recovery. There is something more important than moral improvement—and that is economic strength. There is something more important than new social experiments—and that is the preservation of the Federal union."

Scalise Rearrested On Theft Charge

New York, May 24 (AP).—George Scalise, former president of the Building Service Employes International Union, was arrested on a grand larceny charge today immediately after his release from Tombs Prison under new bail put up in connection with his indictment for extortion.

District Attorney Thomas Dewey's detectives made the arrest. The complaint charged theft of $60,000 from the union through false claims for expenses.

Labor Board To Lay Off 50, Keep Saposs

Reduction of Staff Result of Congress' Slash in Funds

A reduction of more than 50 employes in the staff of the National Labor Relations Board has been decided upon as a result of the $362,000 Congressional slash in President Roosevelt's 1941 budget estimates for the board, it was learned yesterday.

In cutting down the staff, however, the board ignored the suggestion of the House Appropriations Committee that the division of economic research be wiped out. This section of the board is headed by David J. Saposs, who was under fire at Smith committee hearings for alleged radicalism.

It is understood that although the economic research division suffered reductions along with other arms of the board, Dr. Saposs will remain as its chief.

A spokesman for the board said yesterday that "50 to 60 employes" are slated to go, over half of whom are attached to the main office of the board in the District. Ten trial examiners and 13 review attorneys are included in the list. The balance is made up of other attorneys, field examiners and clerical help.

The only trial examiner to be dropped who appeared before the Smith committee is William Seagle. He testified on the Stromberg-Carlson case in 1938.

The $362,000 cut made by Senate and House has not yet become law, as the bill containing the Labor Board appropriation is still in conference. The NLRB grant, however, is not in dipute between the two houses. The President recommended $3,180,000 for the board, and Congress voted it $2,818,000.

The amendments to the National Labor Relations Act recommended by the Smith committee—which include abolition of the Division of Economic Research—are expected to come before the House late next week. At that time, both the Smith amendments and the much milder amendments proposed by the House Labor Committee will be up for consideration.

$20,000 Is Asked For Investigation Of Liquor Sales

There appeared little prospect yesterday that a suggested $20,000 appropriation for a study of local liquor distribution would be obtained at this session of Congress, after a disclosure that the recommendation is contained in a preliminary report drafted by Representative Eberharter (Democrat), of Pennsylvania.

The tentative report is expected to be altered at a meeting of the special subcommittee of the House District Committee next week before being submitted to the full committee.

Representative Shafer (Republican), of Michigan, plans to set forth his recommendations for changes in a letter to Chairman Eberharter.

Roosevelt Asks For Expansion Of USHA Capital

President Roosevelt yesterday reiterated his desire that Congress expand capital of the United States Housing Authority in the present session. The House last year refused to give the authority an additional $800,000,000.

Discussing the issue at his press conference, Mr. Roosevelt said he talked over the pending USHA bill in a conference earlier this week with Chairman Steagall (Democrat), of Alabama, of the House Banking and Currency Committee, and two other Representatives.

The President said he told the Congressmen he feels funds should be provided to continue the housing program in rural as well as in urban areas. As an example, he said, establishment of new plants in connection with the national defense program undoubtedly will require additional housing facilities in many small communities. This expansion could well be handled by a continued USHA program, he said.

Daniels Thinks Aliens in U. S. Are Mostly Intent on Eating

Southerner Who Discovers and Writes Believes Germans Loyal

Jonathan Daniels was discovered here yesterday up to his lucrative lobby of taking Americans and their sections of the country apart. Hitler and Mussolini might be interested to know what he thinks of German-Americans and Italian-Americans.

The North Carolina editor, who wrote "A Southerner Discovers the South" and "A Southerner Discovers New England," was profoundly observing the more recently Americanized elements—while discovering whether New Englanders eat pie for breakfast—and found them good.

He believes that most of the Germans in the United States would be loyal to this country in extreme eventualities and is convinced that the chief concern of everyone, even now, "is how to get something to eat."

"When they have a full stomach they all are nice," he said. He found them—every one—still wanting bread, and the security that brings it, rather than guns. He said he "wasn't fool enough to think that no spies" are hereabouts, but his observations made him believe America was very solid at the core.

Looking for material to fill a book, he found a "groundswell" for Roosevelt for President and still some sectional bickering, in spots, about "we are as nice as they" and "we are more hospitable than they." But he discounted all this as a localized business to feel very pleased over how soon the so-called foreign elements take root in America.

Among all kinds of people he found a strong sense that America should build its defenses.

"We really can't defend the United States until we understand it," he said—an observation not intended as a plug for his two books. Besides, he said, he had abandoned the discovery field of writing now and turned to writing a book on North Carolina, which he can do from his editorial desk in Raleigh.

He is visiting here at the home of his brother, Dr. Worth B. Daniels, 1516 Twenty-eighth street northwest.

Two Dies Agents Freed of Charges Communist Filed

Philadelphia, May 24 (AP).—Two agents of the Dies Congressional Committee Investigating Un-American Activities and a Philadelphia police lieutenant were freed today of charges that they conspired to violate the Civil Liberties Act.

U. S. Commissioner J. H. Malloy dismissed accusations brought by Carl Rieve, educational director of the Communist Party in eastern Pennsylvania, against Agents Chester Howe, George F. Hurley and Lieut. Albert A. Granitz.

They were arrested after a raid on Communist Party headquarters here April 2.

The commissioner said that in obtaining the raid warrant from Magistrate Jacob Dogole the committee agents did all they could to make certain it was legal.

Defense Needs Lead to Truce Between Jones, Morgenthau

Secretary Reveals Texan Will Yield On RFC Provisions

National defense needs yesterday had brought about healing for this session of a banking policy dispute between the biggest spender and the biggest lender in the Government, Treasury Secretary Morgenthau and Jesse Jones, Federal loan administrator.

Recently Jones sponsored a bill in Congress to allow his Reconstruction Finance Corporation to pay some of its surplus capital to Henry Morgenthau's Treasury, to help cut down the budget deficit.

Two Provisions Denounced

The measure contained two provisions which Morgenthau denounced:

An amendment to the Federal Reserve Bank Act permitting national banks to make 15-year amortized loans on improved real estate by banks, instead of ten-year loans, as is now the case.

A clause which would have given Jones authority now held by Morgenthau over RFC purchases of preferred bank stock.

Testifying in favor of the bill to Congressional committees, the blunt-spoken Jones in the fashion of his native Texas expressed doubt that the Treasury knew much about banking.

Yesterday the two officials appeared in the roles of Damon and Pythias.

Morgenthau Triumphant

Morgenthau, known at the White House both as "Henry Penny" and as "Henry the Morgue," summoned a special press conference and announced a blitzpeace ending for this session the banking quarrel with Jones.

Standing triumphantly behind his desk and brandishing at reporters a letter of submission—at least temporary—from Jones, Morgenthau disclosed that the Texas financier had agreed to drop the controversial provisions in the bill.

"Mr. Jones called on me and we agreed the important thing was for us to work together," Morgenthau said. Jones made all the concessions in the financial peace treaty, the Treasury Secretary added.

The peace document was a letter to Chairman Steagall (Democrat), of Alabama, of the House Banking Committee, from Jones, offering to drop the real estate loan and preferred stock provisions.

Jones wrote:

Without Change in Law

"I have had a conference with the Secretary of the Treasury this morning and am convinced that the preferred stock matters will be handled expeditiously and to the entire satisfaction of the RFC, without change in the law."

The letter, however, ended with this passage regarding real estate loans:

"I expect to come back to Congress at the next session with more complete recommendations on this subject, because in my opinion the present banking laws are unduly restrictive. Improved income bearing real estate, both farms and business properties, is entitled to credit and credit facilities as favorable as business and industry enjoy."

The day was also marked by continued cooperation between Government and business in the interests of the President's defense program.

Day's Developments

Developments were:

Three members of the national defense committee of the National Association of Manufacturers conferred with Morgenthau on industrial problems related to defense. The three were C. Donald Dallas, president, Revere Copper & Brass Co., New York; J. D. Francis, president, Inland Creek Coal Co., Huntington, W. Va.; F. V. Geier, president, Cincinnati Milling Machinery Co.

Cross-licensing of patents to speed production of the 50,000 airplanes set as a goal by the President gained ground, and there were indications that the patent pool might be extended to the machine tool and other industries.

Commerce Secretary Hopkins, after all-day conferences with the Business Advisory Council, announced that he would continue to see its executive committee and representatives of key defense industries during the coming defense drive.

Nazis Hint Startling Expose From Seized Belgian Papers

By Louis P. Lochner

Associated Press Staff Writer

With the German Army, May 24. The story of how a daring parachute corps officer rushed straight to the Belgian foreign office when Brussels fell and seized archives which "will make the world prick up its ears," was told to me today by a German military official.

Among the parachute jumpers who landed in the vicinity of Brussels, I was told, was a dashing officer who in peacetime served in Adolf Hitler's chancellery as a liaison man to the foreign office. He also was an assistant chief of protocol.

As soon as the Belgian capital surrendered he rushed into the city with the first troops and headed for the Belgian foreign office.

Thus, 20 minutes after Brussels capitulated, the secret archives of the Belgian government were in German hands.

I was not surprised. The Polish and Norwegian campaigns showed that the Germans consider diplomatic booty quite as important as booty of materials.

Today in Berlin a spokesman declared it was "not impossible" that revelations of Belgium and Dutch connivance in Allied war plans would be published in a manner similar to those allegations made following the German invasions of Poland and Norway.

Fighting Grows Hard

Today the German armies put in one of the hardest days of its offensive, drawing narrower and narrower the pocket into which they have maneuvered the combined British - Belgian - French northern army.

The bulk of the German force is only 20 miles from the Belgian coast.

The German drive is relentless. Whoever we encountered today was determined to win—convinced of victory. And we learned that "orders is orders" for a certainty in this army of Adolf Hitler's.

When anybody has been assigned a task he tries to carry it out, come what may.

As we passed through a village 40 miles from Ghent we tried as usual to dart in and out among the slowly moving columns. At one turn of the road a heavy-set major accosted us, his hand at his revolver.

Soldier Not Impressed

"We are here as the supreme commander's guest," said my escort, "and we must travel along this road for awhile."

This formula hitherto had worked wonders.

But the major wasn't impressed at all.

"My regiment must reach Ghent before dawn," he bellowed. "I won't have anybody interfere with that task and I'll shoot down anybody who tries to use this road."

We managed suddenly to find this particular road quite unnecessary for getting to our telephone connection.

Salted With Veterans

In this army reservists and recruits are mixed.

Gen von Kuchler's aide de camp explained to me that "the one decisive moment in a soldier's life arrives when he receives his baptism of fire. Most young men are shaken when they meet the enemy in action the first time.

"From the first day of the war we mixed men who already had served 25 years ago with the young generation of today. The experiment had astounding success. The old veterans maintained such composure as hell broke loose that the young fellows soon rallied and regained their confidence.

"Now we practically never send untried regiments to the front. Each troop is liberally interspersed with veterans."

Sleep a Rarity

Marching 30 miles a day is nothing unusual for Hitler's army. Neither is getting along without regular sleep.

As we halted today in the little Belgian village of St. Trond a young air force infantryman rushed up to our chauffeur, an old buddy of his.

"How are things?" asked my chauffeur.

"Just fine—only we shouldn't mind a little more sleep," replied the infantryman. "We haven't had any real sleep for three days. It always has been marching, marching, marching."

Dutch Queen Says She Fled 'To Lead Fight'

Asserts Nazis Tried 'Everything' to Make Her War Prisoner

By the Associated Press

London, May 24.—Queen Wilhelmina said today she fled from the Netherlands to maintain her "active leadership" of 65,000,000 citizens of the Dutch Empire instead of becoming a prisoner of war by remaining at home.

"I have deemed it my duty," she said.

The Queen, tired but spirited, explained her position in an interview with correspondents.

She pointed out that of the Dutch Empire's population, the colonies embrace nearly 60,000,000. (The Netherlands proper has a population of approximately 8,000,000.)

"The Dutch fleet, with its proud traditions, has been able to join the Allied fleets almost unscathed," she said.

"This struggle is being waged by Dutchmen who have escaped from the nonoccupied territory and recruited abroad at the side of the Allies. . . . It is my task to give leadership and confidence to these forces and Hollanders in overseas territories who are willing and keen to make any sacrifices for the motherland."

"From the beginning," the 59-year-old sovereign said, "the enemy has done everything in his power to capture me.

"In the hands of the enemy I would have been powerless. As a captive of oppression I could not have been the rallying point nor an inspiration for my unhappy people."

The Queen and other members of the royal family arrived in England last week shortly before her homeland fell to German invaders. The Netherlands government is functioning temporarily in London.

"'I Shall Maintain,' is the motto of my (House of Orange) dynasty," she said. "That tradition which I could not worthily nor effectively carry on as a captive of the enemy, I shall forever cherish and hold high."

"The Dutch navy includes 21 submarines, four cruisers, nine mine layers, eight destroyers, five seagoing torpedo boats, a coast defense ship and numerous auxiliary vessels.)

Associated Gas Trustees Ask Help Of U. S. Agencies

New York, May 24 (AP).—Trustees of the Associated Gas and Electric System turned to Government agencies today for men to help them unravel the tangled affairs of the giant power and light concern which was placed in bankruptcy several months ago.

It was announced that Albert F. Tegen, member of the staff of the Securities and Exchange Commission since 1935, and Alex Speer, for the last two years chief engineer of the power division of the Public Works Administration, had been made directors and vice presidents of the Utility Management Corporation, owned by operating companies of the associated system and the concern which furnishes operating companies with management, engineers, accountants and handles other personnel problems.

Ernest J. Howe, financial officer of Utility Management, who was named to the board of the corporation May 8 in a general shakeup of personnel, was also made a vice president.

U. S. Organizes Big Hospitals On War Basis

By the Associated Press

New York, May 24.—The Government is organizing the Nation's hospitals for field service in this country or abroad—similar to the work in Europe during the World War—in case of a "national emergency."

Surgeon Gen. James Magee of the United States Army has asked the country's largest hospitals—at least six in New York City—to organize staffs for model units for such service.

[No District of Columbia hospitals have been included as yet in the paper hospital mobilization program, Gen. Magee told The Post last night. He intimated that several field hospitals would be organized here before the plan has been completed.]

New York doctors frankly say that the likeliest national "emergency" at the present time is United States involvement in the war.

The hospital organization plans have been detailed to the point where one New York institution's prospective unit already is designated as "Evacuation Hospital No. 7"—meaning, in war terms, a unit for service within 5 to 10 miles of a combat area.

The purpose of this "paper" organization, similar in principle to the Government's confidential "M-Day" plans which are locked in the safes of key industrial plants, is to have individuals ready to fill the important posts and have vital talent, such as surgeons, prepared to rush into organized service with a minimum of delay if the "emergency" materializes.

A typical hospital unit would have a basic personnel of about 40 persons—20 surgeons, 7 medical service physicians, 2 dentistry service physicians, an X-ray man, a laboratory man; a commanding officer, executive officer and quartermaster from the regular Army, and 6 men from the Army's administrative reserve.

Trotsky Lays Attempt to Kill Him to Stalin

20 Assassins Posing As Police Fire on Him, Kidnap Guard

By the Associated Press

Mexico City, May 24.—Leon Trotsky was injured slightly and a secretary-bodyguard kidnaped in an attack on Trotsky's home early today by some 20 machine-gunners, incendiarists and riflemen. The exiled Russian charged they were sent by Joseph Stalin. The assailants posed as police.

Sheldon Harte, 25, of New York City, who was on duty when the band of would-be assassins attacked the suburban villa, was abducted and his fate is not known.

Trotsky's 15-year-old grandson suffered a cut on one foot, apparently from a glancing bullet.

Trotsky, crouching with his wife in a corner of their bedroom, behind thick stone walls, to escape the machine-gun blasts through a window and bedroom door, was only cut about the face by flying splinters and glass.

Incendiary Bombs Thrown

Bullets peppered the walls, pierced two doors and ripped into the single beds where the Trotskys had been lying only a few minutes previously.

One of Trotsky's secretaries, speaking for the 60-year-old refugee from the Soviet Russia he helped create, declared "the attack was personally directed by Joseph Stalin."

The assailants, garbed as Mexico City policemen, hurled incendiary bombs into the yard to light the scene and then opened fire. One of the bombs crashed into the room of Trotsky's grandson, setting it afire, but Mrs. Trotsky extinguished the blaze with a blanket.

The attackers gained entry into the patio by tying up four Mexico City policemen in a guardhouse. One of the band posted himself near a shelter where off duty secretary-guards wer asleep. He called out in English:

"Stay inside and you won't be hurt."

Car Found Wrecked

The door of Trotsky's office was broken open and from that room one group machine-gunned the door to Trotsky's bedroom. Another gunner fired through a window.

Police of the suburban village of Coyoacan heard the gunfire, but when they arrived the attackers had fled, taking the New York secretary-guard and two of Trotsky's automobiles. One of the cars was found later, wrecked in a nearby ditch.

Police declared that the attack was "amazingly well-planned." They found a new extension ladder, a rope ladder with hooks for scaling, a portable electric saw, one or two crude bombs and numerous incendiary bombs covered with the tin shells of vacuum bottles.

Envoy Weddell To Fly to Spain

Richmond, Va., May 24 (AP).—Ambassador Alexander W. Weddell, now on a short visit home, plans to leave Richmond with Mrs. Weddell next week and to take off June 1 by Clipper for Lisbon.

Weddell, who has been America's Ambassador to Spain for the past year, said he was convinced of the desire of the ruling and conservative elements in Spain to retain its neutrality in the present European war.

"Spain has just come out of a costly and blood-letting civil war and wants a period of repose and tranquillity to put its house in order," he said.

CAA Set to Start Training of of 50,000 Civilian Pilots In Year as Soon as Congress Votes Its Appropriation

Program Scheduled To Begin July 1; Air Show Here Next Week

On the heels of a proclamation by President Roosevelt, the Civil Aeronautics Authority last night was mapping plans for an expanded airplane pilots training course to school 50,000 civilian aviators in the next 12 months.

During the day, the CAA also announced award of a $2,177,200 contract for the terminal building, a hangar and a heating plant at the National Airport at Gravelly Point. John McShain Co., of Philadelphia, was the successful bidder.

The CAA training program, work on which was begun immediately after Mr. Roosevelt told his press conference it was scheduled to start July 1, is to be financed by a supplemental appropriation by Congress.

CAA Ready to Start

The 50,000 men, between 18 and 25, will be drawn from three classifications, President Roosevelt said—from the 435 colleges at which the program is now operating and as many more as wish to start the training; a "large group of citizens" who now have licenses but who have allowed them to lapse, and men in the proper age category, but not in college, who desire to make themselves available for military service.

Chairman Robert E. Hinckley of the CAA said last night the Authority is "mobilized" to put the expanded program into effect as soon as appropriations were realized.

He outlined as steps in the new program the establishing of many new training centers, in addition to 550 President Roosevelt called for as a minimum, and the setting up of training courses for flight course instructors.

Flying schools, now in operation but which would ordinarily be discontinued next month until fall, will be continued throughout the summer, he said.

Air Plattsburgh Plan

The CAA chairman said the pilot training program might be correlated with a basic instruction system similar to the "Air Plattsburgh" plan of Col. Frank Knox to train 10,000 civilian volunteers annually.

Judging from inquiries at the CAA offices in the past week, many more than the required 50,000 students will apply for the training, officials of the Authority declared yesterday.

The applicants will "be weeded out," it was said, by rigid Army physical examinations as well as stiff intelligence tests at colleges where the courses are given. General physical requirements call for men between 5 feet, 4 inches and 6 feet, 6 inches in height, weighing at least 115 pounds.

Illustrating the method of operation of the training courses, CAA officials said about 100 students are now eligible for flying instruction after ground schooling during the past school year at George Washington, Maryland, Columbus and Howard universities.

Virginia Markwood, of Falls Church, Va., is one of the many participants in the National Aviation Forum's model airplane contest which will be held at Bolling Field tomorrow afternoon from 3 to 6 o'clock

While the CAA worked out its program, the aviation industry of the United States marshaled its resources for a visible display of its accomplishments and its strength here next week. Beginning tomorrow, Bolling Field will be transformed into an exhibition of planes and engines, civil and military; aeronautical devices will be displayed at the Department of Commerce and exhibits will be on view at leading hotels. The show will be in connection with the National Aviation Forum of 1940, which will begin Sunday and continue four days, ending Wednesday night.

Youngsters will have their day tomorrow, which has been designated Model Exhibition Day, with model plane contests from 3 to 6 p. m. at Bolling Field. Top prize in the competition will be a round trip over three airlines to the National Model Airplane Meet in July.

Monday has been designated Private Fliers Day, with pilots expected from many Eastern cities. Airlines Day will be held Tuesday, and Wednesday will be devoted to the military aspect of flying, as National Defense Day. Among features of the commercial exhibit will be Transcontinental and Western's new Boeing stratosphere airliner from which broadcasts will be made from 20,000 feet over Bolling Field. The ship will be christened here by Mrs. Robert M. Hinckley, wife of the chairman of the CAA.

U.S. Court Upholds Jail Sentences Of Long Henchmen

New Orleans, May 24 (AP).—The Fifth U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals today affirmed convictions of four men, including Seymour Weiss, hotel owner and treasurer of the late Huey Long's political machine, found guilty of mail fraud.

The four were convicted in the Federal Government's campaign which smashed the political power of the Long dynasty.

They were Weiss, Monte E. Hart, contractor; J. Emory Adams, nephew of Dr. James Monroe Smith, and Louis C. Lesage, former oil company executive.

Smith, former president of Louisiana State University now serving a sentence in the State penitentiary, withdrew his appeal.

Sentences of the five are 30 months' imprisonment and a $2,000 fine each for Weiss, Hart and Smith and a year's imprisonment and $1,000 fine each for Adams and Lesage.

Optical Firms Agree to Sell Wares to Allies

New York, May 24 (AP).—The Government and a group of manufacturers of optical instruments, including military precision apparatus, reached an agreement today whereby Britain and France, as well as the United States, will be able to obtain such instruments in this country.

For 21 years, the Government had discharged, the manufacture and distribution of the instruments had been controlled from Germany.

The agreement—expected to terminate the Government's anti-trust action against the firms—was reached with the Bausch and Lomb Optical Co., of Rochester, N. Y., Carl Zeiss, Inc., the New York subsidiary of the German Zeiss Co., and other concerns.

Over Our Shoulder

an advertisement for The Sunday Post

In discussing his outline for the Sunday Post's War Review, Eddie Folliard remarked that before the Germans could attempt to invade England they would have to go through certain preliminaries, such as bombing British airports, and that these preliminaries would serve as a warning.

FOLLIARD

A bystander commented that Folliard's statement of what the Nazis would "have to do" reminded him of the story of the colored man who was ordered by the movie director to put his head in the lion's mouth.

"Go on," urged the director. "That lion's tame. He won't bite you."

"Yassuh," replied the colored actor. "You knows he's tame, an' ah knows it. But do de lion know it?"

Eddie Folliard's really excellent war review each Sunday in The Post gives you a chance to clarify what has gone on during the week, to step back from the confusion of daily moves and countermoves and see the picture as a whole.

Don't forget that The Post's five war services are on the job for The Sunday Post, too, providing the most complete and accurate war news coverage available.

The special articles are equally important. For example, Jack Norris has two on the Army and Navy page in Sunday's Post. One tells what became of the $7,000,000,000 that had already been appropriated for defense by Congress under the New Deal. The other tells you of a coming opportunity to get a personal look at America's air industry: The National Air Forum will be held in Washington from Sunday through Wednesday, with open sessions, movies and an exhibit at Bolling Field. Norris tells you where to go, what to see.

Ed Ryan's Federal Diary Sunday tells how Civil Service is speeding its machinery for defense needs.

Pierre Van Paassen, author of the best-seller, "Days of Our Years," writes of Ribbentrop and Molotoff, the men he claims are behind Hitler and Stalin.

Hedley Donovan offers the story of Gen. Weygand, the man of action who replaced Gamelin, the man of defense.

And the Gallup Poll answers some questions about America's attitude toward:

1. The billion dollar defense appropriation.

2. A special tax to pay for it.

3. The men most capable of handling our foreign affairs right now.

Malvina Lindsay, were you the woman's page editor of whom the girl inquired what color her bridal costume should be? "White," said the w. p. ed., "for a maiden. Black for a widow. Violet for a divorcee."

The bride-to-be pondered for a moment. "I'll make mine white," she announced, "with a little touch of lavender."

There's no lavender in the Sunday Post, but lots of other colors. Comics are in color, of course, and the Rotogravure Section is printed in brown ink. Sports Section is on peach paper. And the "Amusements," "Our Town" and "Editorial" sections all have a touch of color added—green, orange, blue.

No color in the Main News Section. (Mustn't ever color the news.)

"They ain't doin' right by our poor Nell," says Jim Secrest's Sunday Post column, discussing the fact fumbling that goes on when testimony about D. C. affairs is presented on Capitol Hill.

SECREST

Maybe it's not their fault, Jim. Maybe they're as hard put for facts as this department is when trying to find out in advance what's going to be in the Sunday Post.

There's only one way to find out all the facts about what's in that big Sunday Post.

And that way is to phone NAtional 4200 and order the Sunday Post delivered to your home.

Dewey's Home Club Switches to Utilities Man, Then Swings Back

New York, May 24 (AP).—Without reversing its indorsement of Thomas E. Dewey for the Republican Presidential nomination, the New York Young Republican Club tonight expressed "positive feelings" for Wendell L. Willkie, potential G. O. P. candidate.

The resolution declared that Willkie "has been strikingly effective in focusing the attention of the American people on the defects of the New Deal Administration," and that "he, therefore, deserves the wholehearted commendation of the Republican Party for his efforts."

This action followed two special meetings of the club's board of governors, the first of which resolved by a vote of 10 to 8 to switch their support to Willkie, the second rescinding this resolution while awaiting tonight's meeting.

It was in this club that Dewey first was active politically and he is a former chairman of the board of governors.

The division of sentiment in the club came into the open during the annual convention of the State Association of Young Republican Clubs at Utica, where there was considerable activity in Willkie's behalf.

Despite this, a resolution indorsing Dewey was adopted by acclamation at the closing session, although some of the members of the New York City club refrained from voting.

Vermont Uninstructed

Montpelier, Va., May 24 (AP).—Vermont Republicans elected a nine-member, unpledged delegation to their party's national convention today after charging the New Deal with "blundering" and urging that the task of building up the Nation's defense be placed in G. O. P. hands.

The delegation, chosen at the party's State convention, will include both Senator Austin and Governor Aiken.

The convention earlier had adopted a resolution demanding "coordination of all the Nation's industrial resources for mass production of planes, ships and all other instrumentalities of war necessary for the protection of the country."

House Minority Leader Martin (Republican), of Massachusetts, keynote speaker, charged that the New Deal's record "constituted the best argument for return of the conduct of national defense to Republican hands.

"The safety of the United States," said Martin, "the financial well-being of this Nation, and the security of the people's liberties, all demand that we reverse this trend toward an ever-increasing bureaucracy and more complex government and get back to a more simplified form of government, fewer tax-eaters on the pay rolls, and more returns per dollar of salaries and expenses in government."

Nevada Unpledged

The delegation will be composed of Noble H. Getchell, National Committeeman; Stuart Williams, State chairman; Morley Griswold, Frank McNamee, Jr., Lloyd Smith and C. R. Pugh.

400 CCC Boys To Go Down to Sea

By the Associated Press

The Civilian Conservation Corps said yesterday it had released 400 CCC boys to the United States Maritime Service for Coast Guard training at Boston. An additional 100, officials said, will be given similar training at St. Petersburg, Fla.

James J. McEntee, CCC director, said the releases were in connection with a program initiated a year ago to train young men for the American merchant marine, and were not connected with President Roosevelt's national rearmament program.

Ovation Welcomes U. S. Chief Justice On Appearance

Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes inaugurated the District of Columbia Judicial Conference yesterday with an admonition to the judges and lawyers that the security of democracy depends upon them.

A hearty ovation welcomed the 78-year-old Chief Justice of the United States when he strode to the bench of the United States Court of Appeals, where he was introduced by the presiding Chief Justice, D. Lawrence Groner.

Chief Justice Hughes told the judges and attorneys:

"You can not maintain the institutions of democracy by forms of words or occasional vows of patriotism. You can maintain them by making the institutions of this republic work as they were intended to work, with the full confidence of the people."

Small Courts Are Vital

Chief Justice Hughes recalled that he once told a police magistrate, "Your court is more important than mine." Thousands of citizens face the inferior courts, he pointed out, for every one person who is a litigant in the Supreme Court.

Thus, he said, it is in the small courts that most citizens have their only experience with the processes of justice and their confidence in the Government depends upon the honesty and efficiency they encounter in these courts.

"Every judge, whatever his court, has a very important obligation to see to it, as far as his power goes, that the machinery of justice receives the confidence and respect of every citizen," Chief Justice Hughes said.

Judicial conferences, he explained, were one means to this end. He counseled the judges and lawyers to keep their meetings informal, saying it was a good thing for district judges to meet the appellate judges "face to face and tell them what they think of them."

Other Justices Attend

Chief Justice Hughes shared the bench with Chief Justice Groner, Senior Judge John J. Parker, of the Fourth Circuit, and Henry P. Chandler, director of the administrative office of the Federal courts. Facing him, with their chairs set in a semi-circle within the bar, were five other justices of the Court of Appeals and 11 justices of the District court. The spectators' seats were occupied by 100 representatives of the District, Washington Patent, Federal and Women's Bar associations.

Few of his hearers failed to remark the strength and vigor of Justice Hughes. He arrived at the court unaccompanied. Escorted by the marshal, Chief Justice Hughes walked briskly to the chambers of Chief Justice Groner, where he chatted with Judge Parker, Justices Bolitha J. Laws and T. Alan Goldsborough of the District Court and Justice Justin Miller of the Court of Appeals.

Poses for Photographers

Chief Justice Hughes agreed to pose for several news photographers. He posed with his features austerely set. When one photographer pleaded for some conversation to liven up the scene Chief Justice Hughes almost barked, "You go on and take your pictures." His eyes twinkled and he broke into a smile.

Judge Parker, who has 10 years of experience in the conduct of such judicial conferences, praised the pretrial procedure by which Justice Laws "streamlines" cases before they are tried here, saving much time for the court.

Chandler, who is the fiscal officer of the national court system, promised his support of the project for a new District Court building here. At present, three justices maintain their chambers and quarters in the new Police Court Buliding. Justice James M. Proctor will discuss this subject at the conference today.

Other speakers today will be Paul E. Lesh, Andrew D. Sharpe, Mrs. Elizabeth M. Cox, Lloyd H. Sutton and Frederick A. Ballard.

Indiana G.O.P. Names Willis For Senator

By the Associated Press

Indianapolis, May 24.—Indiana Republicans, meeting in State convention, today nominated Raymond E. Willis, chubby country editor, for United States Senator and Glen R. Hillis, Kokomo lawyer, for Governor and named an uninstructed delegation of 28 to the party's national convention.

Willis won without opposition. Publisher of a weekly newspaper at Angola, he was the Senatorial nominee in 1938, losing a close race in the general election to Senator Frederick Van Nuys, opponent of many New Deal policies. This time Willis will be after the seat of Senator Sherman Minton, ardent New Dealer, who so far is unopposed for renomination in the Democratic State convention June 27.

Action Unanimous

A bandwagon movement brought victory to Willis on the second ballot and his nomination was made unanimous on motion of his closest competitor, State Senator William E. Jenner, of Shoals. There were five others in the gubernatorial contest.

The veteran James E. Watson, who was named a delegate-at-large, has expressed favor for the candidacy of Senator Robert A. Taft, of Ohio. Former Senator Watson, now 75, was floor manager for Taft's father, William Howard Taft, in the 1912 convention and boasts of having attended every Republican National Convention beginning with that of 1876.

Will G. Irwin, national committeeman and another delegate-at-large, was host to Wendell L. Willkie, Indiana-born utilities executive, when Willkie, who has been talked of for the Presidential nomination, visited here recently. Other delegates-at-large are William L. Hutcheson, president of the International Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, and Archie N. Bobbitt, the party's State chairman.

Condemn Defense Waste

"Keep out of war" was the keynote of the platform adopted by the convention. The longest plank deplored "our present state of unpreparedness," and asserted there had been "a shameful waste of defense appropriations."

The convention also resolved that "Republican Congressmen be respectfully requested to oppose adjournment of the present session, lest our form of government suffer by such adjournment."

Gov. John W. Bricker, of Ohio, said in the keynote address that Republicans "don't want" a coalition government.

effective answer to a Republican campaign attack on the third term issue, and serve to weld the party into its old unity.

Wheeler's Stand Uncertain

The Vice President, most independent of Democratic candidates in the field, has frequently said he expected to return to Uvalde if he failed to win first place.

Senator Wheeler has even more firmly voiced his unwillingness to take second place on any ticket, and his friends yesterday were divided on whether he would alter his stand because of the grim change in the international situation.

Others observed that if the President can change his mind because of developments abroad, Wheeler might also. Third-termers who seek Wheeler as the running mate, point to his pulling power in the west and his life-long liberalism. Also cited is the President's call for an all-liberal ticket.

Postmaster General Farley, prominently mentioned for either first or second place on all nonthird-term tickets, could not run with the President as both hail from the same State.

President Spikes Coalition

Farley, privately opposed to a third term, has not publicly dropped a hint of his political intentions since Europe's war turned for the worse. But in Postoffice and national committee circles the betting is 2 to 1 that he not only would support the President in the present emergency but would want his old job back in directing the campaign. Friends often cite his Winston-Salem, S. C., speech in which he said in effect he would hold his duty to his country above his political beliefs.

Die-hard coalition talk, meanwhile, received a lethal blow at yesterday's White House press conference.

Roosevelt said all reports of Republicans coming into the Cabinet to form a nonpartisan coalition Government were cockeyed and made out of the whole cloth. And yet he said the coalition idea continues to be discussed baselessly and written about because the press got out on a limb and now the limb was sawed off. He called it a case of barking up the wrong tree.

Landon Sees Dewey

In New York, former Gov. Landon told reporters the President will have to take "a lot of men out of the doghouse" before the United States can have the mass production essential for national defense. Landon had breakfasted yesterday with New York District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey, poll-leading Republican candidate for President.

Other developments:

Already assured of enough third-term nominating ballots, the President picked up eight more at the Rhode Island Democratic convention yesterday, which gave the "great world crisis" as a reason for reelecting him.

Uninstructed delegations were chosen by Republican State conventions in both Vermont and Indiana, with the Indiana convention nominating for the Senate Raymond E. Willis, who narrowly missed election two years ago.

Sidney Hillman, president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers Union, announced his union would push the "Draft Roosevelt" movement.

Two Dies Agents Freed of Charges Communist Filed

Philadelphia, May 24 (AP).—Two agents of the Dies Congressional Committee Investigating Un-American Activities and a Philadelphia police lieutenant were freed today of charges that they conspired to violate the Civil Liberties Act.

U. S. Commissioner J. H. Malloy dismissed accusations brought by Carl Rieve, educational director of the Communist Party in eastern Pennsylvania, against Agents Chester Howe, George F. Hurley and Lieut. Albert A. Granitz.

They were arrested after a raid on Communist Party headquarters here April 2.

The commissioner said that in obtaining the raid warrant from Magistrate Jacob Dogole the committee agents did all they could to make certain it was legal.

Willkie Calls On Republicans To Restore U.S.

Utility Chief Says Sound Economy Is Vital to Defenses

By the Associated Press

Kansas City, May 24.—Wendell L. Willkie said tonight "the Republican Party would become America's first "fifth column" if it failed to undertake its vital task of restoring sound government and sound industry in our land."

"We are facing a period of danger," the utility executive, who has been mentioned as a possible Republican Presidential candidate said in an address prepared for a dinner of the National Republican Club of Kansas City.

"In ten years of continuing unemployment, of enormous government deficits, of stagnant industry and frightened investment, we have become weak and dispirited at home.

Land in Jeopardy

"Meanwhile, the world abroad has burst into flames. . . . Steadily the menace of war draws closer to our borders. Never has this "sweet land of liberty" been in greater jeopardy.

"Two weeks ago the President . . . asked for more than a billion dollars for a vast defense program. . . . Americans throughout the land understood and approved his words. The Nation was of one heart and one mind in its desire for adequate national defense.

"In the excitement of the moment, there were a few who advanced a strange interpretation of this unanimity of feeling. They said that there was only one man capable of handling the defense program, namely the President, and that the Republicans should abandon all opposition. . . .

"This theory can mean only one thing: That we the people should permit the New Deal to spend the billions of dollars for national defense just as it has spent the $60,000,000,000 that have passed through its hands in the past 7½ years.

Spending "Ruinous"

"And I say . . . that another four years of New Deal spending in this critical period will be ruinous to this country. . . ."

Asserting "we are today pitifully unprepared for even the most rudimentary defense," Willkie added: "The basic factor in national defense is a sound economic system.

"The first step in our defense system is to free American business from unnecessary restrictions . . . and to encourage the flow of capital into industry. This would create the best kind of army which any nation can have—an army of 10,000,000 working men. . . .

"At the present critical time there is something more important than reform—that is recovery. There is something more important than moral improvement—and that is economic strength. There is something more important than new social experiments—and that is the preservation of the Federal union."

Scalise Rearrested On Theft Charge

New York, May 24 (AP).—George Scalise, former president of the Building Service Employes International Union, was arrested on a grand larceny charge today immediately after his release from Tombs Prison under new bail put up in connection with his indictment for extortion.

District Attorney Thomas Dewey's detectives made the arrest. The complaint charged theft of $60,000 from the union through false claims for expenses.

Labor Board To Lay Off 50, Keep Saposs

Reduction of Staff Result of Congress' Slash in Funds

A reduction of more than 50 employes in the staff of the National Labor Relations Board has been decided upon as a result of the $362,000 Congressional slash in President Roosevelt's 1941 budget estimates for the board, it was learned yesterday.

In cutting down the staff, however, the board ignored the suggestion of the House Appropriations Committee that the division of economic research be wiped out. This section of the board is headed by David J. Saposs, who was under fire at Smith committee hearings for alleged radicalism.

It is understood that although the economic research division suffered reductions along with other arms of the board, Dr. Saposs will remain as its chief.

A spokesman for the board said yesterday that "50 to 60 employes" are slated to go, over half of whom are attached to the main office of the board in the District. Ten trial examiners and 13 review attorneys are included in the list. The balance is made up of other attorneys, field examiners and clerical help.

The only trial examiner to be dropped who appeared before the Smith committee is William Seagle. He testified on the Stromberg-Carlson case in 1938.

The $362,000 cut made by Senate and House has not yet become law, as the bill containing the Labor Board appropriation is still in conference. The NLRB grant, however, is not in dipute between the two houses. The President recommended $3,180,000 for the board, and Congress voted it $2,818,000.

The amendments to the National Labor Relations Act recommended by the Smith committee—which include abolition of the Division of Economic Research—are expected to come before the House late next week. At that time, both the Smith amendments and the much milder amendments proposed by the House Labor Committee will be up for consideration.

$20,000 Is Asked For Investigation Of Liquor Sales

There appeared little prospect yesterday that a suggested $20,000 appropriation for a study of local liquor distribution would be obtained at this session of Congress, after a disclosure that the recommendation is contained in a preliminary report drafted by Representative Eberharter (Democrat), of Pennsylvania.

The tentative report is expected to be altered at a meeting of the special subcommittee of the House District Committee next week before being submitted to the full committee.

Representative Shafer (Republican), of Michigan, plans to set forth his recommendations for changes in a letter to Chairman Eberharter.

Roosevelt Asks For Expansion Of USHA Capital

President Roosevelt yesterday reiterated his desire that Congress expand capital of the United States Housing Authority in the present session. The House last year refused to give the authority an additional $800,000,000.

Discussing the issue at his press conference, Mr. Roosevelt said he talked over the pending USHA bill in a conference earlier this week with Chairman Steagall (Democrat), of Alabama, of the House Banking and Currency Committee, and two other Representatives.

The President said he told the Congressmen he feels funds should be provided to continue the housing program in rural as well as in urban areas. As an example, he said, establishment of new plants in connection with the national defense program undoubtedly will require additional housing facilities in many small communities. This expansion could well be handled by a continued USHA program, he said.

Daniels Thinks Aliens in U. S. Are Mostly Intent on Eating

Southerner Who Discovers and Writes Believes Germans Loyal

Jonathan Daniels was discovered here yesterday up to his lucrative lobby of taking Americans and their sections of the country apart. Hitler and Mussolini might be interested to know what he thinks of German-Americans and Italian-Americans.

The North Carolina editor, who wrote "A Southerner Discovers the South" and "A Southerner Discovers New England," was profoundly observing the more recently Americanized elements—while discovering whether New Englanders eat pie for breakfast—and found them good.

He believes that most of the Germans in the United States would be loyal to this country in extreme eventualities and is convinced that the chief concern of everyone, even now, "is how to get something to eat."

"When they have a full stomach they all are nice," he said. He found them—every one—still wanting bread, and the security that brings it, rather than guns. He said he "wasn't fool enough to think that no spies" are hereabouts, but his observations made him believe America was very solid at the core.

Looking for material to fill a book, he found a "groundswell" for Roosevelt for President and still some sectional bickering, in spots, about "we are as nice as they" and "we are more hospitable than they." But he discounted all this as a localized business to feel very pleased over how soon the so-called foreign elements take root in America.

JONATHAN DANIELS

Among all kinds of people he found a strong sense that America should build its defenses.

"We really can't defend the United States until we understand it," he said—an observation not intended as a plug for his two books. Besides, he said, he had abandoned the discovery field of writing now and turned to writing a book on North Carolina, which he can do from his editorial desk in Raleigh.

He is visiting here at the home of his brother, Dr. Worth B. Daniels, 1516 Twenty-eighth street northwest.

Secretary Reveals Texan Will Yield On RFC Provisions

National defense needs yesterday had brought about healing for this session of a banking policy dispute between the biggest spender and the biggest lender in the Government, Treasury Secretary Morgenthau and Jesse Jones, Federal loan administrator.

Recently Jones sponsored a bill in Congress to allow his Reconstruction Finance Corporation to pay some of its surplus capital to Henry Morgenthau's Treasury, to help cut down the budget deficit.

Two Provisions Denounced

The measure contained two provisions which Morgenthau denounced:

An amendment to the Federal Reserve Bank Act permitting national banks to make 15-year amortized loans on improved real estate by banks, instead of ten-year loans, as is now the case.

A clause which would have given Jones authority now held by Morgenthau over RFC purchases of preferred bank stock.

Testifying in favor of the bill to Congressional committees, the blunt-spoken Jones in the fashion of his native Texas expressed doubt that the Treasury knew much about banking.

Yesterday the two officials appeared in the roles of Damon and Pythias.

Morgenthau Triumphant

Morgenthau, known at the White House both as "Henry Penny" and as "Henry the Morgue," summoned a special press conference and announced a blitzpeace ending for this session the banking quarrel with Jones.

Standing triumphantly behind his desk and brandishing at reporters a letter of submission—at least temporary—from Jones, Morgenthau disclosed that the Texas financier had agreed to drop the controversial provisions in the bill.

"Mr. Jones called on me and we agreed the important thing was for us to work together," Morgenthau said. Jones made all the concessions in the financial peace treaty, the Treasury Secretary added.

The peace document was a letter to Chairman Steagall (Democrat), of Alabama, of the House Banking Committee, from Jones, offering to drop the real estate loan and preferred stock provisions.

Jones wrote:

Without Change in Law

"I have had a conference with the Secretary of the Treasury this morning and am convinced that the preferred stock matters will be handled expeditiously and to the entire satisfaction of the RFC, without change in the law."

The letter, however, ended with this passage regarding real estate loans:

"I expect to come back to Congress at the next session with more complete recommendations on this subject, because in my opinion the present banking laws are unduly restrictive. Improved income bearing real estate, both farms and business properties, is entitled to credit and credit facilities as favorable as business and industry enjoy."

The day was also marked by continued cooperation between Government and business in the interests of the President's defense program.

Day's Developments

Developments were:

Three members of the national defense committee of the National Association of Manufacturers conferred with Morgenthau on industrial problems related to defense. The three were C. Donald Dallas, president, Revere Copper & Brass Co., New York; J. D. Francis, president, Inland Creek Coal Co., Huntington, W. Va.; F. V. Geier, president, Cincinnatti Milling Machinery Co.

Cross-licensing of patents to speed production of the 50,000 airplanes set as a goal by the President gained ground, and there were indications that the patent pool might be extended to the machine tool and other industries.

Commerce Secretary Hopkins, after all-day conferences with the Business Advisory Council, announced that he would continue to see its executive committee and representatives of key defense industries during the coming defense drive.

Nazis Hint Startling Expose From Seized Belgian Papers

By Louis P. Lochner

Associated Press Staff Writer

With the German Army, May 24. The story of how a daring parachute corps officer rushed straight to the Belgian foreign office when Brussels fell and seized archives which "will make the world prick up its ears," was told to me today by a German military official.

Among the parachute jumpers who landed in the vicinity of Brussels, I was told, was a dashing officer who in peacetime served in Adolf Hitler's chancellery as a liaison man to the foreign office. He also was an assistant chief of protocol.

As soon as the Belgian capital surrendered he rushed into the city with the first troops and headed for the Belgian foreign office.

Thus, 20 minutes after Brussels capitulated, the secret archives of the Belgian government were in German hands.

I was not surprised. The Polish and Norwegian campaigns showed that the Germans consider diplomatic booty quite as important as booty of materials.

Today in Berlin a spokesman declared it was "not impossible" that revelations of Belgium and Dutch connivance in Allied war plans would be published in a manner similar to those allegations made following the German invasions of Poland and Norway.

Fighting Grows Hard

Today the German armies put in one of the hardest days of its offensive, drawing narrower and narrower the pocket into which they have maneuvered the combined British - Belgian - French northern army.

The bulk of the German force is only 20 miles from the Belgian coast.

The German drive is relentless. Whoever we encountered today was determined to win—convinced of victory. And we learned that "orders is orders" for a certainty in this army of Adolf Hitler's.

When anybody has been assigned a task he tries to carry it out, come what may.

As we passed through a village 40 miles from Ghent we tried as usual to dart in and out among the slowly moving columns. At one turn of the road a heavy-set major accosted us, his hand at his revolver.

Soldier Not Impressed

"We are here as the supreme commander's guest," said my escort, "and we must travel along this road for awhile."

This formula hitherto had worked wonders.

But the major wasn't impressed at all.

"My regiment must reach Ghent before dawn," he bellowed. "I won't have anybody interfere with that task and I'll shoot down anybody who tries to use this road."

We managed suddenly to find this particular road quite unnecessary for getting to our telephone connection.

Salted With Veterans

In this army réservists and recruits are mixed.

Gen von Kuchler's aide de camp explained to me that "the one decisive moment in a soldier's life arrives when he receives his baptism of fire. Most young men are shaken when they meet the enemy in action the first time.

"From the first day of the war we mixed men who already had served 25 years ago with the young generation of today. The experiment had astounding success. The old veterans maintained such composure as hell broke loose that the young fellows soon rallied and regained their confidence.

"Now we practically never send untried regiments to the front. Each troop is liberally interspersed with veterans."

Sleep a Rarity

Marching 30 miles a day is nothing unusual for Hitler's army. Neither is getting along without regular sleep.

As we halted today in the little Belgian village of St. Trond a young air force infantryman rushed up to our chauffeur, an old buddy of his.

"How are things?" asked my chauffeur.

"Just fine—only we shouldn't mind a little more sleep," replied the infantryman. "We haven't had any real sleep for three days. It always has been marching, marching, marching."

Dutch Queen Says She Fled 'To Lead Fight'

Asserts Nazis Tried 'Everything' to Make Her War Prisoner

By the Associated Press

London, May 24.—Queen Wilhelmina said today she fled from the Netherlands to maintain her "active leadership" of 65,000,000 citizens of the Dutch Empire instead of becoming a prisoner of war by remaining at home.

"I have deemed it my duty," she said.

The Queen, tired but spirited, explained her position in an interview with correspondents.

She pointed out that of the Dutch Empire's population, the colonies embrace nearly 60,000,000. (The Netherlands proper has a population of approximately 8,000,000.)

"The Dutch fleet, with its proud traditions, has been able to join the Allied fleets almost unscathed," she said.

"This struggle is being waged by Dutchmen who have escaped from the nonoccupied territory and recruited abroad at the side of the Allies. . . . It is my task to give leadership and confidence to these forces and Hollanders in overseas territories who are willing and keen to make any sacrifices for the motherland."

"From the beginning," the 59-year-old sovereign said, "the enemy has done everything in his power to capture me.

"In the hands of the enemy I would have been powerless. As a captive of oppression I could not have been the rallying point nor an inspiration for my unhappy people."

The Queen and other members of the royal family arrived in England last week shortly before her homeland fell to German invaders. The Netherlands government is functioning temporarily in London.

"'I Shall Maintain,' is the motto of my (House of Orange) dynasty," she said. "That tradition which I could not worthily nor effectively carry on as a captive of the enemy, I shall forever cherish and hold high."

"The Dutch navy includes 21 submarines, four cruisers, nine mine layers, eight destroyers, five seagoing torpedo boats, a coast defense ship and numerous auxiliary vessels.)

Associated Gas Trustees Ask Help Of U. S. Agencies

New York, May 24 (AP).—Trustees of the Associated Gas and Electric System turned to Government agencies today for men to help them unravel the tangled affairs of the giant power and light concern which was placed in bankruptcy several months ago.

It was announced that Albert F. Tegen, member of the staff of the Securities and Exchange Commission since 1935, and Alex Speer, for the last two years chief engineer of the power division of the Public Works Administration, had been made directors and vice presidents of the Utility Management Corporation, owned by operating companies of the associated system and the concern which furnishes operating companies with management, engineers, accountants and handles other personnel problems.

Ernest J. Howe, financial officer of Utility Management, who was named to the board of the corporation May 8 in a general shakeup of personnel, was also made a vice president.

U. S. Organizes Big Hospitals On War Basis

By the Associated Press

New York, May 24.—The Government is organizing the Nation's hospitals for field service in this country or abroad—similar to the work in Europe during the World War—in case of a "national emergency."

Surgeon Gen. James Magee of the United States Army has asked the country's largest hospitals—at least six in New York City—to organize staffs for model units for such service.

[No District of Columbia hospitals have been included as yet in the paper hospital mobilization program, Gen. Magee told The Post last night. He intimated that several field hospitals would be organized here before the plan has been completed.]

New York doctors frankly say that the likeliest national "emergency" at the present time is United States involvement in the war.

The hospital organization plans have been detailed to the point where one New York institution's prospective unit already is designated as "Evacuation Hospital No. 7"—meaning, in war terms, a unit for service within 5 to 10 miles of a combat area.

The purpose of this "paper" organization, similar in principle to the Government's confidential "M-Day" plans which are locked in the safes of key industrial plants, is to have individuals ready to fill the important posts and have vital talent, such as surgeons, prepared to rush into organized service with a minimum of delay if the "emergency" materializes.

A typical hospital unit would have a basic personnel of about 40 persons—20 surgeons, 7 medical service physicians, 2 dentistry service physicians, an X-ray man, a laboratory man; a commanding officer, executive officer and quartermaster from the regular Army, and 6 men from the Army's administrative reserve.

Trotsky Lays Attempt to Kill Him to Stalin

20 Assassins Posing As Police Fire on Him, Kidnap Guard

By the Associated Press

Mexico City, May 24.—Leon Trotsky was injured slightly and a secretary-bodyguard kidnaped in an attack on Trotsky's home early today by some 20 machine-gunners, incendiarists and riflemen. The exiled Russian charged they were sent by Joseph Stalin. The assailants posed as police.

Sheldon Harte, 25, of New York City, who was on duty when the band of would-be assassins attacked the suburban villa, was abducted and his fate is not known.

Trotsky's 15-year-old grandson suffered a cut on one foot, apparently from a glancing bullet.

Trotsky, crouching with his wife in a corner of their bedroom, behind thick stone walls, to escape the machine-gun blasts through a window and bedroom door, was only cut about the face by flying splinters and glass.

Incendiary Bombs Thrown

Bullets peppered the walls, pierced two doors and ripped into the single beds where the Trotskys had been lying only a few minutes previously.

One of Trotsky's secretaries, speaking for the 60-year-old refugee from the Soviet Russia he helped create, declared "the attack was personally directed by Joseph Stalin."

The assailants, garbed as Mexico City policemen, hurled incendiary bombs into the yard to light the scene and then opened fire. One of the bombs crashed into the room of Trotsky's grandson, setting it afire, but Mrs. Trotsky extinguished the blaze with a blanket.

The attackers gained entry into the patio by tying up four Mexico City policemen in a guardhouse. One of the band posted himself near a shelter where off duty secretary-guards wer asleep. He called out in English:

"Stay inside and you won't be hurt."

Car Found Wrecked

The door of Trotsky's office was broken open and from that room one group machine-gunned the door to Trotsky's bedroom. Another gunner fired through a window.

Police of the suburban village of Coyoacan heard the gunfire, but when they arrived the attackers had fled, taking the New York secretary-guard and two of Trotsky's automobiles. One of the cars was found later, wrecked in a nearby ditch.

Police declared that the attack was "amazingly well-planned." They found a new extension ladder, a rope ladder with hooks for scaling, a portable electric saw, one or two crude bombs and numerous incendiary bombs covered with the tin shells of vacuum bottles.

Envoy Weddell To Fly to Spain

Richmond, Va., May 24 (AP).—Ambassador Alexander W. Weddell, now on a short visit home, plans to leave Richmond with Mrs. Weddell next week and to take off June 1 by Clipper for Lisbon.

Weddell, who has been America's Ambassador to Spain for the past year, said he was convinced of the desire of the ruling and conservative elements in Spain to retain its neutrality in the present European war.

"Spain has just come out of a costly and blood-letting civil war and wants a period of repose and tranquillity to put its house in order," he said.

CAA Set to Start Training of of 50,000 Civilian Pilots In Year as Soon as Congress Votes Its Appropriation

Program Scheduled To Begin July 1; Air Show Here Next Week

On the heels of a proclamation by President Roosevelt, the Civil Aeronautics Authority last night was mapping plans for an expanded airplane pilots training course to school 50,000 civilian aviators in the next 12 months.

During the day, the CAA also announced award of a $2,177,200 contract for the terminal building, a hangar and a heating plant at the National Airport at Gravelly Point. John McShain Co., of Philadelphia, was the successful bidder.

The CAA training program, work on which was begun immediately after Mr. Roosevelt told his press conference it was scheduled to start July 1, is to be financed by a supplemental appropriation by Congress.

CAA Ready to Start

The 50,000 men, between 18 and 25, will be drawn from three classifications, President Roosevelt said—from the 435 colleges at which the program is now operating and as many more as wish to start the training; a "large group of citizens" who now have licenses but who have allowed them to lapse, and men in the proper age category, but not in college, who desire to make themselves available for military service.

Chairman Robert E. Hinckley of the CAA said last night the Authority is "mobilized" to put the expanded program into effect as soon as appropriations were realized.

He outlined as steps in the new program the establishing of many new training centers, in addition to 550 President Roosevelt called for as a minimum, and the setting up of training courses for flight course instructors.

Flying schools, now in operation but which would ordinarily be discontinued next month until fall, will be continued throughout the summer, he said.

Air Plattsburgh Plan

The CAA chairman said the pilot training program might be correlated with a basic instruction system similar to the "Air Plattsburgh" plan of Col. Frank Knox to train 10,000 civilian volunteers annually.

Judging from inquiries at the CAA offices in the past week, many more than the required 50,000 students will apply for the training, officials of the Authority declared yesterday.

The applicants will "be weeded out," it was said, by rigid Army physical examinations as well as stiff intelligence tests at colleges where the courses are given. General physical requirements call for men between 5 feet, 4 inches and 6 feet, 6 inches in height, weighing at least 115 pounds.

Illustrating the method of operation of the training courses, CAA officials said about 100 students are now eligible for flying instruction after ground schooling during the past school year at George Washington, Maryland, Columbus and Howard universities.

While the CAA worked out its program, the aviation industry of the United States marshaled its resources for a visible display of its accomplishments and its strength here next week. Beginning tomorrow, Bolling Field will be transformed into an exhibition of planes and engines, civil and military; aeronautical devices will be displayed at the Department of Commerce and exhibits will be on view at leading hotels. The show will be in connection with the National Aviation Forum of 1940, which will begin Sunday and continue four days, ending Wednesday night.

Youngsters will have their day tomorrow, which has been designated Model Exhibition Day, with model plane contests from 3 to 6 p. m. at Bolling Field. Top prize in the competition will be a round trip over three airlines to the National Model Airplane Meet in July.

Monday has been designated Private Fliers Day, with pilots expected from many Eastern cities. Airlines Day will be held Tuesday, and Wednesday will be devoted to the military aspect of flying, as National Defense Day. Among features of the commercial exhibit will be Transcontinental and Western's new Boeing stratosphere airliner from which broadcasts will be made from 20,000 feet over Bolling Field. The ship will be christened here by Mrs. Robert M. Hinckley, wife of the chairman of the CAA.

Virginia Markwood, of Falls Church, Va., is one of the many participants in the National Aviation Forum's model airplane contest which will be held at Bolling Field tomorrow afternoon from 3 to 6 o'clock

Optical Firms Agree to Sell Wares to Allies

New York, May 24 (AP).—The Government and a group of manufacturers of optical instruments, including military precision apparatus, reached an agreement today whereby Britain and France, as well as the United States, will be able to obtain such instruments in this country.

For 21 years, the Government had charged, the manufacture and distribution of the instruments had been controlled from Germany.

The agreement—expected to terminate the Government's anti-trust action against the firms—was reached with the Bausch and Lomb Optical Co., of Rochester, N. Y., Carl Zeiss, Inc., the New York subsidiary of the German Zeiss Co., and other concerns.

U. S. Court Upholds Jail Sentences Of Long Henchmen

New Orleans, May 24 (U.P.).—The Fifth U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals today affirmed convictions of four men, including Seymour Weiss, hotel owner and treasurer of the late Huey Long's political machine, found guilty of mail fraud.

The four were convicted in the Federal Government's campaign which smashed the political power of the Long dynasty.

They were Weiss, Monte E. Hart, contractor; J. Emory Adams, nephew of Dr. James Monroe Smith, and Louis C. Lesage, former oil company executive.

Smith, former president of Louisiana State University now serving a sentence in the State penitentiary, withdrew his appeal.

Sentences of the five are 30 months' imprisonment and a $2,000 fine each for Weiss, Hart and Smith and a year's imprisonment and $1,000 fine each for Adams and Lesage.

Irish Seize Fifth Column Suspect, Charge He Had Secret Code

Accomplice Sought in Case After Hearing

Authorities Believe Missing Defendant Arrived Via 'Chute

By Hugh Smith

Copyright by New York Times

Dublin, May 24.—Rumors of fifth column activity, with which this country has been rife for the past few weeks, received startling confirmation in remarkable disclosures made before the special military court here this afternoon.

A middle-aged man, Stephen Carroll Held, of German extraction, appeared before the tribunal to answer to charges of having a code in his possession, with aiding and abetting another person not known to possess the code and of attempting to obtain information prejudicial to this state.

[An Associated Press dispatch from Dublin stated that police believe the man Held is accused of "aiding and abetting," was dropped into Dublin by parachute.

[The United Press later reported "wholesale arrests' following Held's detention.]

Locked Room Yields Papers

According to the story told the court by Attorney McLoughlin, who prosecuted for the State, a detachment of civic guards raided Held's house Wednesday night. Every room was searched except one locked room on the second floor. When Held returned home in the early hours of the following morning he told the waiting police that the key to the locked room was in the possession of a guest who had been staying with him for some days.

The police, the attorney related, then burst open the door of the locked room, which they found to be furnished as a study. Important documents, it is alleged, were found in an attache case on the table there had reference to a collection of information of a military character, regarding Irish harbors, aerodromes, roads, bridges, landing grounds, and the disposition of defense forces. Besides this and in addition to the code, there were, McLoughlin informed the court, papers relating to a wireless transmitting and receiving set and a box containing $20,000 in United States money.

When the guards searched the bedroom occupied by Held's guest they located a military cap in which were wrapped German and Austrian medals of the last war and a German air force badge of the present day. A black tie found on a mirror in the bedroom had a German tab with the word "Berlin" on it.

Held's story to the police, according to McLoughlin, was to the effect that on last Sunday night a strange man giving the name of Henrich Brandy came to his house, saying that he was a relative of a Mr. Brandy who formerly carried on a business in Dublin, and asked for accommodations. Held, in his alleged statement, said he at first demurred, but after a conversation with his mother agreed to keep the stranger at the rate of 50 shillings a week.

From the night of his arrival until Wednesday night the stranger remained indoors. On that night the stranger went for a walk with Held to Templeogue village when, Held explained, he parted with the stranger to go into the city to visit his metal workshop. He could not say why his strange guest did not return to sleep at the house that night or the following morning.

Opposing any release of Held on bail, Attorney McLoughlin said the Eire government authorities took a very serious view of the case and he would ask to have evidence taken in chambers. The court adjourned further hearing for one week, remanding Held.

Belfast, Northern Ireland, May 24. Seventy-six members of the outlawed Irish Republican Army were arrested in overnight raids by police of northern counties, it was annuonced today.

Fears have already been expressed in England that the Germans, perhaps with the connivance of rebellious Irishmen, might try to utilize the island for an attcak on England.

corridor itself. Flame throwers with a 70-yard range, which the Nazis had used against Meuse fortifications, were discarded for machine guns.

In the Valenciennes-Cambrai sector, the Battle of Flanders raged on with the results far from decided.

Great masses of Allied infantry pressed with all their weight south from Flandres and north from the Somme River in a pincers movement intended to hack off the main German spearhead to the west.

The fighting was bitter and indecisive.

The French communique said tonight that the battle for the channel ports extended from Boulogne to St. Omer, just east of Calais—but gave few details of the action.

The communique added, however, that the situation had "not permitted reestablishment up to the present of the continuity of our lines," indicating a hope that a junction between the forces separated by the German salient eventually would be made.

In the fighting along the Somme, the Germans were reported using strange new machines—bombs which, when exploding, set off sirens, and parachute torches—in an effort to create terror and chaos.

[The United Press reported early today that Gen. Weygand had thrown fresh French infantry divisions against the southern half of the German "bottleneck" in north France in the region of St. Quentin in a violent effort to sever the Nazi steel arm which stretches to the English Channel.]

[In this sector, according to United Press, the French earlier had claimed that their counterattack in the 25-mile strip between Amiens and Bapaume, 18 miles west of Cambrai, virtually had made a ruined no-man's land of this section.

[Huge bodies of infantry had met here, according to Paris officials, and it was claimed the French had made substantial gains into the German lines holding the salient.]

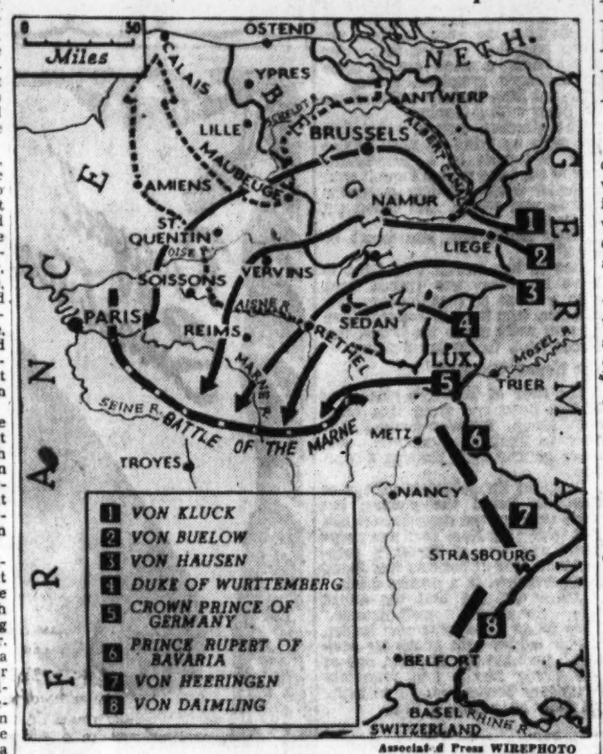
Will Von Kluck's Error Be Repeated?



Associated Press WIREPHOTO

Extreme lengthening of the German spearhead against the Channel ports last night caused observers to compare it with the German thrust into France in 1914 when lengthening lines of support caused Gen. von Kluck to turn from his Paris objective to contact Von Buelof on his left. It was this change of plan that enabled the famous French taxi cab army to halt the drive and precipitate the Battle of the Marne. Map shows plan of 1914 attack superimosed on map of the present battle, showing how German spearhead turned on its own left and may yet find itself as Von Kluck did, too far from support.

hand fighting was in progress in the streets of Ghent.

An official claim tonight placed the number of Allied planes destroyed in one way or another in the first two weeks of the offensive as 2,400. Daily the supreme command emphasizes the major role being played in all the operations by the German air force, stressing repeatedly the devastation caused by the "Stukas" or dive bombers. It was stated today that another attempt by detachments of the encircled Allied forces in Artois to break through to the southward was frustrated "with the aid of the air force."

"The Scheldt line is broken" read the streamer headlines in several Nazi newspapers.

Like the pincers of a huge crab, the German forces which are reaching the Channel ports from the south on the one hand, and those advancing westward in Belgium on the other, are closing inexorably it seems on "more than 1,000,000 men"—the Nazi figure—of the French, British and Belgian armies trapped on the soil of French Artois and Flanders.

"The Germans are getting ready for the kill," one observer summarized the situation tonight.

As the mighty armed forces of Hitler went into the third week of their offensive in the west—it began at dawn two weeks ago today—all attention was being concentrated on this pincer or encircling operation.

Hannibal employed the operation in his classic victory over the Romans at Cannae in 216 B. C. and it has become a preferred means of winning battles with a long line of German strategists and technicians from Clausewitz through the "Elder Moltke," Von Schlieffen and Ludendorff, down to the general staff as it exists today.

The official bulletins issued here today indicated that the pincers were crushing the enemy caught in their grasp far to the eastward, as well as closing in on the forces still resisting further to the west.

Hopelessly encircled, the last of the fortifications of Maubeuge on the French side of the Belgo-French frontier, was reduced and the city itself occupied, the supreme command claimed.

Though German mechanized detachments have been rushed up the French coast to the channel ports, there is still much fighting, it seems, to the rear of their eastern flank. Yet the official bulletin today asserted that German forces had stormed and taken the "strongly fortified" height of Loretto.

"A weak enemy attack south of Amiens" was repulsed, the supreme command reported and added that, "on the south front there are no special developments."

Perhaps, as the Germans claim, the operations which are now in a decisive stage, constitute the greatest battle of encirclement of all times. Certainly the prizes which Hitler will secure if he is completely victorious in this area pass far beyond what could have been imagined two weeks ago.

He will secure not only the capitulation of possibly the largest army ever to lay down its arms as a result of a single battle of envelopment, but also will secure control over four major channel ports—he already claims to possess one and possibly two of them—directly across from Britain. Besides Boulogne and Calais, the ports are Dunkerque and Ostend, leaving lesser harbors such as Zeebrugge, a German submarine base in the last war, out of account.

There is a close immediate relationship between the drive through French territory from the south to occupy the ports and the pincer operations to force the surrender of Allied armies caught in the trap. Obviously, as the ports are taken in turn, the chances of evacuating any considerable number of the Allied troops by sea is progressively reduced.

The Germans claim to be taking a heavy toll among transports and other vessels in and near the Straits of Dover. Thus today the supreme command reported the sinking of six Allied transports filled with troops and added that aerial bombs had damaged "a large warship, probably a cruiser, together with three destroyers.

The Fuehrer's gaze from general headquarters somewhere in the west extends beyond Flanders and Artois to England, the arch enemy. Across the channel, 44 miles from Boulogne, lies Hastings, near where, nearly 900 years ago, the most recent conqueror of England, William, the Norman, defeated the islanders in a decisive engagement.

Hitler aspires to emulate this William. In his view, the seapower of England, which has served for so long to turn back other would-be conquerors, can now be overcome by air power, a sphere in which the Reich has manifested marked superiority during the campaign of the past two weeks.

Undoubtedly the plan for the conquest of Britain, if it actually exists, involves the "neutralization" of an area or areas by bombing. Then the landing of troops from planes in line with the tactics in Holland. But it involves also an attempt at an actual landing by sea, an operation which would be covered by a great armada of the air. This may sound fantastic, but the tragic drama which has been enrolled during the past two weeks contains elements hardly less so.

Karl von Clausewitz wrote that war was an extension of diplomacy. Today Hitler's diplomacy is to smash "England, the arch enemy."

channel's high chalk cliffs inland, which haven't felt the stamp of an invader's boots for nine centuries, were guarded closely, behind a secret massing of heavy naval, air and land forces in strategic spots.

Road barricades stood ready at vital spots, and motorists in the pastoral green of rural England were stopped and made to show identity cards.

The heart of governmental London—Whitehall—sprouted machine guns and armed guards. One gun stood at the head of Downing street, where Prime Minister Winston Churchill lives. Another was planted near the foreign office. Army guards at public buildings were increased.

Strengthening of the English Channel defenses, begun months ago, proceeded with the greatest possible concealment because of both the "fifth column" danger and because the coast-line daily is being scouted by German planes, to the rumbling accompaniment of anti-aircraft guns.

As for internal dangers on the east coast, British leaders said they believed the "fifth column" roundup and the imposition of a curfew and other restrictions on aliens had put matters well in hand.

On the other side of the "tight little isle" the precautions were just as secret and presumably as intense. Asked today about defenses against invasion from the Irish sea, one spokesman snapped:

"We aren't fools."

I. R. A. Men Rounded Up

It is known that the British have been exchanging information with Ireland (Eire) on the subject and today, in the northern Irish counties of Ulster, part of the United Kingdom, the Royal Irish constabulary rounded up 76 members of the banned Irish Republican army and interned them for the duration—just in case they might help invasion by working from within.

Britain is considering putting airdromes in Ulster, the government told Parliament today.

That there still was work to do in the "Trojan horse" roundup, which began in earnest yesterday with the arrest of Sir Oswald Mosley and his colleagues in the fascist "British union," was demonstrated early.

Posters appeared telling of "a new British broadcasting station." Officials said they actually were intended to call attention to German broadcasts.

A Communist meeting, scheduled for Sunday in Trafalgar Square, a few blocks from Whitehall's main governmental buildings, was banned.

Hoare Sent to Spain

Implementing the new "dictatorship bill" which gives the state control over all persons and property, an order in council was prepared to empower ministers of departments using war supplies to tell manufacturers what they will make, what price they will get, what labor they will employ and what hours that labor will work.

A special mission to neutral Spain was announced, to be handled by Sir Samuel Hoare, veteran cabinet minister, as Ambassador to Madrid.

Moreover, Britain was reported reliably to be planning to send another trade mission to Moscow, to straighten out the difficulties in the way of a trade agreement. Russia has rebuffed British efforts to have the Soviet Union curtail the goods she promised Germany.

Out of communication with the United States more than a week, Ambassador John Cudahy yesterday informed the State Department that all American diplomatic and consular officers in Brussels were safe. His message was sent through the American Embassy in Berlin.

Cudahy's failure to mention any other Americans in Brussels was assumed to indicate they were also safe.

The department has not contacted Minister George Gordon in Holland since May 15.

1,500 German Planes Lost Since Drive West, British Say

By Dan Campbell

United Press Staff Writer

London, May 24.—Savage assaults by British bombers and fighters sweeping from the channel to the Rhineland have destroyed or seriously damaged at least 80 German aircraft since yesterday morning and have inflicted heavy damage on Nazi communications lines, the air ministry said tonight.

A communique claimed that "at least 500 aircraft have been lost by the enemy in France and Belgium during the past week, making a total of over 1,500 enemy aircraft lost since the invasion of the Low Countries."

In fighting since yesterday morning, ten British fighters and six bombers failed to return, the air ministry said.

The most spectacular claim made by the communique was that this afternoon that in an aerial battle over the nearby French coast 11 British fighters shot down 11 German Messerschmitts and seriously damaged three others without damage to themselves.

There was "intense air activity on an increased scale" throughout yesterday, last night and today, the communique said. Military objectives at Bavai and Hirson were successfully bombed and bombers severely damaged freight yards and a large German transport column at Givet, on the Meuse, the air ministry said.

Royal Air Force bombers attacked enemy columns in the regions of Arras and Boulogne Thursday, the air ministry said, and last night made strong sorties against enemy communications in northern France, southern Belgium and the Rhineland.

The communique said hits were scored on railway junctions at La Capelle, Beaumont and Gembloux, and Rollingstock was set afire. Explosions were caused in transport columns, the communique said, adding that Charleroi also was bombed, with an accompanying explosion.

British Jail Von Rintelen, Kaiser's Arch-Spy in U. S.

London Expected To Seize 'Appeasers' In High Places

By Homer Jenks
United Press Staff Writer

London (Saturday), May 25.—Prominent Britons who formerly championed "appeasement" of Germany may be snared in a "fifth column" roundup which swept across the British Isles early today with scores of new arrests, including Capt. Franz von Rintelen, chief German saboteur in the United States during the World War.

Rintelen, arrested yesterday and interned for duration of the war, was one of 59 new suspects, including six women, who were detained. It was indicated that these arrests were merely the beginning of a vast cleanup which probably will involve names prominent in British life.

Appeasers Included

These prominent persons, it was indicated, may include persons associated with Anglo-German institutions before the war and favoring appeasement between Britain and Germany before that policy was cast aside after Munich.

Rintelen was arrested in London, where he had been living in exile for several years. Although he had failed to become a naturalized British subject, he had professed to be ardently pro-British.

He appeared unescorted before the regional aliens committee this morning, police presented their evidence and the presiding officer ruled Rintelen should be interned in a camp in the western section of the country.

Until today, Rintelen actually had had almost unrestricted liberty of movement, talking frequently with high British navy men and government officials.

Said He Opposed Hitler

Rintelen has represented himself as an opponent of Hitlerism and since the outbreak of the present war he frequently has predicted the destruction of the Nazis. Recently he lectured in boys' schools throughout Britain on his World War experiences.

Last January he said the United States would be drawn into the war. Last October he convinced the aliens tribunal of his loyalty to England.

But authorities swept Rintelen into their net along with others they feared might aid the enemy.

At the same time, Communist headquarters announced that a meeting scheduled for Sunday at Trafalgar Square had been banned by Sir John Anderson, home secretary.

U.S. Speeds Efforts To Stamp Out Spies

Naturalization Service from the Labor Department, the Department of Justice considered plans to add 100 G-men to the 150 now engaged in counter-espionage work.

Senator Bridges (Republican), of New Hampshire, proposed that aliens be forbidden to buy, sell, own or carry arms on penalty of a $10,000 fine and deportation.

Senator Reynolds (Democrat), of North Carolina, offered a resolution for a special Senate committee "to investigate the activities of so-called fifth columns."

"Fifth Column Already Here"

In another resolution Reynolds called for a determination of how many aliens are employed by the Government, their salaries and the nature of their work. "The Fifth Column is already here by the hundreds of thousands," he said.

Senator Byrd (Democrat), Virginia, in a statement urged that aliens be registered and fingerprinted. He was convinced, he said, "that there are thousands of aliens in America illegally. In this time of great crisis, it is no reflection on the legitimate alien to require registration and identification cards."

Senator Clark (Democrat), Missouri, warned against "American born enemies within our gates." He specifically mentioned Maj. Gen. George Van Horn Moseley (retired), who "put himself in cooperation" with organizations working against the American form of government.

Senate debate on the LaFollette oppressive labor practices bill became sidetracked on an amendment of Senator Reynolds' providing that not more than 10 per cent of employes in any business might be aliens. The bill itself was the result of more than three years of hearings by LaFollette's Civil Liberties Committee and provides severe penalties for any employer who hires armed guards, strikebreakers or labor spies.

Services Oppose Bill

Already opposed by the War and Navy Departments and the Maritime Commission, as threatening uninterrupted supply of necessities in an emergency, the bill went to the Senate with easy passage foreseen since it was believed slated for defeat in the House. Yesterday, though, saw almost unanimous accord on the Reynolds amendment.

Debate on the measure verged on bitterness when Senator Smith (Democrat), of South Carolina, virtually charged LaFollette with un-Americanism.

"We have in this body," he declared, "men who either do not understand our form of government or despise it. Take this bill that we are considering today and read it in the light of real Americanism."

Senator Wagner (Democrat), New York, who is close to the Administration, remarked that a law in Arizona, similar to the Reynolds amendment had been held unconstitutional.

Lee Tells of Reaction

From other Senators, many of them New Dealers, came speeches asserting that only in America were as many as 10 per cent of aliens permitted to work, especially with many Americans out of jobs. Another New Dealer, Senator Lee, of Oklahoma, describing his reaction to visits to the Dies Committee in session.

"I have remarked aliens in those hearings," he said, "and their contemptuous attitude toward us, showing that they regarded our liberalism as stupidity—and I wonder sometimes where liberalism ends and stupidity begins."

Senator Smith referred to efforts of the Dies Committee to combat subversive influences and referred to "the sinister influence that is undermining our Government, throwing the doors open to the riffraff of the Old World and claiming that we are the melting pot. They have melted the pot—that is what is the matter."

Representative Dies, informed that President Roosevelt had dropped a kindly word for the work of his committee, immediately reciprocated.

"We want to cooperate to the fullest extent with the President," he said. "It is gratifying to me that he has assumed this attitude. With concerted work of all of us, we can do a much better job than in the past."

Dies said he had learned that many visitors from the United States are visiting the German embassy in Mexico City and said agents of an unidentified power "are checking all planes from the United States to see which of their occupants are visiting the German embassy and are giving this information to the committee."

There is evidence, he said, that "the Mexican government is waking up to the situation" but that many Germans had filtered in from other South American countries and many Communists from France and Spain. He said his committee would hold hearings soon on "the relation to the United States" of this movement.

The committee has been supplied with a great deal of information regarding what is going on in Mexico," he said. "I know they have a Gestapo and a Nazi Party in Mexico City.

"Recently I received information that all Germans in Mexico had been assessed a certain sum to carry on propaganda activities and the general work of the Nazi Party."

Swede, Nazi Talk At Norse Border

Berlin, May 24 (U.P.).—High Swedish and German military leaders have met at the Swedish-Norwegian frontier in a conference and discussed border questions "with good results," the official D. N. B. agency said tonight.

Participating in the conference were Gen. Nikolaus von Falkenhorst, commander in chief of the German armed forces in Norway, and the commander in chief of Sweden's armed forces, Gen. O. G. Thoernell.

Danish Ships With U. S. Cargoes Free to Sail

New York, May 24 (INS).—The British government has agreed to permit Danish ships with American cargoes, whether in America or other neutral ports, to complete their voyages without risking capture, the Danish shipping committee announced tonight.

Since Germany invaded Denmark, which surrendered without resistance, Danish vessels have been viewed by England as property of an enemy country and subject to capture.

German Officer Had Hand in Black Tom Blast, 32 Ship Fires

Arrest of Capt. Franz von Rintelen yesterday in London stirred many vivid memories of his activities in this country as a spectacular saboteur for Germany during the first World War.

Once a member of the Chevy Chase Club of Washington, the tall, suave and engaging captain served a wartime term at Atlanta. He gained a pardon from President Wilson.

Last year he appeared before the enemy alien tribunal in London and was permitted liberty of movement in England "subject to certain conditions." He had lived in England for the past 11 years and once was reported seeking British naturalization.

Money Went Easy

Two years before the United States entered the war, Von Rintelen returned to New York (he had lived here before) carrying a suitcase. In the suitcase was $500,000 with which to begin his work.

He made the mistake, he later explained, of getting chummy with David Lamar, the "Wolf of Wall Street." Von Rintelen wrote a book, "The Dark Invader," published in 1933, in which he states he didn't have a cent left of the $500,000 when his association with Lamar came to an end.

This did not stop his activities of planning the blowing up of railroad docks, starting fires on 32 ships and fomenting waterfront strikes. He said "there's more money where this came from," referring to the dissipated $500,000.

Writing in the current issue of the Saturday Evening Post, Emanuel V. Voska relates that Von Rintelen had established himself before the war as the "youngest banker on Wall street' and as a "darling of New York society."

He once told interviewers it was he who conceived the plan of blowing up the Lehigh Valley Railroad docks.

The chief of the saboteurs had his headquarters in the engine room of the liner Friedrich de Grosse, at its New York anchorage. It was there he and his coplotters hatched schemes and manufactured incendiary bombs which they placed in the holds of Allied and neutral ships carrying munitions.

Von Rintelen said he was sent to this country because the "clumsy efforts" by Capt. Franz von Papen threatened to impair relations between the United States and Germany.

Had 3,000 Assistants

At one time, as many as 3,000 members of German crews in this country were under his control.

When he began his "business" here he thought it woud be sufficient to organize water-front strikes so that delays would result in sailings of ships carrying munitions. He then began his placing of "fire-fingers" in the holds of American and Allied ships, to hamper deliveries of the munitions. These "fire-fingers" were pencil-shaped time bombs which were concealed in crannies, exploding after a ship was at sea.

Despite his activities on these fronts, Von Rintelen saw many cargoes leave the docks and heard of their safe delivery. The sure way of stopping the delivery of the munitions, then, would be to blow up docks and warehouses from which war material was shipped.

The plot against the Black Tom munitions dump in New Jersey originated in his mind in the spring of 1915. Before he could finish his plans, however, he was decoyed away by a message purporting to come from Berlin, but which was really sent by the British admiralty, which had obtained the German code.

He sailed on the Noordam of the Holland-America Line in August, 1915, and was taken off as a prisoner of war when the British searched the ship at Ramsgate. It was later that the Black Tom explosion occurred.

Hoare Appointed Envoy to Spain

Madrid, May 24 (INS).—Sir Samuel Hoare, who was air minister in the war cabinet of Neville Chamberlain, was appointed Ambassador to Madrid tonight in a surprise move of far-reaching significance.

The official announcement said that Sir Samuel's special task would be "continued betterment of Anglo-Spanish relations and the preservation of the present status quo, vis a vis, of Spain in the present war."

District Leader Urges Home Defense League

Suggested by Calvert, Member of Group Here During World War

A. D. Calvert, veteran Washington civic leader, yesterday called on citizens of East Washington to form a "Home Defense League," similar to the World War organization here, to "prepare Washington for any eventuality."

Simultaneously with Calvert's announcement of a mass meeting at Northeast Masonic Temple, Eighth and F streets northeast, at 8 p. m. Tuesday, it was learned the Department of Justice was investigating alleged activities of local law firms in behalf of the Nazi government.

Nazi Link Alleged

The investigation centered around information sent to J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, by a law clerk formerly employed by the firm. The clerk charged officials of the firm had received numerous communications from Adolf Hitler and Hermann Goering.

One letter, it was said, expressed the appreciation of the German high command "for what you have done for us."

Suspicions of the clerk were aroused, he declared, because of the secrecy in which letters bearing foreign postmarks were handled. The firm's president had issued strict orders prohibiting employes from any contact with the foreign mail.

League Formed in Last War

Calvert favored the reorganization of the Home Defense League, to be composed of men too old for military duty, to protect the city against possible invasion and to combat local criminal elements in case of a depleted wartime police force.

During the World War Calvert was a member of a defense league numbering approximately 1,000 men. The members, wearing badges but unarmed except for canes, patroled "beats" throughout the city in regular shifts of six to eight hours.

The police force was operating on a skeleton basis at the time because of the war mobilization.

Still Confident, King George Says

The British monarch, who spoke tonight, was the same King who only a year ago at Winnipeg in the midst of this tour through Canada and the United States with his Queen, broadcast the message in which he expressed the hope that world peace might be preserved. That he had not forgotten that occasion or the words he uttered then, in that transition of time between war and peace, was made clear by his opening words tonight when he said:

"On Empire Day a year ago, I spoke to the peoples of the empire from Winnipeg, the heart of Canada. We were at peace. On that Empire Day I spoke of ideals of freedom, of justice and peace, of the peace on which our commonwealth of freed peoples is founded. Clouds were gathering but I held fast to the hope that those ideals might yet achieve a fuller, richer development, without suffering the grievous onslaught of war. But it was not to be. The evil which we strove to avoid unceasingly with all honesty of purpose, fell upon us."

The King referred to the "long planned scheme to subjugate, by force, nations of the world against which all our efforts to peace were doomed to break."

In most solemn tone the King added:

"It is no mere territorial conquest our enemies are seeking. It is the overthrow complete and final of this empire and everything for which it stands and after that the conquest of the world."

Should the present drive of the enemy prove successful, he continued, this country and its people will be subjected to "all the hatred and cruelty which they have already displayed." Defeat, he warned, would not mean a temporary "eclipse" from which the nation could arise, phoenixlike, but it would mean the "destruction of our world as we have known it, and the descent of darkness upon its ruins."

U. S. Searches Liner Going For Refugees

Takes Extraordinary Precautions Before Ship Sails for Eire

New York, May 24 (AP).—Extraordinary precautions were taken by Federal agents today to safeguard the United States liner President Roosevelt as she started on a run through northern war zone waters to return American refugees from Great Britain.

Before the ship sailed every member of the crew was questioned, papers were checked and rechecked, the crews' quarters were searched and every cabin, companionway and deck of the liner was systematically examined.

Upon orders from the State Department, the vessel carried no mail, passengers or cargo.

Orders also were given prohibiting radio reports from the ship, which will run brightly lighted by night with flags flying and the national emblem on her sides easily distinguishable by day.

Hundreds Ask Visas

London, May 24 (AP).—Seven hundred Americans, eager to leave England and escape the dangers of Nazi invasion, applied for visas and exit permits to Eire in the last 24 hours, embassy officials said today.

D. C. Women To Cruise In Americas

Group to Join 'Good Neighbor' Tour to South Starting Soon

By Jessie Ash Arndt.
The Post Club Editor.

Mrs. Saidie Orr Dunbar, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, and Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, chairman of the division of Indian welfare, will return Monday from the 1940 council meeting in Milwaukee and will be here just four days before they sail from New York on the post-council cruise to South America.

Others going from here are Mrs. Frank C. Nichols and Mrs. Lawrence Shields. They will sail aboard the Santa Clara, of the Grace Line, with 21 other women of the General Federation, representing various States from Montana to Florida. They will be gone 52 days, and will travel over 13,000 miles, visiting Panama, Colombia, Ecuador, Peru, Chile, Argentina, Uruguay and Brazil.

The "good neighbor tour" of the clubwomen follows a season's study of South America carried on in clubs throughout the United States under the auspices of the international relations department headed by Mrs. Frederic L. Beggs, of Wyckoff, N. J. Mrs. Beggs will conduct this trip and, on shipboard, will hold daily seminars, preparing members of the party for their visits to various ports with discussions of the history and cultural development of the countries. The women also will have daily lessons in Spanish so they will be able to converse with their hostesses when they arrive in South America.

The plan, Mrs. Dunbar told me before she left for Milwaukee, is not to go as sightseers, but as good neighbors and to exchange constructive ideas with friends in the south.

Yesterday's program at the closing session of the council meeting, in Milwaukee, was under the department of public welfare, headed by Mrs. Edwin Bevens, and Mrs. Wiley, as chairman of Indian welfare, presented Fell M. Owl, of the Great Lakes Indian Agency, as one of the speakers.

Women Organize For Service

Tuesday, at the headquarters of the Society of the Cincinnati, a group of Washington women will see a film showing wartime work now being carried on in many fields by well-trained British women.

It is expected that, following the showing, plans will be outlined for forming local units of American Women's Voluntary Services for Mutual Aid and Protection. The idea is to prepare volunteers for emergency service in any type of disaster—each woman serving as she is qualified—cooking, driving a car, typewriting, etc.

Mrs. Gale McClean and Miss Marion Shouse have issued invitations for the meeting Tuesday.

D. A. R. Committees Are Announced

Scholarships Go to Sheila Breen And Mary Scanlon

Mary Scanlon, of Nativity School, and Sheila Breen, of St. Aloysius School, yesterday were announced as winners of four-year scholarships to Notre Dame Academy, North Capitol and K streets. Awards were based on a competitive examination Saturday.

Half scholarships will go to Eugenia Gaddi, Holy Comforter School; Audrey Foley, Holy Name; Jean Larkins, St. Gabriel's, and Teresita Mudd, St. Teresa's.

Notre Dame Academy music pupils will give a recital in the school auditorium at 3:30 p. m. tomorrow.

Weather Building Contract Is Let

Thorp-Rogoff Co., Chicago, yesterday was awarded a $186,940 contract for construction of the new Weather Bureau Building by the Public Buildings Administration.

The new structure will be erected on the site of the bureau's present home at Twenty-fifth and M streets northwest.

Owner Promises Pup Will Have His Day in Court—in Other Words, 'If They Love Janitor's Dog, They Can Love Mine'

The apartment house firm, 2707 Adams Mill Road Northwest, Inc., filed suit in the District Court yesterday for an injunction to eject a 12-month-old Chow puppy named Chaing from one of their first-floor apartments.

The project is a corporation enterprise largely owned by the tenants. Attorney Claude L. Dawson, president of the company, filed the complaint, which asserted that the rules of the place forbid tenants keeping dogs, cats or other animals without permission.

Although no permission was given him, the complaint said, J. B. McCoy, chief clerk of the District Morgue, is keeping the Chow, Chaing.

McCoy expressed surprise when told of the suit, but said he would have his day in court. He is not a stockholder-occupant, but leases his apartment from the estate of a deceased occupant.

"As long as they let the janitor have a dog," said McCoy, "I don't see why they should object to Chaing."

Baptists Hear Plan for U. S. To Aid Peace

Methodists Assign New Area to Conference Of Richmond Bishop

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

Atlantic City, N. J., May 24.—The Rev. Daniel A. Poling, of Philadelphia, president of the International Christian Endeavor Society, editor of the Christian Herald and national religious figure, tonight proposed a peace program to be offered by the United States.

Dr. Poling addressed the Northern Baptist convention here, urging his nearly 1,500,000 fellow members to follow the lead of the Christian Endeavor Society in pushing the peace plan "now, for after a decisive victory anywhere it may be to late."

His program included American support of a world agency for the administration of world affairs; America's support of police power for such a world administration, and America's support of open economic frontiers with free access to raw materials and natural resources, and with reciprocal trade agreements. Cancellation of European war debts to the United States also was part of the prgoram.

Bishops Assigned

Asheville, N. C., May 24 (AP).—The Southeastern jurisdictional conference of the Methodist Church assigned its eight active bishops today in accordance with the recommendations of its committee on Episcopacy. The assignments, which are for the next four years, were as follows:

Bishop W. W. Peele, of Richmond, Va., the South Central European conferences, in addition to his present area in the Virginia conference. Bishop Arthur J. Moore, of San Antonio, Tex., to the north and south Georgia and Florida conferences. Bishop Moore has had charge of Methodist interests in the Orient, Africa and Europe for the last six years.

Bishop W. T. Watkins, to the South Carolina and upper South Carolina conferences. He has been in charge of the Georgia and Florida conferences.

The recommended areas for the remaining bishops are about the same as their present assignments. They follow:

Bishop Urban V. W. Darlington, Kentucky and Louisville conferences; Bishop H. M. Dobbs, Mississippi and North Mississippi conferences; Bishop Paul B. Kern, Cuba, Holston and Tennessee conferences; Bishop Clare Purcell, North Carolina and western North Carolina conferences, and Bishop John L. Decell, Alabama, north Alabama and Memphis conferences.

Presbyterian Choices

Rochester, N. Y., May 24 (AP).—Dr. William L. Young, Parkville, Md., newly elected moderator of the 152d assembly of the Presbyterian Church of the United States of America, prepared today his choices of a vice moderator and chairmen of standing committees.

Dr. Young named the Rev. Ray Freeman Jenney, of Syracuse, as vice moderator and announced the following chairmen of standing committees:

Bills and overtures, the Rev. Joseph B. C. Mackie, Philadelphia; national missions, the Rev. Robert B. Beattie, of East Orange, N. J.; foreign missions, the Rev. Paul Calhoun, of Spokane; Christian education, the Rev. Albert J. McCartney, of Washington, D. C.; pensions, the Rev. J. Harry Cotton, president of the Chicago Presbyterian Theological Seminary; polity, the Rev. Jesse Baird, of San Francisco; social education and action, Ilion T. Jones, of Iowa City.

Postlude

By Ray C. B. Brown.

American-Ukrainian Congress Committee presents a concert of Ukrainian choral music Friday night under the direction of Alexander Koshetz in the Washington Hotel Hall of Nations.

Alexander Koshetz, well remembered here as conductor of the Ukranian National Chorus when that organization was at its prime shortly after the World War, was the guiding spirit of an enjoyable concert last evening in the Washington Hotel. The audience that filled the Hall of Nations was predominantly composed of delegates to the American-Ukranian Congress, with a large percentage of resident music-lovers. The singers whom Dr. Koshetz directed were selected members of folk choruses in Manhattan, Brooklyn, Yonkers, Newark, Jersey City, Elizabeth and Perth Amboy.

BROWN

Dr. Koshetz has made a life study of the folk music of his native Ukraine and is one of its most authorized exponents. His skill in choral conducting has been manifested so conclusively as to be beyond argument, and it was demonstrated afresh on this occasion by his handling of the voices. The singers were cooperative in some admirable effects of resonance and in the finer points of shading.

It was genuine folk singing imbued with zest and the interesting program was entirely devoted to Ukrainian music. In the first part a male chorus presented songs so arranged as to touch chronologically upon events in the history of the Ukraine. There were Lysenko's chorus of Kazaks in captivity in the sixteenth century, the seventeenth century "Song of Nechay," folk songs of 1768 and 1773, Stetsenko's "Prometei" representing the nineteenth century, and "Chervona Kalina" which was the martial song of youth when the Ukrainian republic was being formed.

A mixed chorus offered the second part of the program which contained two excellent arrangements by Dr. Koshetz of the folk songs, "Uzhe Lit za Dvisti" and "Oy Sama ya Sama." One of the most beautiful numbers was Stupnitzki's harmonization of the old Christmas carol, "Early One Morn the Cocks Crowed." In this group were also Ludkevich's "Thou, Chumak" and Haivoronski's stirring "Live On, Ukraine."

U.S. Jury Convicts Teamsters' Local And 26 Members

New York, May 24 (AP).—A Federal court jury today convicted Local 807 of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Stablemen and Helpers of America (A. F. of L.) and 26 of its members of conspiracy to violate the antitrust laws and the Antiracketeering Act.

The Government charged the union members had established a "vicious racket" through which they exacted approximately $1,000,000 annually from "over-the-road" trucking industries by threats and violence.

The jury found the union guilty of four counts of the antiracketeering indictment, and the individuals of one or more counts of the same charge.

U. S. Ukrainian Conclave Backs Foreign Policy

Congress Here Calls On Race to Strive For National Status

More than 1,000 Ukrainian-Americans meeting yesterday at the Washington Hotel expressed "complete accord with the foreign policy of the present Administration" of the United States.

The congress of 2,500 Ukrainian organizations of this country, in one of a number of resolutions, declared:

"Considering the present dangerous situation throughout the world, caused by totalitarian governments, the congress is fully cognizant of the need for measures necessary to the defense of America and her liberties. Therefore, we appeal to our people to support such measures of the Government of the United States in every way."

Call for Independence

American foreign policy, the congress said, "aims to free and widen the scope of international trade, to bring about a gradual world disarmament and recognizes the right of all peoples to self-determination."

The congress, attended by industrial workers from the coal fields and noted professional and literary men, was concerned principally, however, with efforts to liberate their homeland, now partitioned among Russia, Germany, Hungary and Rumania.

"We affirm once more before America and the world in general that the Ukraine desires to become, can and should be an independent state and that the recognition of her right to national self-determination is in the interest of her people and in the interest of peace in Europe," the congress declared.

The congress said 40,000,000 Ukrainians abroad "are subject to political oppression and economic exploitation."

"Remembering clearly the misery which drove us from our enslaved native land and appreciating the opportunities for a better and fuller life which we found in free America, we, Ukrainian immigrants and our American-born children, express a sincere hope that the Ukrainians in Europe will unite all their forces in their struggle for an independent, united and democratic Ukraine."

The Slavic delegates heard a number of Senators, Representatives and other speakers express accord with their hope for a free Ukraine.

Boland Encourages Hopes

Representative Boland, of Pennsylvania, Democratic whip of the House, told them he believed the Roosevelt Administration would remain in office until the international picture has "cleared," and then give its attention to the rights of Ukranians and other oppressed Europeans.

Representative Voorhis (Democrat), of California, declared the solution of this country's domestic problems was "quite as important as any other phase of national defense."

Representative O'Day (Democrat), of New York, said she had "almost given up hope" of organizing a conference of all women of the world to settle things peacefully.

Representative Sabath (Democrat), of Illinois, condemned "subversive and disloyal activities by people who have been accorded the privilege of living in America," and said the United States always could depend on the "loyalty and devotion to American institutions" of Ukrainians here.

Senator Guffey (Democrat), of Pennsylvania, said an independent Ukraine was one of President Wilson's plans.

Irish Fight Recalled

Senator Maloney (Democrat), of Connecticut, expressing sympathy with the Ukrainians' plight, pointed out that his people, the Irish, fought 700 years for liberty.

Other speakers included Representative Flannery (Democrat), of Pennsylvania; Representative Walter (Democrat), of Pennsylvania; Representative Rockefeller (Republican), of New York; Senator Davis (Republican), of Pennsylvania; L. W. Robert, secretary of the Democratic National Committee; Marie S. Gambal, of New York, American-Ukrainian writer; Stephan Shumeyko, of Jersey City, editor of the Ukrainian Weekly; Dr. Luke Myshuha, of Jersey City, editor of Svoboda; Miroslav Sichinsky, of Scranton, Pa., president of the Ukrainian Workingmen's Association, and Prof. Vladimir Timoshenko, of Stanford University.

Mrs. Laura Stovel Is Reelected Society President

Reelection of Mrs. Laura Stovel as president of the Washington Society for the Hard of Hearing was announced yesterday following the annual meeting.

Other officers are Mrs. Elizabeth Owen, first vice president; Miss Lena L. Burgdorf, second vice president; Miss Alice Alexander, secretary; O. N. Smith, treasurer. Miss Alexander is the only new officer.

New members of the board of directors are Mrs. Marguerite Neill and T. J. Stoeppelwerth. Miss Minnie Hill, Miss Viola Goodrich and Paul Pernecky are holdover members. Miss Elizabeth Brand is retained as executive secretary.

'So Alone With No One to Tell Me,' Barbara Says, 'I Made Mistake'

Woolworth Heiress Tells Why She Gave Up U. S. Citizenship

By Louella O. Parsons,
Motion Picture Editor Instrnational News Service.

Hollywood, May 24.—Countess Haugwitz-Reventlow, the former Barbara Hutton, has been the house guest of Countess Dorothy Di Frasso for the last few days. I have talked with her several times and have found she wants America really to know her story so it might not so often criticize her.

Her mother died when she was a baby and all her life she had to be suspicious of people who concocted wild, fantastic stories about her ridiculous spending of money.

I asked her if I couldn't tell the story she told me. After I convinced her that I was sympathetic, she agreed.

Of her return after her education abroad, she said:

"I was looking forward so eagerly to my coming home to the wonderful country I had heard so much about. I had no more stepped off the boat than I was accused of buying a dress set with pearls and diamonds and taking the money out of the mouths of the Woolworth employes, and of buying a huge, expensive yacht.

"Can you imagine my wearing such a dress—much less buying it? Futhermore, I have never owned a yacht."

"I have nothing to do with the management of the Woolworth Stores," she went on. "In fact I own very little stock. There are probably 500 people who own more than I do. My stock was sold when I was a child.

"One newspaper called me a snob, because I objected to the story that I had spent a million dollars on a party.

"Another absurd story was that I was continually at night clubs drinking and carrying on. Both stories are so untrue. I never drink and I certainly wouldn't spend a million dollars on a party where there is so much need in the world. I don't care for night clubs, and I am not particularly fond of parties. I like better to have a few of the people who are my friends with me.

"I have been ridiculed," she said, "for being married twice. It is my misfortune that my marriages didn't turn out happily."

BARBARA HUTTON

"Why did you give up your citizenship?" I asked her. "That's the thing all Americans have criticized you for and which we, who love our country, find it difficult to understand."

"I don't know how to explain it," she said. "But I had such a fear that something might happen to my little son. I was constantly worried over the fact that they might take him away from me, and I believed if I became a citizen of my husband's country such a thing could not happen—and that both he and I would be protected.

"I realize now I made a grievous mistake, and I wish someone could have given me advice. I have been so alone all my life without anyone to tell me what to do."

James Barnes Funeral Will Be Held Today

Funeral services for James W. Barnes, 65, a resident of Washington for many years, will be held at 2 p. m. today at the home of his sister, Mrs. Frederick Schafer, 3252 O street northwest, with burial in Glenwood Cemtery.

Mr. Barnes died Thursday in New York City. He moved from Washington about 30 years ago. Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Rose E. Barnes; a son, Lawrence H.; a sister, Mrs. Frederick Schafer, all of Washington; a daughter, Mrs. William B. Johnson, of New York, and two brothers, George W., of New York, and Maurice W. Barnes, of Washington.

Block Booking Ban Seen Boosting Movie Fare

Theater admission prices would increase by 15 to 20 per cent if a bill prohibiting block booking in the film industry should pass, Herman Wobber, Twentieth Century-Fox Studios general sale manager, told the House Interstate Commerce Committee yesterday.

In addition, many more pictures would have to be produced in such a case, Wobber said, entailing an additional investment by the industry of possibly $200,000,000.

'Compromise' In Row Over Liens Offered

House Bill Provides New Filing System For Auto Mortgages

A "compromise" bill designed to end a jurisdictional dispute between the Department of Vehicles and Traffic and the recorder of deeds' office was introduced in the House yesterday by Representative Kennedy (Democrat), of Maryland.

The measure provided for the compulsory recording of liens on motor vehicles in the traffic department, but with the recorder of deeds in charge.

Legislation to give the Department of Vehicles and Traffic full control of the recordings has been blocked in the Senate for several years because of the opposition of William J. Thompkins, recorder of deeds. The Kennedy bill was agreed to at a conference of House members and District officials.

The bill states that no lien on a motor vehicle obtained after the passage of the act shall be valid unless recorded as required. Applicants for certificates of title must state under oath whether or not there are any liens outstanding against the vehicle.

The legislation reveals that representatives of three District agencies will participate in the transaction of recording liens—the recorder of deeds, the Department of Vehicles and Traffic and the tax collector's office.

As there will be no opportunity for the House District Committee to act on the bill before the last District day in the House, next Monday, it can only be called up under suspension of the rules.

House Authorizes Unlimited Planes

aviation. Rear Admiral John H. Towers, chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics, testified the Navy has 1,367 combat planes in service, all but 464 of which are more than two years old.

Chairman Walsh termed this a "disheartening and discouraging" situation and suggested that the testimony might perhaps be suppressed. Senator Tydings (Democrat), of Maryland, objected, however, that the "people should know the facts," and the committee agreed with him.

Tydings and other members demanded to know what can be done to "get planes now" rather than in three to four years, regardless of cost. Admiral Towers reassured the group, declaring the Navy had all the planes it can use on its present aircraft carriers and shores bases.

Praising the American naval air force as the "finest in the world," Towers said that when the war broke out in September, Great Britain had only 240 combat planes in her navy.

Chairman Walsh, in announcing the unanimous approval of the measure, said he had been advised by the Navy the total program would cost about $2,200,000,000 spread over about four years. About $1,200,000,00 would be required to reach the goal of 10,000 planes, while $800,000,000 will be needed for air bases and $400,000,000 for personnel and equipment, he stated.

Walsh said he understands the President plans to ask a $100,000,000 deficiency appropriation this year to begin construction of the air bases.

The Army bill, which now goes to the Senate, would authorize the training of 8,500 pilots next year—6,000 more than at present—and would permit 6,000 reserve officer fliers on active duty. It also furnishes legislative basis for $132,000,000 of the $200,000,000 "blank check" appropriation asked by the President.

By vote of 145 to 110, the House approved drawing additional Government employes required by the Army from Civil Service rolls, over protests that the procedure might place "disloyal" persons into War Department jobs. To guard against such an event, the bill would permit the Army to discharge "fifth column" suspects without regard to Civil Service rules.

Two other amendments were written into the bill. They would: (1) bar payment of salaries to Communists or Fascists employed under War Department; (2) empower the President to embargo munitions, strategic materials, equipment or tools used for defense.

Representative Marcantonio, explaining his vote against the arms bill to reporters, said:

"I feel this is similar to the preparations of 1916, a step toward launching us into a war we should keep out of. We are now adequately prepared for a defensive war. This is preparation for an offensive war.

"I am not a pacifist. I am ready to fight for my country in the event of invasion but not for an offensive war in which we have no business."

Judge Neilson Warns 'Wild' Motorists

New Appointee Will Crack Down On Flagrant Offenders

By Howard F. Wentworth

Judge George D. Neilson, newest appointee to the Police Court bench, served notice on Washington motorists yesterday that he will have neither "sympathy nor consideration" for flagrant traffic offenders.

Drawing a distinction between life-imperiling offenses and minor parking infractions, Judge Neilson told members of the American Automobile Association advisory board at a luncheon meeting in the Willard Hotel:

"The sooner we get major traffic offenders off our streets, the better it will be for our community. It is up to enforcement officials to once and for all let it be known they will not tolerate the actions of these life and property destroyers.

"They are criminals and will be treated as such," he said.

On the other hand, minor parking violations where the offense is unintentional and neither life nor property is in danger will be treated with understanding, said Judge Neilson.

Capt. Arthur Miller, recent graduate of the Northwestern University traffic safety institute, who on June 1 will become an inspector in the Police Department, discussed preliminary plans for the formation of an accident investigation bureau here.

He said approximately 60 additional policemen will be needed to man the proposed unit. The institute faculty at Northwestern, Miller said, strongly advocated a traffic court separate from all other judicial branches with a full-time judge. Such a movement is now under way here, supported by the A. A. A.

Jury Asks Jordan Be Pardoned Or Get New Trial

A footnote to the long history of the case of Thomas Jordan, serving a life term as the "bus boy" murderer of Mrs. Lizzie Jaynes in the Garden T. Shoppe murder holdup almost a decade ago, was uncovered yesterday on Capitol Hill.

Representative Paul Shafer (Republican), of Michigan, disclosed that a petition had been presented to President Roosevelt by a New York jury asking that Jordan be granted a pardon if a new trial cannot be ordered. A copy of the petition was sent to him by Sidney Struble, a New York attorney.

The jury based its plea on evidence introduced in libel suits filed against Macfadden Publications, Inc., by Leslie C. Garnett, former United States attorney; Roger Robb, former United States attorney, and Harry T. Whelan, Washington attorney.

The copy was sent to Shafer because he was a member of a special "crime subcommittee" of the House District Committee which investigated the Jordan case in 1937.

D. C. Police Want Murder Suspect 'Dead or Alive'

Local police yesterday broadcast a lookout for Jack Drucker, 34, sought by New Rork authorities for two murders in connection with "Murder, Inc."

A reward of $500 was offered for him—"dead or alive."

Drucker was described as 5 feet 7 inches tall, weighing 170 pounds. He has brown hair and eyes and is a steamfitter by trade. Police were cautioned to be careful as Drucker "is a general gangster and very dangerous."

Symphony Pledges Rise to $103,124

Latest available figures in the drive to raise funds for the National Symphony Orchestra's 1940-1941 season show a total of 8,740 pledges, amounting to $103,124.35, it was announced at the campaign headquarters yesterday.

With the report of $102,564.31 at the meeting Wednesday, the continuance of the orchestra in the forthcoming season was assured. The drive continues informally until June 15, when the contract with the musicians' union will be signed. The minimum goal sought is $107,600.

Rockefeller, Jr., Gives $100,000 To Red Cross

Drive for $10,000,000 Tops $2,000,000 Mark; D. C. Gifts $35,094

British, Belgian and French governments yesterday appealed to the United States for aid to vast numbers of war refugees, while the American Red Cross reported its $10,000,000 war relief fund had reached $2,128,176.

ALLEN

The Marquess of Lothian, British Ambassador, told Secretary Hull that tens of thousands of Belgian refugees had reached England and were being cared for. Submarines, and military demands upon British shipping, however, made transportation of any more impossible, he said.

The Red Cross reported its total swelled by contributions ranging from $100,000 by the family of John D. Rockefeller, jr., to $25 a Syracuse, N. Y., barber had saved for a new suit.

Citizens of the District had raised $35,094.18 of the District chapter's quota of $150,000. Since Wednesday Red Cross volunteers operating booths in banks and stores have received $1,246.36, it was announced. The drive started May 10.

Among Washingtonians who have contributed $100 or more, the local chapter revealed, are Mr. and Mrs. Edward B. Burling, Mrs. K. V. H. Wylie, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Meyer, Miss M. G. Durant and Mr. and Mrs. John W. Davidge.

Richard F. Allen, manager of the Eastern area of the American Red Cross, yesterday complimented the District chapter. Leaving today by Clipper for Paris, he said "the people of France are overwhelmed, and our problem at first will be to assist these people with the refugees."

So desperate is the plight of 5,000,000 French and Belgian refugees that the Red Cross, Chairman Norman H. Davis said, will send a special "mercy ship" laden with $1,000,000 worth of supplies to France early next month.

"These pitiful victims of inhumane warfare," Davis said, "need everything we can supply—clothes, food, shelter. We are concentrating our relief in France because the greatest need is there."

He added that Wayne Chatfield Taylor, Red Cross representative in Europe, had cabled that French stores soon would be exhausted by needs of "the greatest mass migration in history."

While it strained every nerve to relieve suffering in war-ridden areas, the Red Cross was endeavoring, through agents abroad, to learn news of the families of 900 Dutch seamen stranded at Hoboken, N. J., and of four American ambulance drivers missing in France. These are Albert Raymond, Chicago; Louis Wehrle, Berne, Ind.; Murray Shipley, Cincinnati, and Jan Glowacki, Jersey City.

In sending his $100,000 contribution, Rockefeller wrote that "because the need is widespread and so appalling, a goal of $10,000,000 would seem all too little in the face of the most ghastly tragedy of modern times."

Besides Rockefeller and the anonymous Syracuse barber, other notable contributions yesterday included $20,000 from the Ford Motor Co., and $26,000 from Miss Helen Frick, Pittsburgh.

A relief appeal will be broadcast tomorrow from 1 to 2 p. m. over the combined facilities of the National Broadcasting Co., Columbia Broadcasting System and Mutual Broadcasting System in a program donated by radio, stage and screen headliners. These will include Eddie Cantor, Jack Benny, Bob Hope, Judy Garland, Jimmy Durante, Vivien Leigh, Gertrude Lawrence, Ted Husing and Clifton Fadiman.

Dr. Metcalf, Forest Expert, Ends His Life

Dr. Haven Metcalf, 64, head of the Department of Agriculture's Division of Forest Pathology, found shot to death in the Zoo grounds early yesterday, was declared a suicide last night.

DR. METCALF

Two notes, one at his home, 1841 Summit place northwest, the other in his pocket, told of his intention to take his own life because of "hopeless ill health."

Zoo Policemen Robert Ewell and George D. McLeod discovered Dr. Metcalf's body under a tree near Adams Mills road and Klingle street northwest, about 6:30 a. m. A doctor from Emergency Hospital said he had been dead about 12 hours. He suffered a bullet wound in the right temple, fired from a .38-caliber revolver.

Solomon Acree, Bureau of Standards chemist, with whom Dr. Metcalf made his home, reported him missing late Thursday. A note found in Dr. Metcalf's rooms said: "If my plans do not go amiss, my body will be found in the Zoo near Adams Mill road or in Rock Creek Park near Bluff Bridge."

The note in the dead man's pocket, addressed to the coroner, said: "I am about to attempt suicide. Reason—hopeless ill health. No one knows of my plans and no one is responsible but me."

Friends of Dr. Metcalf said he suffered an apparently incurable disease and recently had been despondent.

Dr. Metcalf was born in Winthrop, Me., August 6, 1875. He received B. A. and M. A. degrees at Brown University, and took post-graduate work at Harvard University before receiving a Ph. D. from the University of Nebraska in 1902.

Four years later he went to work at the Department of Agriculture and organized the Division of Forest Pathology in 1907. Dr. Metcalf received high commendations for evolving a cure for soft rot in sugar beets and tracing a chestnut tree blight to a fungus transmitted to this country from China.

Dr. Metcalf's body last night was at the Ryan funeral home, 317 Pennsylvania avenue southeast.

Mrs. H. W. Blakeley, Wife of Officer, Dies on Visit Here

Mrs. Jeanne de la Dillebeuvre Blakeley, wife of Maj. Harold W. Blakeley, Field Artillery, U. S. Army, died yesterday at the home of her sister, Mrs. Louise Bultman, 3717 Woodley road northwest.

A native of New Orleans, La., Mrs. Blakeley came here from Fort Leavenworth, Kans., a week ago to visit her sister. Her husband is stationed at the fort.

Mrs. Blakeley had lived in Washington when Maj. Blakeley was stationed at the Army War College in 1938-39 and previously when he was on duty at Fort Myer.

Surviving, besides Mrs. Bultman, are two other sisters, Mrs. Powell Rhea, of Norfolk, Va., and Mrs. Charles H. Day, of Atlanta, Ga.

The funeral will be at 9:30 a. m. today from Fort Myer Chapel. Burial will be in Arlington Cemetery.

Alexander Ellis, ICC Statistician, Dies Here at 64

Alexander E. Ellis, 64, statistical clerk in the Interstate Commerce Commission, died of a heart attack yesterday at his home, 7200 Eighth street northwest.

Mr. Ellis was born in Hartford, Ky., and received his education at Hartford College and Valparaiso College, Ind. During the Spanish-American War he served with the Army. About 25 years ago he came to Washington as an employe of the Adjutant General's Office of the War Department, later joining the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Josephine Ellis, of Washington, and three brothers, Wayne, of Sturgess, Ky., and Stephen and Samuel, of Hartford, Ky. Mr. Ellis was a Mason and a member of the Nelson A. Miles Post of Spanish War Veterans.

Funeral services will be at 10:30 a. m. Monday at the Hines funeral home, 2901 Fourteenth street northwest. Burial is in Arlington Cemetery.

Color and Girls Are Added to Fair At San Francisco

San Francisco, May 24 (AP).—More color and more girl shows will bid for more cash customers at the revamped Golden Gate International Exposition as it opens tomorrow at 9 a. m. with the approval of a referee in bankruptcy.

Its buildings trimmed with all the colors of the rainbow, the 400-acre Treasure Island has taken on the appearance of a painting from a book of dreams. The drab-tan motif of a year ago is gone.

Nearly 150 commercial displays in the huge exhibit palaces were set for the crowds, as were those of 8 States and 13 foreign nations. New attractions were added to the gayway. Most of last year's leading attractions were at their old stands, including Sally Rand's Nude Ranch and the incubator baby show.

Salvation Army Aide Killed at Front

Minenapolis, May 24 (AP).—Mrs. Herbert Climpson, wife of the deputy director of Salvation Army war services in France, was reported "killed by enemy action" in a letter received by Brigadier Thomas H. Leech, northern territory Salvation Army divisional secretary, in Minneapolis today.

The letter said Mrs. Climpson was believed killed while carrying refreshments to troops as they came out of action.

Gen. Anderson's Rites At Arlington Today

Funeral services for Brig. Gen. Edward D. Anderson, United States Army, retired, who died in Walter Reed Hospital Wednesday, will be conducted at 10:30 a. m. today at the Fort Myer Gate of Arlington National Cemetery.

Burial will be with full military honors in the eastern section of the cemetery. Chaplain George F. Rixey will officiate.

Conferees Agree On Bonneville Fund

A $3,400,000 appropriation for a hydroelectric power plant at Bonneville Dam on the Columbia River in Oregon was agreed upon yesterday by Senate and House conferees. The House members had earlier supported an appropriation of only $800,000.

Everett Sanderses Fete Indiana Alumni Today

The Indiana University Alumni Association of Washington will be entertained at 4 p. m. today by Mr. and Mrs. Everett Sanders at Crestleigh, their country home on the Colesville pike near Ashton, Md. Mrs. Sanders has chosen a committee to assist her, as follows: Mrs. Douglas Whitlock, Mrs. James L. Fieser, Mrs. Paul E. Tombaugh, Mrs. R. R. Sayers, Mrs. Jerome Shay and Miss Helen Greeley.

Uneasy Eire

Hour by hour the possibility of the first real invasion of English soil in nearly nine centuries draws nearer. And it would be strange, indeed, if the people of England were not at this moment asking themselves about the attitude of a close neighbor with whom they have long lived on far from harmonious terms.

It would be even stranger, however, if the Irish people were not at last fully aware that the peril of England is also their own. The strategic importance of Ireland to the contemplated conquest of Britain is too great and too obvious to have been overlooked in German plans.

It is not at all fantastic to suggest that aerial invasion—as distinct from aerial bombardments—might be attempted in Ireland first. For it takes no expert to perceive that the conquest of Britain could be much accelerated by possession of bases to the west as well as to the east, between which Nazi planes could shuttle. The practicability of any such plan would, of course, depend upon whether parachute troops, supported by sympathizers within the country, could occupy Irish landing fields until reinforcements were sent in sufficient numbers by transport plane and perhaps even by sea.

One thing is certain. German troops in Ireland would today be greeted by no such cries of welcome as once were waiting in Irish throats for those battalions of Gen. Hoche which Ireland was never to see. Nor is there the least reason to doubt that an invasion of Eire would be as bitterly resisted by the Irish National Army as Mr. De Valera has promised.

But it is the question of the "Fifth Column" that in this hour must perturb English and Irish minds alike. These misgivings concern the secret organization called the Irish Republican Army, which for more than a year has waged its own private and clandestine war with Britain. Nobody save its leaders knows just how strong this organization may be. Estimates are as high as 5,000 men. Many of these men, it is true, are now imprisoned in Eire and in Ulster. But many are still at large.

Leaders of the I. R. A. have repeatedly denied any collusion, or even any contact, with the Nazis. This may be the truth. And so strange and complex is the psychology of extremist Irish patriotism, and so wholly irrational are these times, that it is possible to visualize men of the I. R. A. fighting beside British troops against an invader.

But of that there is no assurance, and the probabilities are perhaps on the other side. For the Nazis themselves have illustrated to a terrified world into what an abyss of self-destructive madness men may be led by the mystic cults of race and vengeance.

Up To Parents

District traffic authorities, playground officials, public schools and civic organizations have opened their summer campaign to prevent accidents to children on the streets. When the schools close, and even before, the cooperation of every parent will be needed to keep the youngsters in safe areas of play.

At a time when civilization abroad has failed so dismally to provide security, our daily responsibility toward those children in our care must not be obscured. The peril to thousands in the war zones should only emphasize our duty to avert a recurrence of last year's situation, when 31 children died on Washington streets between May 1 and October 1.

District officials are sparing no effort to keep children out of traffic. Teachers have been requested to caution pupils repeatedly, and playground supervisors will continue the campaign of education during the summer. Over 100 playgrounds will be available. Moreover, it is being demonstrated that backyard play equipment can be constructed of inexpensive materials. Both school and playground authorities, however, point out that child safety is primarily the responsibility of parents. Without their help no labors for safety can succeed.

On "Fifth Columns"

There is an increasing amount of highly inflammatory talk about a so-called "Fifth Column" in the United States. Seemingly the phrase refers to anybody and everybody who does not automatically regard the Nazi movement as a creation of the devil. One might almost imagine, from the character of some current observations, that this country is already at war with Germany and that self-defense is being materially hampered by subversive elements within our gates.

It would be well to get this picture in perspective. For there is certainly no indication of national strength, but only of hysteria, fright and weakness, in much of the present emotional outburst. A people which is strong, and quietly confident of its internal unity, will not shriek despairingly from the housetops as some Americans are now doing. Such procedure can only convey the impression that our democracy is sunk in hopeless apathy and rotten ripe for dissolution.

Undoubtedly there are foreign agents in this country, working actively for alien governments, who should be—and are being—closely watched by FBI and secret service operatives. Around some of these agents a web of evidence has already been collected. At the proper critical moment they can be arrested and called to account for their treasonable activities.

There are, on the other hand, many sober, reputable and wholly patriotic citizens who have not forgotten that we are at peace with Germany, who are not convinced that Germany's recent successes constitute valid reason for altering that relationship, and who are unimpressed by the Stygian premonitions of Cassandras who proclaim that all, including honor, will be lost if Hitler triumphs.

The prophets of doom may well be correct in their analysis. But that is not the point. The point is that if an American sincerely believes otherwise, and does not regard the fate of his country as completely contingent on the outcome of the fighting in Europe, he has every right to hold, proclaim and maintain this opinion.

Whether or not this individual opinion coincides with the belief of the President, his military advisers, newspaper editors, columnists and taxicab drivers is a secondary matter. The important factor is the unassailable right of the American citizen to his own viewpoint, popular or unpopular, rational or irrational, so long as his country remains at peace. On that right to freedom of individual opinion, the American democracy is based. If it disappears, our democracy also goes.

The British and French nations are at war—fighting for their very existence against a powerful and unscrupulous foe. It is probably inevitable that in this emergency they should abandon democracy, outlaw potential fifth columns and arrest those whom either of their governments regard as impediments to totalitarian effort after the German formula.

The United States, however, is not at war. Our Government, rightly or wrongly, is still pursuing a policy of strict neutrality towards all belligerents. As long as this is the case the right of the individual American to hold and express his own opinion on the conflict is inherent and unassailable. To argue otherwise is to emulate Hitler while denouncing him.

One might believe, to listen to some current assertions, that all who are not overtly feverishly proud-fly are by that token pro-German and "Fifth Column" in their outlook. The use of the phrase in that connection is ominous. It implies the undermining of an essential safeguard of democracy, which is the protection of minority opinion—no matter how unpopular and unwelcome they may be.

The most dangerous "Fifth Column," it may be argued, is composed of those who at this time seek to overawe and silence unorthodox opinions. It is composed of those who would stigmatize as traitorous all ideas and thoughts which do not coincide with what they personally consider desirable. The "Fifth Column" may be eager to defend the United States. But it has no wish to defend democracy.

The King To His People

It was a moving speech which King George addressed yesterday—and addressed to the people of the farflung territories over which he reigns. And it was not less moving for his refusal to minimize the desperate danger confronting the empire on which, as has been proudly said, "the sun never sets."

That this sun, if it sets for Britain now, will never rise again was the somber prediction of the young monarch, who only last June was charming Washington with his simple democratic manners. "Defeat will not mean some brief eclipse," he said. "It will mean destruction of our world as we have known it and the descent of darkness upon its ruins."

The full significance of Anglo-Saxon institutions, said King George, stands out in clearer outline for the grim shadow which lengthens towards them. He might have added that now, as in all times of test, the Anglo-Saxon character is at its best when the storm gathers and darkness falls.

There is no weakness, no hesitation in Britain now. The issue is joined, and with its joining English courage and English determination are rising, at least as fast as the mounting peril so close at hand.

The Relief Bill

With only 21 dissenting votes the House has passed a relief bill which contemplates an outlay by the WPA about equal to that for the current fiscal year. While the sum actually appropriated for WPA is lower by a half billion dollars than the appropriations for the current fiscal year, the President is given discretionary power, as requested, to spend the entire sum within the first 8 months.

President Roosevelt has indicated that he does not believe any reduction in the current rate of WPA spending will be justified during the coming year, and Col. Harrington has voiced the same opinion. Consequently, it is strongly indicated that the next Congress will be confronted with requests for an additional $500,000,000 to cover the needs of the last third of the year.

The relief bill carries a number of controversial amendments, approved on the floor of the House. For example, the clause providing for the dropping of workers continuously employed for 18 months has been liberalized to exempt from rotation heads of families 45 years of age or over.

Since the Federal Government has never been able to provide work for all the unemployed, it seems unfair to keep any group continuously on WPA rolls to the exclusion of others equally deserving of WPA jobs.

Following a strongly worded recommendation from President Roosevelt the House also deleted a section of the relief bill limiting the amount of the Federal contribution on all WPA construction projects to $50,000. The Administration insisted that the $50,000 limit would prevent the employment of WPA labor on many useful projects and encourage a return to boondoggling. Advocates of the restriction contended, on the other hand, that the employment of WPA labor on large construction projects deprived workers not on relief of private jobs in the construction industries.

Certainly a very grave issue has been raised by the policy of employing relief workers on only a type of construction projects. That is shown by the protests coming from representatives of organized labor as well as private contractors.

Another amendment, accepted by the House without debate, would exclude from relief rolls Communists or members of Nazi Bund organizations. This proviso is probably of little practical importance. But it is a form of discrimination difficult to reconcile with the democratic concept that minority opinions should not be penalized.

If in the opinion of Congress, Nazi or Communist party groups are agents of foreign powers, inimical to the peace and welfare of the country, then the remedy lies in a direct ban on these organizations.

The relief system is designed to take care of needy individuals, not to serve as an instrumentality for punishing individuals associated with movements which are recognized as legal.

Communist Manifesto

Twenty assassins early yesterday fired machine guns for 15 minutes into the bedroom of Leon Trotsky, exiled Russian revolutionary. They are also reported to have bombed his Mexican villa with bottles full of incendiary liquid. The net result: Trotsky was nicked by flying glass and his two automobiles, symbol of outraged proletarianism, were swiped.

Although the attack undoubtedly was a serious matter for Trotsky and for the American guard who was kidnaped, it has its comic-opera aspects. Very seldom is this diabolically efficient world, do 15 minutes of machine gun fire, with bombings to boot, produce so little destruction. Trotsky lay brooding on the floor until the fusillade was over, and his practical wife speedily smothered the flames with a blanket.

Trotsky blames the attempted murder on his arch foe Joseph Stalin. The charge appears substantiated by the typical Muscovite inefficiency of the raid. One can scarcely imagine that the results would have been so trifling if sponsored, for instance, by Stalin's Nazi friends.

A university professor says girls are dumb in order to attract men. This requires very little acting on the part of some.

An anthropologist of the University of Texas says that 25,000 years ago men lived in what now is the United States. If they were to return to earth and take a look at this country today, they'd be surprised—and so would we.

Is a permanent record of expenditures being made by the Government being kept? Our grandchildren might like to know what the Samhill we did with all their money.

"Smacking" Sadee

She had a good mother. I could tell that from the crisp perfection of her brief red-and-white dress, her starched white underthings, her snowy socks and shining little black shoes. Two tight pigtails with red bows, to match her red cheeks, bore witness to a mother devoted to detail who scorned to send her 5-year-old daughter out into the world unless she was correctly dressed, even to a large pocket-ehook of brilliant green.

It was Saturday afternoon, and not only I but everyone else on the car watched Sadee. (I know that her name is Sadee because her father called her that innumerable times.) From the minute that she and her father boarded the car bound downtown, they were the objects of general attraction. It was not hard to see through the situation. Even good mothers wear out after a week of Sadee, and by Saturday afternoon they are glad to turn her over to a presumably good father. Sadee had to have new socks for Sunday or new ribbons for her braids, and mother stated that a trip downtown with the small fry would relieve the tedium of the day.

Sadee, however, was not a good mother, one sits like a little lady, one keeps one's feet in a proper position and talks, if at all, about something pleasant. Her father offered this one to take his little daughter downtown.

Going downtown with father was right down Sadee's alley. It was a different matter from a trip downtown with a good mother. When one goes downtown, and is good mother, one sits like a little lady, one keeps one's feet in a proper position and talks, if at all, about something pleasant. Sadee was in a worried look on mother's face as she mentally computes her budget. Fathers are different.

The older poets believed that children trail clouds of glory from whom they originate, but Sadee, as far as I could see, Sadee was innocent of all such hindrances to progress. She was, above all, practical. Eve was, so to speak, her remote mother and Cleopatra possibly an aunt. For Sadee behaved toward her male parent with a sophistication and an aplomb which would have shocked a good mother. She did absolutely as fancy dictated, armed in a sureness of her charm and a nonchalance that amazed her father. When a "wriggler" she jumped, she reversed herself, she tried every known posture to the discomfiture of Commander "Now, Sadee!" But her shoes finally rested a good deal on the floor and her dress was pulled down.

I landed in France with the first company of American combat troops, which lost 12 men, killed in action. Fought in the attacking wave in the battle of Soissons, also in the Aisne-Marne offensive, then spent 15 months in the hospital with wounds and the years since with a broken shoulder and vertebrae injuries. Of this I have no complaint, but a repetition of such a fiasco is beyond my comprehension.

Relief vs. Defense

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Both the appropriation bill and the emergency defense appropriation asked by the President are before Congress. And not surprising, but rather in line with The Post's editorial policy, you have an editorial in the May 17 issue entitled "The Relief Budget," in which you ask the unemployed to tighten their belt still more and pledge their miserable lives for defense.

The relief measure before the House, which Representative Woodrum, running in true form, calls economy, asks for $875,000,000 with permission to spend it the first eight months of the year, if necessary, thereby forestalling outright starvation by attempting to stretch this sum over 12 months, which this would be used to slightly alleviate the dire need of the over 10,000,000 unemployed in our country. This, when President Roosevelt asks for $1,182,000,000 for defense, you applaud! Surely, no fantastic stretch of your imagination could lead you to believe that this huge sum is necessary purely to protect American shores from invasion. You might have added that this small delusion by the President's further remarks that defense also means stopping the enemy before he gets here—in other words, brave young American men, and among them the sail for bloody Europe now to stop there Adolph Hitler who is viciously trying to crack the British Empire?

You warn further in your editorial that "What is expanded as defense program in prospect, adding to an already large anticipated deficit, we cannot afford to be conflict in interest in international affairs to obscure the menace to financial solvency from unbridled spending." In other words, you accuse the President of leading America to "unbridled spending"—therefore cut it! How can you maintain that with the unemployed being a heavy drain on the banning board was the last straw! Whereupon, Sadee's young father offered this one to take his little daughter downtown.

Going downtown with father was right down Sadee's alley. It was a different matter from a trip downtown with a good mother. When one goes downtown, and is good mother, one sits like a little lady, one keeps one's feet in a proper position and talks, if at all, about something pleasant. The Air Program

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Under date of May 17, 1917, Maj. William Mitchell writing from Europe to the general staff estimated the needs of American participation in the World War, as 5,000 airplanes on the line, 5,000 in reserve and 10,000 more to replace losses of the initial four months of combat. He recommended securance of 20,000 air officers and pilots, 110,000 enlisted men of which 30,500 were to be mechanics. Wanted an equal number to be employed in United States factories. Total personnel 201,000. The estimate was that this program could be completed by May 1, 1919.

How did it turn out? On November 11, 1918, at the Armistice the United States had spent more than $4,000,000,000—and pray the Lord it will be spent like a businessman would have spent it. Result: In this small, shrewd creature all the qualities which are necessary to success in an alyze but which he obviously felt and in which he delighted.

On her side, this young Eve was behaving in a way that she would never have dared under the eyes of a good mother. She could have understood her all too well, and would have been shocked at what which was more than a social gesture.

Going downtown with mother was routine and boredom, but with father it was a new world in which opened up endless possibilities. There was, for example, the possibility that papa would not be able to resist taking his daughter into the barber shop to have a shave or a little to his pals. The barber shop with its masculine implications of a free world was fascinating ground as Sadee had learned from previous expeditions with father and the resultant wrath of mother. That was the reason the prospect was exciting.

But the best possibility was that Sadee could eat a good mother's program of diet. She would get more candy than was permitted at home, of a quicker kind, and two sodas where one usually blossomed. She might even have a hot dog on a roll, surrounded by delectable chopped pickle—and the fact that such mixed dainties would soon be followed by a sharp pain did not really seem to matter. at the moment.

The car stopped, and Sadee's father reached down his huge paw to take his dear daughter by the hand, but she slid competently from the seat and skipped ahead. Self-sufficiency, a complete appreciation of her own importance, these are the clouds that enveloped her in place of any clouds of prenatal glory. Her pigtails stood straight out with the speed of her going, and the bright bow vied with the green in brightness. Her dazzled parent followed in the wake of this splendor. He was happy but self-conscious. I watched them vanish into the crowds.

Shirley Temple may retire, secure in her own very lovely and special kind of glory, but there remains a very different kind of actress the Sadees who are still playing their peculiar roles—miniature Cleopatras, streamlined for speed and efficiency to fit a day which admires a go-getter!

Willkie's Candidacy

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Many a man thinks he is a great leader who actually is no more than a salesman knocking his competitors' wares.

All about us swells the cry, "Elect a businessman President." He will cure our financial ills; he will reproduce our taxes; he will encourage private initiative." The invalid calls for the doctor who made the ills.

In a "Declaration of Political Faith" published in a magazine, Mr. Wendell L. Willkie would sell us a bill of goods of this character. It is neither startling nor original. The regular columnists have been writing for the same thing for a livelihood for a number of years.

Commencing with Boondoggle, through Bolshevik, through Balance the Budget into Bureaucracy they have given the country the Be. Mr. Willkie does no more than add the Presidential Bee.

Except, it must be admitted, his article contains one new note in its theme. He insists he is not to be confused with the ordinary run of conservative businessman. He declares himself to be a liberal—a better liberal than even the President himself.

But why, in these touchy times, does a great businessman, coyly inviting a Presidential nomination, have to insist he is a liberal? Why does he find it necessary to ask Norman Thomas on the back with the information that he, the conservative businessman with the others?

The New Deal called them names! —Economic Royalists and such—but here comes one of their very own to tell us the White House needs nothing so much as a businessman occupant but, under no circumstances a conservative member of the tribe.

Mr. Willkie works fast and effectively. In one month he has done more to discredit conservative businessmen that the New Deal could do in two Presidential terms.

Europe's Behavior

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Every action has a reaction. England tried to stifle Germany, and now, Germany exploded and is trying to stifle England. Unless Europe can figure out ways and means of behaving herself, I don't see how the United States can do anything but the preservation of order there.

We should have taken an active interest in the League of Nations, but we didn't. Now we turned a deaf ear to what went on there. In fact, many people thought the League was a joke and the fun of it. Well, it's certainly a pity that such should be the case. Something should be taken so lightly. Perhaps if people had given it proper attention, we would never have had this terrible mess.

Praises Lindbergh

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Col. Lindbergh is to be highly praised for his courageous remarks on national defense.

If anyone should know, Lindy should know, and Americans should be thankful for his advice. One can read between the lines of his statements, made or about to be made, between the White House and two prominent Republicans, former Gov. Presidential Nominee Frank Knox and Congressman James W. Wadsworth, of New York, a high standing Republican who, on foreign relations and national defense, frequently supports the President.

These two prominent persons and allusions are all the public has forces to. They are summoned here partly to illustrate the public's difficulty in knowing the facts, about any public matter.

Was Senator Borah right, or Mr. Roosevelt looking toward a coalition Cabinet? The public could not yet definitely say, in which direction. Some newspapermen, who followed these particular events with exceptional closeness, thought that at one time, some ten days ago, Mr. Roosevelt may have entertained the notion, perhaps tentatively and vaguely, of appointing three Republicans to places in his Cabinet—War, Navy, and one other post.

However, it is all settled now. Mr. Roosevelt at his press conference Friday said positively, although in the essential feeling, that there never was any notion of a coalition Cabinet, that it was never anything but a rumor, and even that the newspapermen had just gone out on a limb and then found the limb sawed off.

So, the coalition Cabinet idea is out. While he was under discussion, it was opposed by some Republicans, branded as "treason" by some Democrats, though not all. It was opposed by Democrats on the same reason that Republicans opposed it—defeatism, the defeatist theory. Even Democrats confused with the ordinary run of conservative businessman. He declares himself to be a liberal—a better liberal than even the President himself.

But why, in these touchy times, does a great businessman, coyly inviting a Presidential nomination, have to insist he is a liberal? Why does he find it necessary to ask Norman Thomas on the back with the information that he, the conservative businessman with the others?

The New Deal called them names! —Economic Royalists and such—but here comes one of their very own to tell us the White House needs nothing so much as a businessman occupant but, under no circumstances a conservative member of the tribe.

Coalition Cabinet

By Mark Sullivan

A Newspaper Dream?

THE FOLLOWING incidents occurred, in the sequence here given: President Roosevelt invited former Republican Presidential Nominee Landon, of Kansas, to lunch, and Mr. Landon accepted.

Before the date fixed for the lunch, Mr. Landon made a speech previously arranged for. In the speech, and also in a public statement, Mr. Landon opposed the idea of party coalition.

Newspapers printed dispatches to the effect that the White House invitation to Mr. Landon had been canceled, but later renewed.

Mr. Landon went to the lunch at the White House.

A few hours later Mr. Landon gave out a statement saying, in effect, that there could be no party coalition, and no national unity, unless Mr. Roosevelt renounces a third term.

In response, Secretary Early, on Mr. Roosevelt's behalf, gave out a statement, tart in tone, and in meaning wholly cryptic and silent on the third term. One sentence read: "He (Mr. Roosevelt) has no time just now to give to the preparation of political statements."

INTERSPERSED among those events were newspaper allusions to other conversations, made or about to be made, between the White House and two prominent Republicans, former Vice Presidential Nominee Frank Knox and Congressman James W. Wadsworth, of New York, a high standing Republican who, on foreign relations and national defense, frequently supports the President.

These two prominent persons and allusions are all the public has forces to. They are summoned here partly to illustrate the public's difficulty in knowing the facts, about any public matter.

Was Senator Borah right, or Mr. Roosevelt looking toward a coalition Cabinet? The public could not yet definitely say, in which direction. However, it is all settled now. Mr. Roosevelt at his press conference Friday said positively, although in the essential feeling, that there never was any notion of a coalition Cabinet, that it was never anything but a rumor, and even that the newspapermen had just gone out on a limb and then found the limb sawed off.

So, the coalition Cabinet idea is out. While it was under discussion, it was opposed by some Republicans, branded as "treason" by some Democrats, though not all, and by some Democrats on the same reason that Republicans opposed it—defeatism, the defeatist theory. Even Democrats common consent, it would constitute an enormous breach in our traditions and even our constitutional forms. Such a breach, taking place without opposition, might lead to almost anything.

ACCEPTANCE of posts in Mr. Roosevelt's Cabinet by Republican leaders of such prominence as the party's latest Presidential and Vice Presidential nominees, might be "interpreted as tacit indorsement of a third term by the whole Republican Party. On the other hand, some think that if Mr. Roosevelt gave the invitations, the Republicans ought to accept—at the same time holding themselves free to speak publicly against a third term if and when the issue actually arises. Mr. Roosevelt has never said he intends to take a third term. To some, he has given a strong impression that he will not.

Many persons are torn between a tragic dilemma. On the one hand is the necessity for defense against foreign arms and a foreign ideology, authoritarian government. On the other hand they fear the arising of totalitarian governments within our own borders; they fear that in achieving soldierly against a foreign enemy, we may have given something approaching a totalitarian form, and the first rift of it after the emergency passes.

Meanwhile, day after very day, the American Government is obliged to make, quickly, some of the most important decisions in its history. That these decisions ought to be, in the public eye, the supports of men who are symbols of both parties, goes without saying.

There is, of course, a thing between coalition. There is partisan support. This exists. When the President's defense measure was before the Senate this week every Republican supported it; three-fifths of the vote against it. When a previous defense measure was before the Senate over a year ago, when there was no great sense of emergency, only four Republicans opposed.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

Roosevelt-Landon Exchange

"What did you make of Alf Landon's visit with the President?" asked Senator Dumm.

"The visit wasn't long enough but I can still hear the subsequent fireworks," replied Representative Dummer. "I wonder what they talked about?"

"Landon went to the lunch at the White House with a speech in his pocket denouncing a third term. Then he changed his mind and left the speech in his pocket. Then he changed his mind and took the speech out of his pocket and delivered it

The Sol Blooms Stage Annual Wistaria Party

Event Success Despite the Betrayal By Almanac Forecasting Fair Day; Diplomatic Set Turns Out in Force

The Hagerstown Almanac let down both the Sol Blooms and the wistaria blooms yesterday. The wife of the New York Representative had planned her party yesterday around the prophecies of the Almanac, which definitely prophesied good weather.

The tea was a success anyway, although the patio of the Bloom house, which is overhung with wistaria, was more or less deserted. The guests contented themselves with peering at the pretty blossoms from the windows.

To show how jittery Washington is these days—when Mrs. Bloom invited one of her friends to a "wistaria party," he said "What! You're giving a hysteria party?" This is an annual affair chez Bloom, and in past years, when the weather was more favorable, the guests always sat in the patio to enjoy the blossoms.

As Representative Bloom is chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, there were naturally many diplomats in yesterday's group. Greeted on all sides were the American Ambassador to Spain and Mrs. Alexander Weddell, who are in this country on leave. They have been at their home near Richmond, and will leave Sunday, June 2, on the Clipper to return to Europe. Mr. Weddell was formerly our envoy to the Argentine.

Mrs. Hull Drops By

Another caller was Mrs. Cordell Hull, wife of the ecretary of State. Her black redingote had revers of yellow and black to match her print dress, and she topped off her costume with a little black straw hat.

Speaking of hats, the most amusing was that worn by Mme. Procope, wife of the Finnish Minister. Pale blue, it had a tiny high crown circled with black ribbon. With this she wore a black dress trimmed at the hem with silver fox. The Minister accompanied her.

As might be expected, the war was the principal topic of conversation, with nobody feeling very cheerful about it.

The Brazilian Ambassador and Senhora de Martins arrived together, the latter wearing a black outfit and a little hat made entirely of big red roses. The Portuguese Minister and Mme. de Bianchi were accompanied by the latter's daughter, Miss Sibilla Skidelsky, smart in navy blue and white.

Tea was served in the living room from a long table centered with white carnations and baby's breath. Among those pouring during the afternoon were Mrs. Henry A. Wallace; Mme. Irimescu, who will leave in about two weeks to spend the summer in New England, and Mrs. J. Pierrepont Moffat, whose tiny hat of white flowers was most becoming.

From State Department circles Mrs. Warren Delano Robbins, who was chatting with Miss Elsie Ekengren. The latter wore a silver fox scarf with her suit and a toast-colored straw hat. Miss Laura Tuckerman was another member of the younger set present. She was in black with a jaunty white hat.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Alling, also guests, told friends they were giving up their house in Alexandria and moving to Washington in the near future.

Mrs. Bloom Shows Work

Clarence Hewes was accompanied by his niece, pretty Miss Ellen Flowerree, who wore a pale pink hat trimmed with blue with her outfit. Another popular bachelor, Arthur Bradley Campbell, was with his debutante cousin, Miss Marjorie Meuser. She had on a silver fox cape over her dress and a white straw hat trimmed in red.

Mrs. George Barnett looked handsome in a black suit and a red hat. Mrs. John C. Fremont wore a spring print and a straw bonnet.

The Norwegian Minister and Mme. Munthe de Morgenstierne came in together, the latter wearing a gray suit with a collar of gray fox.

Mrs. Bloom was in black with a glittering array of flowers pinned to one shoulder and her daughter had chosen a spring print. Representative Bloom was also on hand to greet the guests. Much admired was a figurine of the Empress Eugenie, which Mrs. Bloom had recently completed. She is an expert at making these little objects out of a material which she invented herself.

Others at this pleasant party included Mrs. Francis Whitten, in black with a tricky red hat; Wolcott Waggaman, George Renchard, Mrs. McCeney Werlich, M. and Mme. Boncesco, Mme. Hassan, wife of the Egyptian Minister, smart in black with a silver fox cape; Mrs. Frances Parkinson Keyes, in gray with a white flower hat; Miss Pauletta Guffey, who topped off her print with a bright red jacket; Mme. Naoumoff, wife of the Bulgarian Minister, and others.

Mary Whitney Becomes Bride Of Mr. Stevens

Alumnae of Warrenton County School Wed To Princeton Graduate

Of interest to society in Washington and Virginia was the wedding yesterday afternoon in Morristown, N. J., of Miss Mary Louise Whitney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Suydam Whitney, of that place, and Bayard MacDonald Stevens, son of Mrs. Bayard Stevens and the late Mr. Stevens, of Short Hills, N. J.

St. Peter's Episcopal Church was decorated with calla lilies and dogwood for the ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. David K. Montgomery. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a period gown of white tulle with puffed sleeves and a plaited yoke. Her finger tip veil of the tulle fell from a coronet of orange blossoms and she carried a white prayer book.

Sister Is Maid of Honor

Miss Nancy Gray Stevens, Mr. Stevens' sister, was maid of honor, wearing white marquisette trimmed with rows of pastel embroidered flowers and a large white horsehair hat trimmed in pink. She carried an old-fashioned bouquet of bachelor buttons.

The bridesmaids were the Misses Marjorie Sweeney, of New Rochelle, N. Y., and Sally Pitney, Caroline Letchford and Helen Macdonald, of Morristown. They were dressed like the maid of honor. Master Homer Franklin and little Anne Shryock also attended the bride.

John Stevens, of New York, was best man for his brother and the ushers were Serge and Lucien Hill and Fulton Smith, of Short Hills, and John Constable and John Steele, of New York.

Off to Bermuda For Honeymoon

The bride is a graduate of the Warrenton Country School, Warrenton, and Mr. Stevens was a member of the class of '39 at Princeton, where he belonged to the Colonial Club. He is a grandson of the late Col. and Mrs. Edwin A. Stevens, of Castle Point, Hoboken, N. J., and the late Capt. and Mrs. William N. MacDonald, of Berryville, Va.

After August the couple will live in New York. Out-of-town guests at the wedding included Mrs. John B. Neill, of Berryville, and Miss Katharine Powell MacDonald, of Washington, aunts of Mr. Stevens.

Two Prospective Brides to Be Feted At Himes' Dance

Miss Marilynn Himes and her brother, Canfield, have issued invitations to a dance on Saturday evening, June 15, at Prospect Hall, the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Himes, near Frederick, Md.

The party will honor two prospective brides, the Misses Jane Eustis and Betty Fisher. The former will be married June 29 to George Wheeler, son of Mrs. Carlos Del Mar, and Miss Fisher's engagement to Grant Boss was recently announced. Their wedding is expected to take place in the fall.

Arrives Today

Mrs. Carl Dickinson will arrive this morning from Des Moines, Iowa, to be the guest of her parents, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Roderick Carmichael, for a week's visit.

Sen. White Serves as Best Man At Daly-Lunn Nuptial in N. Y.

MRS. RICHARD DWIGHT LUNN

Senator White, Jr., Serves as Best Man At Wedding of Miss Virginia Daly To His Stepson, Richard D. Lunn

Senator Wallace H. White, jr., of Maine, served as best man in the wedding yesterday of Miss Virginia Daly, of New York and Pasadena, Calif., to his step-son, Richard Dwight Lunn, son of Mrs. White and the late Ralph McClintock Lunn.

The ceremony took place in the chantry of St. Thomas' Church in New York, the Rev. Roelif H. Brooks officiating. A reception at the Hotel Pierre for members of the two families followed.

The bride, who is the daughter of Thomas Paul Daly, of Pasadena, and the late Mrs. Daly, was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of white Alencon lace made with a long train and heart shaped neckline, and carried Calla lilies.

Miss Theresse Cronin, of Toronto, was maid of honor, and the bridesmaids were Mrs. John R. Fales, of Stamford, Conn.; Miss Marjorie Nair, of Pasadena; Miss Nina Dorbritz, of Pittsburgh, and Mrs. William Lake 2d, of Covington, Va. Miss Cronin wore a bouffant gown of dark blue mousseline de soie with a lace bodice and a lace hat. She carried a spray of pink carnations and blue delphinium. The other attendants were dressed in the same material, only with pink bodices with dark blue skirts. Their shepherdess hats of lace and mousseline were pink, and they carried carnations of this shade.

Armar Archbold, of Washington and New York, was an usher, and the other ushers were James W. Duff, of New York; Herbert F. White, of Topsham, Me.; Mr. Fales, Ernest O. Dorbritz and J. Morris Baldwin, jr., of Montgomery, Ala.

The bride was graduated from the Mildred Lee Lynch School for Girls in Fresno, Calif., and St. Mary's Convent, Los Angeles. She then came East to study with Frances Robinson Duff.

Mr. Lunn attended the Choate School, Wallingford, Conn.; Friends School here, and Princeton University, where he was a member of Tiger Inn. He is a member of the Princeton and Advertising Clubs of New York, and the Chevy Chase Club. Formerly he was amateur golf champion of the State of Maine and the District of Columbia.

The couple will make their home at Mill House, Norwalk, Conn.

Mrs. Pepper Luncheon Guest at WPA Center

Mrs. Claude Pepper, wife of Senator Pepper, and Mrs. John M. Carmody, wife of the administrator of the Federal Works Agency, were among the guests at a luncheon yesterday at the District of Columbia Works Projects Administration Household Training Center, 1114 O street northwest.

The luncheon was one of the activities held during the week at the center in conjunction with "This Work Pays Your Community Week." Other guests at the luncheon were Mrs. A. J. Sarre, of New Orleans; Mrs. Mary Steele Ross, director of Professional and Service Projects, and Miss Margaret Marco, chief welfare section, Professional and Service Projects.

Mrs. Montague And Lieut. Bull Are Married

Ceremony Takes Place In Naval Academy Chapel at Annapolis

The wedding of Mrs. Frances Lummons Montague, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert C. Lummons, of Albany, N. Y., to Lieut. William I. Bull, U. S. N., took place yesterday at noon in the chapel of the Naval Academy in Annapolis.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, James E. Heberle, of Washington. She wore a gray ensemble with royal blue accessories. Her only attendant was Mrs. E. Randolph Haigh, of Newburyport, Mass. Lieut. Harry Hull, of Annapolis, was best man.

After a wedding trip the couple will reside in Annapolis, where the bridegroom is on duty at the Postgraduate School. He is the son of Alexander M. Bull and the late Mrs. Bull, of Washington, and was graduated from the Naval Academy in 1932.

Cafritz Luncheon Fetes Mme. Procope

Mme. Procope, wife of the Finnish Minister, was guest of honor at a luncheon given yesterday by Mrs. Morris Cafritz.

Others present were Mrs. Robert V. Fleming, Mrs. Charles Carroll Morgan, Mrs. Eleanor Patterson, Mrs. J. Fred Essary, Mrs. Frank C. Waldrop, Mrs. A. Ray Katz, of Baltimore; Mrs. Lillian Ditre, Mrs. Thomas Burke and Countess Igor Cassini.

Dance to Honor Mariana Evans

Miss Mariana Evans, who will bow to society at a reception to be given by her parents Tuesday afternoon, June 18, at the Chevy Chase Club, will be guest of honor at a dance that evening at which Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Tompkins will be hosts.

As a full moon is promised by the Almanac for that evening, the hosts hope that the guests will be able to wander about the beautiful garden and terraces of Battery Terrell, the Tompkins home. It is built on the site of one of the ramparts constructed to defend Washington in the Civil War.

Miss Evans will also be honored at a dinner to be given on Saturday evening, June 22, by Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Brand. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joshua Evans.

Another party for members of the younger set will be the dinner which the Commissioners of Immigration and Mrs. J. L. Houghteling will give Thursday, June 20, before the semiweekly dance at the Chevy Chase Club.

Conger Films Show Europe That Wars

Guests at Clement Conger's party on Thursday evening had a look at a pre-war and peaceful Europe when the host showed his excellent colored movies of France, Belgium, Holland, Switzerland and Italy. He made them on a trip abroad last summer.

The party was in honor of Mr. Conger's cousin, Miss Hallie Taliaferro, who is here from Wyoming to visit his family. The other guests included the Misses Sylvia Szechenyi, Angelica Lloyd, Eleanor Flood, Cecelia vom Rath, Juliette Dulaney and Mrs. Scudder Doeg. Also Middleton Train, William Buckland, William Blum, James Marsh and Frederick Nichols.

Elvin Seiberts Parents of Son

Mr. and Mrs. Elvin Seibert are receiving congratulations on the birth of a son, Neils Frederick Seibert, on Thursday at Garfield Hospital.

Mrs. Seibert is the former Miss Christina Beck-Friis, daughter of the Swedish Minister to Norway and Mme. Beck-Friis. Mr. Beck-Friis was for several years counselor of the Swedish Legation here and both he and his wife were very popular in Capital society.

Mr. Seibert is a member of the United States Foreign Service, and with his wife recently returned here from China for duty.

Maj. Davies, Wife Give Cocktail Party

Maj. and Mrs. William Wallace Davies were hosts at a cocktail party yesterday afternoon at the Army and Navy Country Club. About 150 of their Marine Corps friends from Quantico and Washington attended.

The hostess wore a floor-length gown of white crepe trimmed in aqua. The tea table was centered with an arrangement of spring flowers.

The Hunt Country

By Nina Carter Tabb

THIS WILL BE a busy day in the Virginia hunting country. The Blue Ridge Hunt Horse Show, which takes place in the Carter Hall Grove at Millwood, starts at 10 o'clock this morning lasting all afternoon. The Clarke County Nursing Association will serve a luncheon during the recess hour.

The Gymkhana Races at Warrenton are this afternoon at 3 o'clock and many who will motor down for them will stay to enjoy the dinner in the open as well as the dance to be held out of doors.

AND LAST but not least, the Fauquier and Loudoun Garden Club will hold its last tour of gardens today. The places on view today include Oak Hill near Delaplane, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Baird, formerly owned by Chief Justice John Marshall. Belvoir, near the Plains, the home of Mrs. Fairfax Harrison is another garden that is especially lovely. It adjoins Gordonsdale, owned by Dr. and Mrs. Reginald Vickers. The boxwood at the Vickers place is famous, some of the hedges being over 40 feet high. Glen Welby, another lovely place now owned by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Baird, will be open. This is between Marshall and Rectortown. Other gardens on view near the Plains include Aethol, owned by Mr. and Mrs. William Slaughter, and Mrs. John Cochran's garden, and Piedmont Farm owned by Mrs. Houston Gaddis.

OATLANDS, the home of Mrs. William Corcoran Eustis and Little Oatlands owned by Mr. and Mrs. David Edward Finley, which have been open all week, will be closed today. Mrs. Roosevelt will visit Oatlands this afternoon as the guest of Mrs. Eustis and give a talk to the school teachers of Loudoun County as well as the social workers and a few other guests. Mrs. Eustis has asked 175 school teachers to meet the First Lady as well as the doctors and social workers in the county. The Rev. D. Campbell Mayers, rector of the Episcopal churches at Middleburg, Aldie and Oatlands, has been invited to tea as has Father Igoe, of the Catholic churches, in Leesburg and Purcellville.

MRS. HENRY FAIRFAX, Mr. and Mrs. Finley, Miss Alice Davis, Miss Lucy Davis and George Carter will also attend the party this afternoon. Mrs. Roosevelt will speak from the front porch of Oatlands. Guests will be seated about on the lawn under large oak trees. Tea will be served, and following this guests will tour the lovely boxwood and flower gardens for which the place is so famous.

* * * *

Brookes Hosts At Buffet For Mrs. Lee

Wedding to Be Today; Friends and Family Attend Function

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Brooke were hosts at a buffet supper last night at their home in Georgetown in honor of Mrs. Wilson Lee and Clarence Aspinwall, who will be married this afternoon. Mr. Brooke's brother, Robert Brooke, and Mrs. Brooke, of Philadelphia, will arrive today for the wedding.

Guests last evening included Senator and Mrs. Warren Austin, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Henderson, Mr. and Mrs. Corcoran Thom—Mr. Thom will be best man—former Senator Blair Lee, Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey Parker, jr., Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Ellis, Mrs. John Addison, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Carroll Morgan, Mr. and Mrs. John Bullard, of South Dartmouth, Mass.; Miss Nancy Glover, and Mr. and Mrs. Blair Lee.

Also Frederick Brooke, jr., son of the hosts; Miss Elizabeth Lee, and Blair Lee 3d, E. Brooke Lee, children of Mrs. Lee; Mrs. John Baldwin, Mr. Aspinwall's daughter, and Mr. Baldwin.

Col. and Mrs. Cecil Hosts at Dance

Col. and Mrs. Joseph Cecil were hosts at a gay dance last night at the 1925 F Street Club, attended by many members of Capital society.

Among the hosts at dinner beforehand was Miss Mary Louise Marsh, who entertained in honor of her houseguest, Mrs. Henry Buhl, of Detroit.

Notes of Society

Official and Residential

Mrs. Walter Browne Woodson, wife of Rear Admiral Woodson, Judge Advocate General of the Navy, and her daughter, Miss Ruth Woodson, have returned from New York, where they stayed at the Commodore. They were accompanied by Mrs. Woodson's sisters-in-law, Mrs. Dean Halford, and Mrs. Walter E. Ihling, of Kalamazoo, who will visit the Woodsons here.

Baroness Korff regrets that she will be unable to receive on Sunday because of illness.

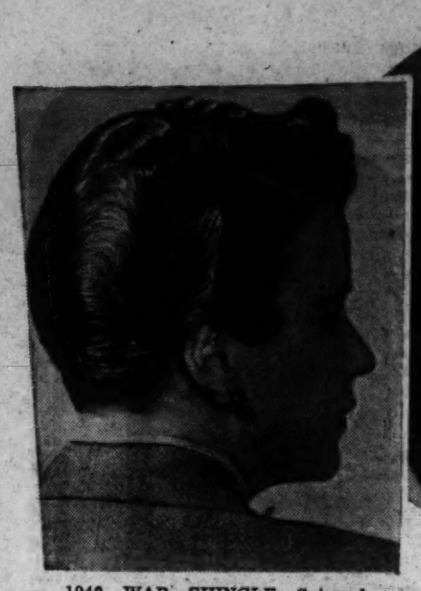
Short Bob, Inspired by Last War, Returns in New Guise



1940 WAR SHINGLE—Snipped locks with feminine softness through swirls and shadow waves, as shown above. Designed by Josef, New York hair stylist

1924 SHORT, SHORT HAIR—Straight, sleek and severe as shown by Fifi Dorsey's coiffure above. Unbroken bangs were glued to forehead and face

TOMORROW'S MANNISH BOB—Combines curls and waves effectively. Brushed up from forehead and resembles the early '20's boyish cuts only in length of hair

Sleek and Mannish, It Is Especially Adaptable to the Tailored Woman

By Carolyn Abbott.

THE SHORT, short haircut seems slated for a definite revival this summer. Chic, sleek coiffurer will be in high favor, especially among the tailored and sportswomen types. Mannish bobs in new and flattering guises appear to threaten the monopoly of upswept and shoulder-length glamour hairdos.

Not since 1924, when the boyish or mannish haircuts first swept the country, has the tailored woman been able to wear sleek, short hair with more than comfort. This summer, however, the sleek, mannish bob will be more than comfortable—it will be fashionable. For many years fashion frowned on this type of arrangement and placed all emphasis on the long bob. A few sturdy individualists, realizing that this style was becoming to them, kept this arrangement, but most of them followed popular, prevailing trends. During the last 15 years the style spurted at intervals but obtained scant foothold.

Josef, hair stylist for Helena Rubinstein's beauty salon in New York, is one of the staunch supporters of the short hair trend. He says: "American hairdressers have been neglecting the tailored woman. Every time you pick up a magazine you see a new way to wear long hair for the ingenue, the subdeb, the sophisticate, the demure and the extreme feminine types. Nothing was mentioned about the sportswomen, who, particularly in summer, when golfing, riding and swimming, want a chic, tailored hairdo."

It's Smartest for Many

At least 5 per cent of women of all ages are prettiest and smartest with short hair, he maintains, but they have refused to wear it that way because it wasn't the mode. "To wear short, tailored hairdos," says Josef, "the color of the hair should be striking. A girl with iron-gray hair, for instance, can wear it very effectively, also those with decided black hair or very blonde hair. But it's not for redheads.

"The features don't have to be even. In fact, it helps irregular contours. A proof is that the French women have never adopted the long bob to the extent that Americans have—and French women, generally speaking, are not as beautiful as Americans But as to chic—that is something else."

Contrary to popular belief, the older woman should not wear very short hair unless she is still youthful looking and pretty, Josef warned.

As early as last November Josef predicted to me the return of the short, short hair styles. However, if the present trend toward the short, short hairdos had been predicted merely by Josef you could have tossed it aside as wishful thinking. However, now that leading hair stylists all over the country are predicting and indorsing the short, short hair, it seems fairly certain to become a definite style this summer.

The new types of short, short hair arrangements call for a moderate shingle about three-quarters of an inch up from the hairline. Top and sides can be anywhere from 2½ to about 4 inches long, tapering down to the shingle, to get the most out of the natural wave. Swirled in a line, the back can be brushed almost straight up to blend with the top waves. The top can be worn in a prompadour or bangs, according to the type, while the side hair is usually combed away from the face.

Resembling the old-time mannish bobs only in sleekness and shortness, the new type of short hair allows for more individuality as well as feminine softness. Curls, waves, swirls and careful tapering of the hair give more leeway to arranging it in the most becoming manner.

A Woman's New York

By Alice Hughes

New York, May 16.

I was summoned to a literary luncheon at the Rainbow Room and who was the guest of honor but my shapely and explosive little friend, Ida Jean Kain, who has now compressed her violent enthusiasm for cutting down rebellious figures between the pages of a book, called "Prescription for Slimming"—at least, it has that funny doctor's gadget before the other two words.

ALICE HUGHES

Ida Jean is a small, peppery and very articulate girl. She deplores and despises the senseless and sometimes dangerous monkey-shines that charlatans try to put over on us; for weight reduction and figure pampering has been one of the most vital and even profit-producing businesses since it was first decreed, over a decade ago, that all women should resemble underfed lead pencils. La Kain is a trained dietician, and she sputters and then roars when she gets on the subject of the fakers who impose starvation on gullible girls.

We met on a jovial and happy junket to the warm-hearted city of Minneapolis a couple of years back, and got chummy immediately. Since then we go, when lucky, to the roomy apartment she and her husband occupy, overlooking the Hudson, and when Hall and I sit down to the grub we are sure that we are going to get properly scrambled calories in victuals that are tasty too.

After Prunella Wood had introduced Ida Jean at her luncheon, the slimmer told us that in childhood she had been stricken by infantile paralysis. After her slow but eminently successful emergence, she decided that what she had learned during her own fight for health and a good figure might help others, so she began writing her helpful pieces for the paper. And she really knows what she is talking about. In her book, a few carrots won't make a Lana Turner shape!

Mary Haworth's Mail

Staff Members Mysteriously Ostracize Working Wife, Making Job Seem Drudgery; How Meet Problem?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Due to present financial conditions, it is necessary for me to work until my husband's business is more secure. However, I really enjoyed working until several of my business associates decided to dislike me. Now my office assignment is drudgery.

Of course, they must have a reason for their sudden change, but I am totally at a loss to know what I have done to offend them. We used to get along so well. Still, I had noticed that their friendliness was cooling gradually, and that they never missed an opportunity to ridicule me and cast aspersions at me. Sometimes they spoke in jest, but for the most part there was an acid undertone in what they said.

Now their dislike is plainly registered. Everyone sees it. They refuse to speak when we meet face to face; they avoid me and they gossip about me. Every day they congregate in small groups to giggle, whisper and make loud insinuations for my benefit. This is not only annoying, but it impairs my office efficiency. The environment is most unpleasant, but, unfortunately, there is nothing anyone here can do about it, and I cannot shut out their jeers.

I judge they are trying, by their attitude, to make the situation so difficult that I will resign. But I'm not a quitter, and, anyway, I cannot afford to leave as I have certain obligations to fulfill. Several other employes have had the same trouble with my aforementioned "pals," and we can only attribute it to jealousy. I am told this petty persecution usually ends after they find they cannot evict their victim. But still, I'm apprehensive, because the campaign has been going on for weeks.

How shall I cope with this unhappy situation? Since they made the first move, I feel it is up to them to make the next. I do not feel in any way abligated to conciliate them. Please tell me if you think I am wrong.

DISCOURAGED.

Ignoring Busybodies Spoils Their Fun

DEAR DISCOURAGED: Your "pals" are paying you a left handed compliment, if they only knew it. Those superior qualities you have that they envy and resent should see you safely through—and triumphant over— their campaign of petty persecution. It is possible that they are deliberately conspiring to impair your office efficiency—for the reason that your diligent good performance threatens to show them up for the slipshod loafers that they undoubtedly are. (And I hope they read these remarks, by the way).

As a veteran habitue of the business world, I have seen such squalls disturb an office atmosphere, and the person who is jockeyed into the pariah's role usually has committed the crime—from the loafers' viewpoint—of tackling a hard job in a cheerful spirit and doing it well, with the result that he stands out like a sore thumb from the slothful clock watchers, whose primary occupation combines giggling, complaining, gossiping and keeping a "log" of every co-worker's private and public business.

In a sense, this spite attack upon you is (to those engaged in it) a self defensive measure. They intend (uneonsciously) to reserve the right to establish the prevailing standard-of-efficiency around the office. With typical slyness, they take the underhanded undercutting approach. They malign your personality, in a strategic attempt (a) to discredit your contribution; (b) to browbeat you into the role of camp follower, and (c) to break down your morale and cripple your efficiency.

Well, let them fire away, while you saw wood. There isn't a thing they can do to you, so long as you continue to live on that higher level of consciousness than theirs—where you naturally belong. As some of your seasoned, first-hand advisers observe, if and when they find they can't get under your skin, they will save their ammunition.

You are absolutely right in thinking you have "no obligation to conciliate them." Just wall yourself in behind an armor of poised reserve. Let them jibe and insinuate to their hearts' content, while you do your work. If you meet them face to face, look straight through them with perfect self possession. Don't try to be friends with them. By their conduct, they have distinctly labeled themselves despicably inferior individuals,—the like of which no self respecting person would care to know, for the reason that he couldn't possibly develop interests in common with them.

Incidentally, if the organization (or perhaps Government department) which employs you were competently run on a sound productive basis, your mean spirited adversaries would automatically eliminate themselves from the staff over a period of a very few years. I have seen it happen in the better run offices;—the loose tongued, trouble making claques and their leaders melting off the scene like so many snowballs in you-know-where.

Paint Dabber Has Furniture Looking Like It

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin

A slap-dash paint job on furniture usually looks just that way. We're sorry we can't tell you airily how to splash a paint brush around and end up with a little masterpiece. But like everything else, it takes pains and patience to do a really good job. If you're willing to concede that point, then you'll find that it isn't really hard to do.

Having decided that a job worth doing at all is worth doing well, the next thing to think about is whether the furniture you have your eye on is worth the effort. Because, frankly, a lot of stuff people spend love and time on is junk to begin with and an ocean of paint won't make it anything else. It doesn't hurt to recall the fact that some of the world's most formal and beautiful furniture, especially in eighteenth century England and France, was painted, in short, that one can go Louis XV as well as Greenwich Village in planning a paint job. So be critical of the furniture you plan to work on, that it is sturdy for use, that it has good basic design and line. Remember that many of the department stores sell interesting and versatile unpainted furniture, much of which can be made into very interesting and dignified furniture. Or you can do over old pieces, provided they're good enough structurally.

Now then, after all that stress on quality, don't go and pick up bargain paint or brushes. You won't save much, since good paint isn't expensive anyway and it will make all the difference. So will good brushes.

Wash Crocheted Hats

Millinery that can be soused in soap and water is a popular summer whimsy among smart-looking girls who like to crochet. Jaunty overseas caps and tricky little calots with matching belts are cleverly fashioned out of white and colored cotton thread to spice up warm weather wardrobes and keep wayward locks of hair within reasonable bounds.

Stretchable Menu

Eliminates a Calamity Hour

SUNDAY night meals in many homes are most uncertain as to the hour and often as to the number of guests. Children come home bringing their pals, and friends and relatives often drop in. This won't cause a calamity for you if you stock the emergency shelf with the many appealing foods that are now available.

A supper may be a kitchen buffet, a porch supper or a movable snack on individual trays. Sandwiches are always a preferred food. Table-ready meats are a boon for such meals. In most markets there is a wide variety of delicious ready-to-serve meats from which to choose. Beef, pork and veal are the basis of these products. Following are suggestions for using them.

ROLL-UPS—Spread a slice of bread with mashed braunschweiger or liver cheese, sprinkle with chopped pimiento olives. Roll and fasten with toothpicks. Brush with melted butter, either pan fry or broil. Serve very hot.

PAN GRILLED CHEESELOAF—Make a sandwich of a slice of meatloaf and a thin slice of cheese. Brush or spread the outside of the sandwich with butter. Pan fry slowly until cheese is melted.

MOCK BARBECUED SANDWICH—Cut your favorite cold meat into shreds. Add to a spicy hot barbecue sauce. Serve a generous spoonful in a round bun. It is well to remember that table-ready meats are good in combination with many other fillings and served club style. The following are some good combinations:

1. Thin slices salami, tomato and cucumber.
2. Bologna, cheddar cheese, lettuce.
3. Boiled ham, sweet pickle relish or creole mustard.
4. Thin slices cervelat, pickled beets, mayonnaise.
5. A thin slice of liver cheese, egg salad and tomatoes.

Joan Crawford Works for Success

Ida Jean Kain, shown above with beauteous Joan Crawford, finds out first hand the movie star's secret of curve control—20 minutes of calisthenics daily

By Ida Jean Kain

JOAN CRAWFORD'S personal story relegates the rest of the Hollywood Cinderellas to a spot in the shade! And the thing back of her rise to fame and riches can be summed up in just one word: determination.

Now, I have met up with determination before, but the Crawford variety is unique. And right here I have to take back something! At one time, when Miss Crawford was reported to be overdieting and overworking simultaneously, I predicted that such driving determination would injure her health and make her look older. Well, it seems to be making her younger by the day and I have never interviewed a healthier looking movie star!

As it turns out Miss Crawford not only applies that indomitable will to her career, but to everything pertaining to health. Long ago she gave up rigorous dieting—she found it depleted her energy. She says "If you don't eat, you haven't the vitality to keep up with your work." So she has switched over to sensible eating and gets plenty of food but keeps her figure with exercise.

Has Health and Figure

She is five feet four inches tall. Normal weight for her frame is 130 pounds. She weighs 130 pounds! But she doesn't look it. She is superstreamlined with these measurements: Bust, 38 inches; waist, 26 inches; hips, 37 inches. She is final proof that you can have both health and a streamlined figure.

Rain, shine or a crack of dawn call to be at the studio, Miss Crawford never misses a 20-minute session of setting-up exercises.

The day I interviewed her, she was wearing lounging pajamas, so I ventured to suggest that she illustrate a couple of exercises—not having any idea that she would! But she got right down on the floor and went through a routine that left me exhausted! Here is one that will show you what I mean:

POSITION: Lying on the back on the floor, legs straight down, elbows bent and hands clasped back of head.

MOVEMENT: Now, with the aid of your strong stomach muscles, hoist yourself right up to a sitting position! Miss Crawford can do that one with greatest of ease!

Here's Her Standby

If you are not quite equal to that version, however, try it with the feet anchored under a heavy piece of furniture, and stretch the arms back overhead for leverage, then struggle up to the sitting position.

This star's favorite waistline trimmer is one of our old standbys.

POSITION: Lying on back on floor, knees flexed and feet flat on floor.

MOVEMENT: Twisting at the waist, touch alternate thighs to the floor. Keep the knees together. This exercise is one reason why Miss Crawford's waistline is 12 inches smaller than the bust measurement.

She uses the old reliable leg swinging exercise for hip slimming. You just swing the leg away up in front, then straight back, bringing it up as high as possible and swinging from the hip. This she does 100 times with each leg every morning.

So you see, there is nothing wrong with the exercises you are doing . . . if you do them!

Spring Dress Caution

When buying spring wash dresses see that all the trimmings, buttons and fancy gadgets sewed on are also washable or can be removed easily for washing.

Henry Finley, D. C. Attorney, Dies at 80

Oldest Inhabitant Member Succumbs On Eve of Birthday

Henry J. Finley, vice president of the American Surety Co. of New York and a practicing attorney here for more than 50 years, died yesterday at Emergency Hospital after a six-week illness. He would have been 80 years old today.

Mr. Finley, a native of Washington, was educated in the public schools here, and received his law degree from Columbian Law School (now George Washington University) in 1885. After graduation he entered the practice of law in the firm of Zevley & Zevley and became head of the firm which bore his name in 1896.

He was a member of the Oldest Inhabitants of the District, the Columbian Historical Society and the University Club.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Clara Bliss Finley, and a stepdaughter, Miss Bliss Finley, both of Washington. Funeral services will be held at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow at the Speare funeral home, 3034 M street northwest, with private burial.

Opening lead: Q ♠.

Here is the solution as given by the Olympic Committee: "North opens the spade queen. West may hold off one round or win at once. There is no single line of play. Declarer must feel his way along, but if he avoids obvious errors he will make the contract. For example, he may win the first spade and lead a small heart for the winning finesse of the jack. Then a finesse of the club nine loses to the queen. North continues spades, declarer holding off one round. The club five is led for a winning finesse. Then the clubs can be cleared, or hearts can be developed. Since the defense is very likely to win five tricks if the long spade makes, declarer has to play on the assumption that the diamond ace is held by South, and choose his plan and his discards accordingly.

Holding Firm May Free D. C. Utilities

Would Open Way For Ownership at Home of Pepco, Transit Company

A plan to bring "home to Washington" the financial control of two of its major public utilities is in preparation here, The Post learned yesterday.

Local utility executives and bankers have under discussion blueprints of a new financial framework for the Potomac Electric Power Co. and the Capital Transit Co., which supply electricity and transportation to the 600,000 people of the District and electric power to all Government buildings here.

The home ownership plan, it was disclosed, is an outgrowth of an offer to the Securities and Exchange Commission by the North American Co., holding group that controls Pepco and the transit company, to reduce its majority interest in the company through which it maintains this control, the Washington Railway & Electric Co.

Part of Integration Plan

North American, a giant among holding companies, with far-flung interests in many States of the Nation, made its offer to release control of Washington Railway stock last week when it submitted an integration plan to the SEC, in compliance with the "death sentence" clause of the Holding Company Act.

The local operating companies, Pepco and Capital Transit, would be released for local ownership by the North American integration plan because of these facts:

North American, the top company, holds 89.78 per cent of the stock of Washington Railway & Electric. In shares, its holdings are 50,197 directly owned and 58,361½ indirectly.

But since W. R. & E. wholly owns the common stock of Pepco and owns half the stock of Capital Transit, any release of control by North American would throw the control of the local firms into the open market.

Filing its integration plan, on May 16, North American proposed a merger between W. R. & E. and Pepco, which would fuse into one organization the control of the services that supply electricity and traction in Washington.

Advocates of home ownership yesterday were discussing formation of a syndicate to buy and retail the common stock of the new concern, if the merger takes place. Legislation would be necessary, however, since Washington Railway & Electric is chartered by Congress, its officials said.

Hearing June 7

It was indicated yesterday that the plan may be aired June 7, when the SEC is scheduled to conduct hearings on the integration plan for North American.

Meanwhile, Capital Transit and W. R. & E. Co. yesterday petitioned the Public Utilities Commission for approval of a "compromise" settlement of suits pending against them, brought by certain bondholders of the Anacostia & Potomac River Railroad Co. and City & Suburban Railway.

The transit company proposed to assume liability, in effect, for the principal sum of $2,097,000 in 5 per cent bonds of the A. & P. R. R. Co., and $1,342,000 of City & Suburban 5 per cent bonds. Washington Railway & Electric proposed to guarantee payment on these bonds should the transit company default.

The proposed settlement included extension of the maturity date of the Anacostia bonds from April 1, 1949, to December 1, 1951, extension of the maturity date of the Suburban bonds from August 1, 1948, to December 1, 1951, a reduction of the rate of interest on both issues from 5 per cent to 3¾ per cent per annum effective after April 1, 1940, and other payment adjustments.

Episcopal Churches To Pray for Peace

Bishop James E. Freeman yesterday requested all clergy in the Washington diocese to lead special devotions in their churches tomorrow in observance of World Peace Sunday.

"We cannot be too instant in our prayers," Bishop Freeman told clergy of the diocese. "May I suggest that you summon your congregation to a period of silent prayer, followed by prayers for world order and peace. In our private as in our public devotions let us remember those who are passing this Gethsemane of suffering."

Charles Hart Goes Under Knife

Charles Hart, Eastern High School principal, was reported "resting comfortably" in Providence Hospital last night following a serious abdominal operation.

Two blood transfusions were given Hart after the operation.

Principal at Eastern for the last 22 years, Hart is considered the father of the Washington high school athletic system. He drew up the first set of eligibility rules in 1900, the year he joined the faculty of Business High School.

Ex-W. Va. Senator, C. W. Watson, Dies

Cincinnati, May 24 (AP).—Clarence W. Watson, 76, Democratic U. S. Senator from West Virginia from 1910 to 1912, died today after an operation. Watson, whose home was in Fairmont, W. Va., was president of Elkhorn Coal Corporation. He developed Consolidation Coal Co., but retired from its presidency.

100 Princeton Alumni Join In Toast to Allied Victory

Top—John Hanes, former Undersecretary of the Treasury; Victor Kauffmann, of the class of '89, and Arthur Krock, toastmaster at last night's banquet of Princeton alumni, talk about the "old days." Arthur Krock Expresses Hope Britain And France Will Defeat Enemy And Keep Educational Institutions Free

One hundred tuxedoed alumni of Princeton University, many of them notable Washingtonians, raised their glasses to "all free educational institutions" in Europe last night with a silent plea for an Allied victory to keep them free.

The toast was proposed by Arthur Krock, chief of the Washington bureau of The New York Times, at the annual banquet of the local Princeton Club at Chevy Chase, Md., Country Club.

Hope that the Allies would "defeat their enemies" was expressed in the proposal. Krock specifically mentioned Oxford, Cambridge, the Sorbonne, the University of Paris and University of Louvain.

Krock decried "domination of education by the state to suit a political philosophy." He said any college man who had been granted the privilege of "sheltered youth" at a place like Princeton must have a feeling of sympathy toward "those under threat of being shackled to the state in other countries."

Krock, who shared speaking honors with Robert Lincoln O'Brien, president of the local Harvard Club and former chairman of the Tariff Commission, paid facetious tribute to Harvard men by noting that they seem to be running things in this country nowadays, with "F. D. Roosevelt, Harvard '04, in charge and T. J. Corcoran, Harvard law school, '25, doing the thinking."

O'Brien was applauded warmly when he declared the United States must use "every bit of energy" in its power to effect an Allied success.

John W. Hanes, Undersecretary of the Treasury until last January, told the meeting the United States must have a sound economic system in order to have a strong external national defense.

He said, "politicians don't tell the truth about taxes." The excise tax, he declared, provides 40 per cent of the Nation's revenue and actually is "a glorified sales tax."

Baldwin Smith, professor of arts and archaeology at Princeton, called for less specialized education "in this day of change."

The banquet was the most largely attended in the club's history, said Huston Thompson, president.

Sherwood Church Calls Mr. Mussen To Be Its Pastor

The Sherwood Presbyterian Church, Twenty-second street and Rhode Island avenue northeast, last night called the Rev. Richard M. Mussen, of Danville, Va., to be its pastor.

Mr. Mussen will suceed the Rev. Thomas Law Coyle, who left the parish April 1 to become minister of a large church in San Diego, Calif.

One hundred and ninety members of Sherwood Church last night voted unanimously for Mr. Mussen. He is expected to be installed in the next few weeks.

Nichols Ave. Parking Ban Protested

Anacostia Citizens Say Rush-Hour Regulation Hurts Their Business

The rush hour parking ban in Nichols avenue between Good Hope road and Howard street southeast is working a severe hardship on merchants along the thoroughfare and is failing to accomplish its purpose, members of the Anacostia Citizens Association declared last night.

The organization adopted a resolution urging that the no-parking regulation put into effect several months ago be rescinded. It rules out parking on one side of the street during the morning rush hour, and on the other side from 4 to 6 p. m.

"The parking restriction fails because traffic is tied up anyhow at a bottleneck before it reaches the Nichols avenue stretch," declared William J. Tucker, "and people who used to stop to make purchases at our stores on their way to and from work can't do so any more."

The association also voted to file a complaint with the District sewerage department about a break in the sewer line near St. Elizabeths Hospital.

The National Capital Park and Planning Commission will be asked to construct another entrance to Anacostia Park. Citizens pointed out that at present the park can be entered only at the east and west ends. Their specific request is for an extension of Sixteenth street into the park. This would provide a midway entrance.

Civic Federation

A certificate of merit for outstanding work was awarded last night to the Midway Civic Association by the Federation of Civic Associations, at a meeting in the District Building. For individual activity a silver cup was awarded to George Johnson, president of the Midway Association. Presentations will be made June 6 at the Morgan School.

The federation asked for representation of colored doctors, dentists and nurses in the personnel of the Southwest Health Center, and that such representation be assigned to the center until appropriations for personnel are made available.

Through its social welfare committee, headed by Mrs. Edna W. Payton, questionnaires were distributed to all constituent associations, which will assist in compiling information on the economic situation of colored parents engaged as domestics, and the relation of this situation to juvenile delinquency.

Publication of financial reports compiled by the Board of Education of moneys collected from children in public schools in extra-curricular activities, and the purposes for which such moneys are used, was requested by the federation. The information was sought, it was stated, to disclose amounts contributed by various groups to augment appropriations for free education in the District of Columbia.

The federation went on record as opposed to a separate colored armory, said to be proposed by the National Guard heads, and directed further protest of any proposals for separation of National Guard armories because of race.

A resolution of appreciation of the services to the community of the late W. S. Ufford was passed. The federation decided to participate in a demonstration proposed by the District of Columbia Suffrage Asscciation, to be held early next year.

Walsh Speaks At Jewish Memorial Rites

Senator Pleads For Tolerance, Strong Defenses

A plea for peace and "a resolve to be prepared to defend our Nation" was voiced last night by Senator David I. Walsh (Democrat), of Massachusetts. He spoke at a memorial service given for Jewish dead in the last war by the Washington Hebrew Congregation and Washington Post No. 58 of Jewish War Veterans.

A group of 42 other military organizations participated in the memorial services held at the Temple, Eighth and H streets northwest. More than 500 attended.

"There is no place for racial or religious prejudice in this country," declared Senator Walsh in paying tribute to the part played by Jewish troops in the World War. He stated that "We are living in a world where force is almost the only thing, where spiritual guidance seems to have sunk to the lowest level."

The colorful pageantry of the massing of colors of the participating organizations opened the service. Rabbi Norman Gerstenfeld of the Washington Hebrew Congregation, conducted the religious service. Benjamin Aronshon, commander of Washington Post, No. 58, brought the greetings to the assembly.

Capital News In Brief

Tricky 'Mechanic'

Several complaints from tourists who have told police about their cars stalling after they had left them parked in downtown Washington, led yesterday to the arrest of a 26-year-old "mechanic."

The trick was this: Observing a motorist in trouble, the young man, posing as a mechanic, would approach the car and ask pleasantly if he could help. He could. Then he would suggest the remedy—a fuel pump, which happily he could install for the low price of $4.95. Then, according to police, he repaired an engine part with which he had previously tampered—and only pretended to install the pump.

He was held last night in No. 1 precinct station.

Raise-Mortgage Party

The National Child Research Center, 3209 Highland place northwest, will stage a raise-the-mortgage-from-the-roof party this afternoon. Events beginning at 3:30 p. m. will include side shows, pony rides, races, feats of magic, motion pictures and clown acts.

Nurses Elect Adda Lawson

Miss Adda Lawson, of Columbia Hospital, was elected chairman of the Private Duty Nurses Section of Doctor's Hospital at an organization meeting held yesterday. Nearly 50 attended.

Miss Grace H. McWirt, of Emergency Hospital, was elected secretary; Miss Gustava Schaesser, of George Washington Hospital, first vice president, and Miss Grace Garber, second vice president.

Hikers to Visit Fort

Capital Hiking Club members will visit Fort McHenry, near Baltimore, tomorrow. The party will leave Washington by bus from 1416 F street northwest at 9 a. m.

Leaving dads at home, mothers and daughters of Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church last night "stepped out" to their annual get-to-gether dinner. Gathering in the parish hall, they enjoyed Spanish and Dutch folk dances presented by youngsters from the Barney Neighborhood House, heard Miss Leslie Frost, daughter of Poet Robert Frost, read excerpts from her fascinating book, "Not Really," and joined in group singing led by Mrs. Sumner Wiley.

U. S. to Inquire Into Picketing Between Unions

An A. F. L.-C. I. O. controversy which caught proprietors of a 5-and-10-cent store in the middle gained the attention yesterday of the Department of Justice's Civil Liberties Division.

While department officials declined to discuss the matter on the grounds that they had not yet determined whether there is any basis for action, The Post learned an investigation was projected to discover if the proprietors' rights are being violated.

The dispute, resulting in A. F. L. picketing of the M. L. Robbin Co., 109 Eleventh street southeast, arose when C. I. O. labor was used to install plate glass windows at the store. Local 963, Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paper Hangers of America (A. F. L.) made known its objection by having the store picketed.

The C. I. O. retaliated with a sign saying the entire building, formerly a grocery store, was renovated by union labor and asking "why does the A. F. of L. continue to picket?"

Both of the opposing unions agreed 90 per cent of the renovation work had been done by A. F. L. labor, the remaining 10 per cent being installation of the windows.

John A. McConaty, member of a committee from the A. F. L. Building and Trades Council, which made representations to Maurice Robbin, owner of the store, said the A. F. L.'s policy was to put C. I. O. work in the same category as nonunion work.

"The Building and Trades Council," he added, "is not going to have its work mixed."

Robbin said the A. F. L. had threatened to keep the pickets on duty until the glass was removed and reinstalled by A. F. L. labor. This was denied by Mr. McConaty, who said a settlement must be reached in conference.

On another section of Washington's labor front, pickets of Local 188, Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America (C. I. O.) continued to march before 13 clothing stores. Conferences under supervision of the conciliation division, Department of Labor, have been adjourned, subject to call.

Flemming Calls On U. S. Workers To Close Ranks

Government employes must "shake themselves of any . . . complacency" to cope with major problems of strengthening the country's defenses, Arthur S. Flemming, United States Civil Service Commissioner, declared last night at the first annual institute of the Society for Personnel Administration.

Speaking at the Raleigh Hotel, Flemming declared: "During the next few weeks we must live with broad problems . . . to see to it we personnel people do not contribute to any breakdown in administrative machinery."

Flemming said the most important objective now demanded of the Civil Service Commission is speed in handling its part in defense preparations.

"This is no time for politics, much less for inside, personal politics."

Walter Dietz, vice president of the American Management Association, discussed personnel administration in private industry.

Presbyterians to Picnic

The annual Sunday school picnic of Covenant-First Presbyterian Church will be held today from 2 to 8 p. m. at Public Playgrounds No. 17, Military and Glover roads northwest.

Housing Group Asked to Plan Low-Rent Home

Federal Workers See Congestion When 5,000 Move Here in Fall

The Alley Dwelling Authority was requested to work out a definite plan for building and operating dwellings renting between $25 and $40 a month, and make them available to families of incomes between $1,300 and $2,000 a year, at a housing conference sponsored by the Washington Industrial Union Council at the North Interior Building last night.

The existing problem of housing for persons in the "middle third" income bracket will be aggravated when nearly 5,000 employes of the Social Security Board and their families are transferred here from Baltimore late this year, Morton Schaffram, of the United States Workers Association, pointed out in an address.

John Graham, architect on the staff of the United States Housing Authority, discussed the work of the agency. He declared that at the present time it must confine its work to persons in the "lowest third" income brackets.

Alexander Knowlton, president of the Washington Chapter of the Federation of Architects, Chemists, Engineers and Technicians of the C. I. O., said that "labor presents a vast market in the housing field." He warned against exploitation of the field. Charles S. Duke, chairman of the IUC Housing Committee, presided.

Panel speakers included Miss Helen Shufford, who discussed the rooming situation; Raymond Hull, discussing suburban housing; Jon Magnusson, the landlord-tenant problem, and James E. Harris, public low rent housing.

Mrs. Hattie F. King Sues for Divorce

Mrs. Hattie F. King, Veterans Administration clerk, sued in the District Court yesterday for a divorce from Arthur A. King, Bureau of Engraving and Printing clerk, whom she accused of misconduct.

The Kings were married here December 9, 1909, the complaint filed for Mrs. King by Attorney Leonard A. Block said, and separated December 12 last year.

Mrs. King asserted that in April her husband sued her for a divorce in Daytona Beach, Fla., charging cruelty. She denied that either of them was a Florida resident and asked that her husband be enjoined from pressing the Florida suit or filing a new one in Reno.

Barrett Wins First Test On Pools

Commission Backs Program to Provide All-Year Swimming At School Centers

Lewis R. Barrett, District recreation coordinator, won the first round yesterday in his new campaign to have public swimming pools built adjacent to schools, not merely near them, so they may be used the year around.

The National Capital Park and Planning Commission officially approved his suggestion that the proposed Langston High School be equipped with a pool—inclosed in winter and roofless in summer—instead of building the swimming tank at the nearby recreation center, where it could be used only three months a year.

"There is formidable opposition to the scheme," said Barrett, "but I believe it will prove more economical, more convenient and, by making year-around swimming possible for the public, a far greater service."

Cites Other School Examples

He pointed out that Takoma and Banneker recreation centers, McKinley and Anacostia high schools and Francis Junior High School all have outdoor pools detached from the school buildings. Hence they can be operated only in warm weather.

This situation, where it exists, cannot be changed. But, in building new schools at or near recreation centers—beginning with Langston—the architectural plans should provide swimming pool wings, possibly glass-inclosed, Barrett argued.

His position was seconded by T. C. Jeffers, staff member of the planning commission.

The only pools in public school buildings are at Central and Dunbar high, and these are not convertible, as the Langston pool would be under Barrett's plan. This new colored high school in Northeast Washington is still in a preliminary stage, with funds appropriated for plans but not for construction.

Other Commission Actions

Considering other items yesterday, the commission, with Chairman Frederic A. Delano presiding:

Approved revised progress plans for the proposed Scott Circle underpass and the grade separation project at Maine avenue and Fourteenth street southwest. The District's 1941 supply bill, as passed by the Senate, provides funds for the former and a $15,000 plan-drafting item for the latter.

Approved the closing of 27 contracts, aggregating $55,000, for land acquisition in Montgomery County, Md., in connection with development of George Washington Memorial Parkway.

Approved plans for a connecting road, to be built primarily for heavy traffic prohibited from Mount Vernon Memorial highway, between Washington National Airport and Jefferson Davis highway.

Approved plans for a bus-street car waiting station at Barney Circle, a small field house in Langdon Park and replacement of the Connecticut Avenue Bridge across Rock Creek in upper Chevy Chase.

Transfer of newly acquired land to expand Hoover Playground to authority of the District Commissioners.

2,000 'Cousins' Over World File Claim on Estate

Harassed by 2,000 claims from Ireland, New Zealand and all over America, executors of the $570,000 estate of Miss Mary Frances White yesterday asked the District Court to interpret her will.

When Miss White died here at 75 last April 25 she left $1,000 to "each of my cousins living at the time of my death, irrespective of the remoteness of relationship." The 2,000 claim they are cousins and entitled to $1,000 each.

The executors, Francis P. White, 3620 New Hampshire avenue northwest, and George Borger, 643 Indiana avenue northwest, asked the court to determine whether this bequest was valid and if it was to appoint a special master to distribute the money.

In danger of diminution because of the multiplicity of cousins were Miss White's $10,000 bequests to Catholic University, Holy Cross College, and $5,000 bequests to a number of other charities and persons.

200 D.C. Crippled Children Forget Crutches On Junior Chamber's Boat Ride on Potomac

'N' There Was a Clown, 'N' Games, 'n' Eats, 'N' Just Everything

Two hundred Washington crippled children sailed down the Potomac yesterday as guests of the Junior Board of Commerce.

They spent an afternoon with entertainment that ranged from Frank Portillo's clown antics to singing "Anchors Aweigh." And eats beginning with milk and crackers led up to a climax of ice cream and cake.

The boat ride, an annual event with the Junior Board, took place on the S. S. Mount Vernon. It was staged under the general chairmanship of William H. Sardo, jr.

Charles Gallant had charge of refreshments, William Herrmann of transportation, and Robert Vaughan of entertainment. Others on the committee were Charles Carr, Austin DeWilde, John B. Ecker, Earle Hough, Don Irwin, Charles V. Koons, Gene Miller, Hugh Nesbitt, Jack Schoo, Freeman Slye and W. M. Wilson.

Sara Stowers had a lot of fun watching the clever marionette act of Clown Frank Portillo on yesterday's boat ride for crippled children, sponsored by the Junior Board of Commerce

Dr. Fieldner Wins Sullivant Medal

Dr. Arno C. Fieldner, chief of the technologic branch of the U. S. Bureau of Mines in Washington, will receive Ohio State University's Joseph Sullivant medal at commencement exercises on June 10, Dr. Howard L. Bevis, president, reported yesterday at Columbus, Ohio.

The medal is awarded every five years "for an admittedly notable achievement on the part of a son or daughter of the university." Dr. Fieldner received his chemical engineering degree from Ohio State in 1906.

Pastor Hails Box Bible Group As a Mainstay of Congregation

By Robert Tate Allan

The Box Bible Class, among the bulwarks of Emory Methodist Church and one of the most active groups of its kind in Washington, will elect and install officers tomorrow morning.

Assembling in the church auditorium at 9:30 a. m., the members will choose, among others, a successor to Howard M. Stackhouse, who is relinquishing his presidential duties after two successful years.

Dr. Horace E. Cromer, pastor and former president of the Washington Federation of Churches, who will officiate at the installation at 11 a. m., will deliver the baccalaurate address to the graduating class of Sibley Hospital.

The Emory Methodists at 8 p. m. will be hosts to Lewis Memorial Methodist Church members at a joint sacred musical program directed by C. Wilfred Smith, Emory choir leader. The Rev. John A. Trader, Lewis Church pastor, will speak.

Pastor Hails Class

Dr. Cromer yesterday lauded the adult Bible class programs as one of the mainstays of his congregation, and explained that separate facilities for the adult departments would be provided in a new building project to be launched in the spring of 1941, tentatively.

It was back in 1922, he said, that a mixed class of men and women agreed to organize separate groups, with the result that the Box Class and the Mabel Gatley Class came into being, the former named after former Representative J. C. Box, of Texas, now retired from politics.

B. J. Hamm, president of the original Box Class and often referred to as its "granddaddy," and several other charter members are still active.

The Mabel Gatley group was named after a beloved teacher who retired from the position about three years ago.

Mrs. J. H. Sheppe is class president. The Friendship class is led by Mrs. Richard Clark, whose husband is an official of the Box Class.

Mildred Lee Elected

Following the United Methodist Church's appeal for younger adult programs, for the 24 to 40-year-old group, Emory Church has organized a Young Wesleyans unit, which elected Miss Mildred Lee, as head, last Tuesday night.

Leaders of the regular church school will help conduct the activities, to be operated on a project basis. They will include Dr. A. L. Howard, chairman of the church's board of education, director; Mrs. Brown C. Chism, Mrs. Fidel Cordero, Mrs. J. J. Koopmann and H. T. Waesche, general Sunday school superintendent. J. Edward Fowler is chairman of the congregation's official board.

Another summer activity soon to begin will be Sunday night vespers

Liquidation of the church parsonage debt, making the congregation debt free, will be celebrated on Sunday, June 2, just three days before the end of the conference year. The liquidation will pave the way for completion of plans for a $110,000 addition to the present church building, according to Dr. Cromer.

Schedules of Youth Activities

Announcement was made yesterday that the annual summer conference of the District Christian Endeavor Union will be held from July 3-6 at Mary Washington College, Fredericksburg, Va.

Those expected to participate include the Rev. Daniel K. Poling, son of Dr. Daniel A. Poling, president of the World Christian Endeavor Union; Dr. Edward Hughes Pruden, pastor of First Baptist Church here and president of the Washington Federation of Churches; Dr. C. E. Hawthorne, pastor of Wallace Memorial Presbyterian Church; the Rev. John L. Mixon, head of the social welfare department, the Federation; the Rev. Edward O. Clark, pastor of Chevy Chase Baptist Church, and Louis Potter, organist at Calvary Methodist Church here. Josephine Davis is president of the 1940 convention.

The Rev. H. D. Southard, Army chaplain, will address the Youth Forum of Ingram Memorial Congregational Church tomorrow at 7 p. m. His theme will be "A Man and a Boy, and the Place of a Young Man In the Church."

The East Washington District younger adult department will meet on Monday at 8 p. m. at Epworth Methodist Church.

A three-act comedy, entitled "Enter, Angela," will be presented on Tuesday and Wednesday at 8:15 p. m. in the Bible School auditorium of Wallace Memorial Presbyterian Church, New Hampshire avenue, below Randolph street northwest, by the Senior Christian Endeavorers.

Rev. H. J. Smith Called by New Baptist Church

The Rev. Henry J. Smith, who recently resigned as pastor of the Petworth Baptist Church, has been called by a new congregation, known as the North Washington Baptists.

Operating under an organization committee of which Everett V. Haycraft is chairman, the new congregation, composed of former Petworth Baptists, is now meeting in the Stansbury Lodge Hall, 5832 Georgia avenue northwest, Brightwood, on Sunday mornings. Evening services and midweek prayer meetings are being held jointly with the Highlands Baptist Church, Fourteenth and Jefferson streets northwest, of which the Rev. Newton M. Simmonds is pastor.

The new congregation, with a membership of 100, has selected the following officers to serve until formation of a permanent church organization in November:

Charles S. Mason, clerk; A. J. Glaniny, treasurer; A. J. Glaniny, Herbert Sledge, John R. Hudgins, John M. Firmin, John A. Hain and Truman Lancaster, deacons; Mrs. J. C. Louder, Mrs. Helen Artley, Mrs. H. N. Lancaster, Mrs. Florence Reed, Mrs. Meta O'Flaherty and Miss Thelma Pryer, deaconesses; D. D. Collins, Thomas C. Chisholm, E. L. Hain, Mrs. J. C. Firmin and Mrs. E. W. Leach, finance committee; Charles S. Mason, John R. Hudgins, Vernon Dodge, Everett F. Haycraft and Miss Mary J. Wright, trustees; Everett F. Haycraft, church school superintendent; John M. Firmin, assistant and John R. Hudgins, secretary.

Ordination Set For Pastor's Son At National City

Raphael Harwood Miller, jr., will be ordained to the ministry in services tomorrow at 11 a. m. at National City Christian Church, of which his father is pastor.

Participating in the ceremony will be Dr. and Mrs. Miller, the Rev. Ivan H. Dugan, associate pastor; church elders; Edward Dowdy, seminary classmate of the younger Miller, and others. Dr. Miller will preach on "Whereof I am Called to Be a Minister."

Dr. Pierce to Preach

Dr. Ulysses G. B. Pierce, minister of All Souls' Unitarian Church, will preach tomorrow at 11 a. m. on "The Ministry of Memory." Delegates to the Boston meetings of the American Unitarian Association will discuss "Unitarians and Social Questions" before the class in current problems meeting at 10 o'clock. At the same hour, Winslow H. Herschel, of the Bureau of Standards, will address the comparative religion class on "Animism and Mania in Primitive Religion."

"Oh God Our Help in Ages Past"
- - - ISAAC WATTS - - -

O God, our help in ages past,
Our hope for years to come;
Our shelter from the stormy blast,
And our eternal home!

Under the shadow of Thy throne
Thy saints have dwelt secure;
Sufficient is Thine arm alone,
And our defense is sure.

This hymn, based on the Ninetieth Psalm is considered one of the best hymns of the "Father of English Hymn-Writers." An invalid, suffering much, Watts must have depended on God for his own help and strength.

Destruction in Wake of Nazi Blitzkrieg . . .

Associated Press RADIOPHOTO.

Antwerp in Flames— Huge smoke clouds rose from Antwerp, Belgium, as the city was under German bombardment May 18, the day it fell to Nazi invaders. The following day a German report said the city appeared deserted, its streets cluttered with burning, shell-battered automobiles, debris and fallen wires. This view is apparently from the side of the Scheldt River opposite Antwerp. (Photo radioed from Berlin yesterday)

Anna Neagle Reveals New Artistry In Picturized "Irene," at Keith's

British Beauty Is Singer and Dancer In Film Directed By Herbert Wilcox

"IRENE." Herbert Wilcox' picturization for RKO-Radio of the musical comedy by James H. Montgomery, Harry Tierney and Joseph McCarthy, adapted to the screen by Alice Duer Miller starring Anna Neagle, with Ray Milland, Roland Young, Alan Marshall, May Robson, Billie Burke, Arthur Treacher, Marsha Hunt, Isabel Jewell, Doris Nolan, Stuart Robertson and Ethel Griffies. Directed by Mr. Wilcox. Reviewed Friday morning. At RKO-Keith's Theater.

To those who know Anna Neagle only as "Victoria the Great" or "Nurse Edith Cavell," her appearance in the title role of "Irene" will prove a revelation.

BELL

In her two earlier serious film plays, Miss Neagle was a distinguished actress. As Irene O'Dare, she is a brilliant comedienne, singer and dancer. To lay greatest stress upon the versatility of this gifted British star, "Irene," revealing her more as she really is, should have come first.

Appearing in person at yesterday's first performance at RKO-Keith's—and three times more, later in the day—Miss Neagle demonstrated that she is quite the charming, graceful and richly endowed artiste her present vehicle represents her to be. Following the screening of the picture, Producer-Director Herbert Wilcox was introduced from the stage by Manager Hardie Meakin and, after a few brief expressions of appreciation to a crowded house, presented the star he has directed in her last three pictures.

Costumed in the "Alice Blue Gown" made famous by the musical comedy, "Irene" sang that lilting number and then, utilizing the full stage, repeated the waltz that had just been seen in the picture, assisted by a partner from the Metropolitan Opera dancing corps, substituting for Ray Milland, who was unable to make the tour by reason of pressing film commitments in Hollywood. It was a difficult matter to identify this gay and fascinating young woman as the same who had so perfectly assumed the characters of Britain's beloved Queen and the martyred nurse of the Great War. An ovation is not an overstatement of what Miss Neagle received from those out front.

Alice Duer Miller has made a splendid adaption of "Irene" for the screen. The libretto of the original stage musical has become an amusing, closely integrated and superlatively well acted and sung romantic comedy. While no attempt has been made to introduce all of the songs of the Harry Tierney-Joseph McCarthy score during the pictured action, all of the familiar melodies are heard as background accompaniment, deftly arranged and directed by Anthony Collins. Miss Neagle's "Alice Blue Gown" number and dance sequences are photographed in strikingly beautiful Technicolor, with the world-wide popularity of the song indicated by the clever interpolation of scenes in many countries and an hilarious "hot" finale in New York's Harlem.

We already have attempted to convey something of Miss Neagle's perfection in the title role—an adroit bit of casting that is enhanced by the star's exceedingly neat brogue. Ray Milland and Alan Marshall play opposite her effectively in the romantic leads, with Roland Young and Arthur Treacher adding their comedy touches and May Robson acquitting herself in fine feather as Irene's crotchety grandmother. Billie Burke has another of her fluttery, addle-pated roles, as Mrs. Vincent, and Marsha Hunt appears advantageously in the less conspicuous part of Eleanor Worth, whose life was almost wrecked.

New York, May 24.

LAMENT: A press association reporter went to see Senator Vandenberg a few days ago to question the Presidential candidate about the effect of recent events upon the campaign. "Don't you believe, Senator," he asked Vandenberg, "that the crisis in Europe improves the possibilities of a third term? And that Wendell Willkie's chances also are increasing?" . . . "I'm beginning to suspect, sighed Vandenberg, "that God is showing signs of being a Democrat."

PATIENT: Moss Hart wrote to Alexander Woollcott, who is recuperating in Vermont, and asked whether Woollcott would like him to come up. "Yes, even you," Alex replied. "I'm just that desperate." . . . Harold Guinzburg, of Viking Press, also wrote to Woollcott asking whether it's all right for him to play games, and how this differs from his usual custom. "Yes, it's all right for me to play Cribbage," said Woollcott, "but the doctor says, for my health's sake, it must be different—I must win."

DRAMA: Bramwell Fletcher, of "Margin for Error," is the unhappiest actor now working in a Broadway show. He portrays the Nazi Consul's aide and one of his lines is: "I love Germany. I love all that Hitler has done for it. He gave us back our honor, our belief in ourselves" . . . Fletcher is British. His family now is fighting with the army in Belgium.

DEFEAT: Goodman Ace went to the race track, where he was given a tip by the owner of a horse entered in the race. "I listen to your radio show every day," the horse owner stated, "and I like you so much. That's why I'm telling you—bet heavily on my horse, to place" . . . The horse ran fifth in a five-horse race . . . "Well, I was wrong," the owner later apologized to the radio star. "The trouble was—I listen to you every night and" . . . In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, May 24.

William Anthony McGuire, who knows what he's talking about, wrote a fascinating story of the life and loves of the most glamorous star America's ever known—Lillian Russell. But what they show on the screen is not Lillian Russell, but Alice Faye. It's not Alice's fault. She can't change features or the quality God gave her, nor can she assume the aura of beauty, not only of face but of spirit, that Lillian had. When Lillian entered a room, sunshine came with her. When she sang "Come Down, My Evening Star," you felt you could reach up and pluck a star with her. Some people have that quality. She was born with it. And it can't be assumed. Lillian was never too busy to help the other fellow. While it was all right for her to accept a diamond bracelet which came in a basket of roses, yet if a chorus girl in the old Weber and Fields days accepted one and went out with the giver, before she went Lillian told her what she might expect.

HOPPER

Now, I have the greatest admiration for Henry Fonda's acting, but as Alexander Moore he was a fugitive from the "Grapes of Wrath" dust bowl. True, the young generation, who didn't know Russell, will love the picture. Those of us who did feel differently.

The production and costumes were among the finest Zanuck has ever turned out. And the other characters, like Weber and Fields, Edward Arnold, Joe Cawthorn, Leo Carrillo, Helen Westley, Don Ameche, and Eddie Foy, jr., were marvelous.

In watching Weber and Fields, you realize that the spark of showmanship never dies. We have one little guy in pictures who has the same spark. His name is Mickey Rooney. They seem to have grease paint instead of blood in their veins, and we love it.

The title for the Jack Benny-Fred Allen picture is "Love Thy Neighbor." And poor Allen (I feel so sorry for him) will have to struggle along with a measly $100,000 for the picture.

W. C. Fields writes, "Dear Old Aunt Hedda: I'm going to write for the papers shortly, giving the lowdown on you and the rest of the keyhole gang, and I'm hoping you won't all get the old heave-ho before I get going. (Signed) Fieldsie, old boy."

I love Mae West going from "She Done Him Wrong" to "Not Bad," for her next picture. She hasn't "done bad," either, and her last picture with Fieldsie cleaned up.

It's fun watching Peter Hayes, Eddie Quillan and Frank Jenks in a scene together in the same picture. Their scene stealing is grand larceny. Before they begin, Director Joe Santley says, "Go to it, boys—every man for himself."

And as I passed my favorite prop boy on that set he was wearing a very low sport shirt, which prompted me to say, "Oh, you've got hair on your chest this morning." "Yes, my wife just knit it for me."

"Torrid Zone," Rakish Farce, Is Earle Hit

Ann Sheridan, Cagney, O'Brien All Score; Novel Living Bill

By Richard L. Coe.

"TORRID ZONE." Warner Brothers picturization of an original screen play by Richard Macaulay and Jerry Wald, costarring James Cagney, Ann Sheridan and Pat O'Brien, with Andy Devine, Helen Vinson, Jerome Cowan, George Tobias, George Reeves, Victor Kilian, Frank Puglia, John Ridgely, Grady Sutton, Paul Porcasi, Frank Yaconnelli, Dick Botelier, Frank Mayo, Jack Mower, Paul Hurst George Regas and Elvira Sanchez. Directed by William Keighley. Reviewed Friday afternoon. At the Earle Theater.

Rakish, lusty and high-spirited, "Torrid Zone," at the Earle, affords James Cagney and Pat O'Brien further rivalry and presents a salty-spoken Ann Sheridan of whose previous existence we had cared not a whit. But in "Torrid Zone," the gal to whom Cagney ascribes "14-karat oomph" in a tantalizing tag-line plays a winning, if disreputable, trollop to the ultimate genteel philippic.

For its "in the flesh" entertainment, the Earle assigns its audiences a goodly portion of the bill, in picking out members to lead the house in song and making it hold its collective breath while the Roxyettes roll about on unicycles, which, in case you don't get it, are bicycles with half the wheels subtracted. It all makes for novel, unnerving sport, about which yesterday's first house was twice as nervous as the sorely-tried Roxyettes—and needlessly so.

You'll like the so-what, disheveled air of "Torrid Zone" and the sloppy banana-land in which it's laid, banana company in this equatorial banana company in this equitoral maze and Cagney his most annoying, invaluable assistant. Helen Vinson is the polite, sleek, man-mad wife of an ineffectual plantation manager, Jerome Cowan. George Tobias is a well-meaning native who wants his land back and Andy Devine is fatter than ever.

Film Kids Itself

Into this damp group drops whisky-drinking, poker-playing, wise-cracking Ann Sheridan, boasting a vitality that recalls the late Jean Harlow. O'Brien, for reasons we could not completely fathom, decides she is a bad influence, must be deported back to the States. If tough Annie has to ride banana cars, sleep on improvised cots, play cards with greasy natives, that's all right with her. As all the faithful know, when two invincible forces like Cagney and Sheridan meet, a melting is inevitable.

The sooner you get on to the fact that "Torrid Zone" is kidding itself and is refusing to take our little lives seriously, the sooner you'll enjoy it. Cleverly scripted by Richard Macaulay and Jerry Wald, the film is rapidly paced by Director William Keighley and enthusiastically played by a rough and ready company.

Two Stage Novelties

The stage show's first attack on the audience is a novel pack of fun. Happy Eileen Ritter roams the orchestra floor with a small hand "mike" and urges the patrons to have a try at leading a community sing. Remuneration is three-fold: Tickets to next week's show, a round of applause for your trouble and a smile from Roxyette Ritter.

Second matter to worry Earle audiences is the Roxyettes' tour on those one-wheeled machines. They do it, thanks to the way we clenched our chair. Balance of the bill is a trifle more orthodox, Ward and Van, those comical fellows with a tired violin and an active harp, are back and Ruby Ring, who must spend all her time thinking of new ways to twist her elastic self, scores heavily in her early spot. Ben Beri juggles and Yola Gali sings Strauss.

Another minor hero of the day is a daft color cartoon, a "Merry Melody" which takes a very punny tour of our nature spots. Only thing to take you from this purely escapist atmosphere are Paramount's soul-searing clippings of the war, unique and terrible documents of lawless banditry.

Expert Lionel

Because it is difficult for an actor to rattle off scientific or technical language without knowing the exact meaning of what he is saying, Lionel Barrymore has read medicine so extensively that he is a veritable lexicon on the subject.

Salty Comedy At Capitol Is Beery Natural

"Twenty-Mule Team" Is Wild and Woolly; Stage Bill a Hit

"TWENTY-MULE TEAM." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picturization of a story by Robert C. DuSoe and Owen Atkinson, adapted to the screen by Cyril Hume, E. E. Paramore and Richard Maibaum, starring Wallace Beery, with Leo Carrillo, Marjorie Rambeau, Anne Baxter, Douglas Fowley, Noah Beery, jr., Berton Churchill, Arthur Hohl, Clem Bevans, Minor Watson and others. Directed by Richard Thorpe. Reviewed Friday morning. At Loew's Capitol.

It's a three-way winner—this new show at the Capitol. The Old West rolls in with "Twenty-Mule Team" chunking down Death Valley to an obligato of sudden death and salty laughs. The stage show cracks all records by having three topflight comedy acts—Cyril Smith, Max and his Gang, and Frank Gaby. The Messrs. Smith and Gaby don't believe in well-soaped jokes, but they had the audience yipping and whistling with joy at Friday's first show. And Sam Jack Kaufman has torn himself off an overture that contrasts a European blitzkrieg with the peace spirit and winds up with a beautiful soloing of "God Bless America."

Dust, cussing and the smick of blacksnake whips sets the tune of "Twenty-Mule Team." We can't honestly say that the story is so much but something is certainly happening all the time. With the ingenuous Wallace Beery finagling bartenders, committing assorted homicides, getting beaten up by Marjorie Rambeau and finally lying down in the desert to die (don't worry, Mr. Beery is rescued just as the buzzards begin to pick at his thick skull) you have so much fun that you don't notice the story. It involves love and claim-jumping, if you must know.

Speaks a Thick Language

The language is something marvelous in "Twenty-Mule Team." Naturally, the Hays' office wouldn't stand for real cussing. But the mule-skinner expletives are so thick that you'll hardly notice it. Mr. Beery execrates everything he can think of, beginning with his mules and winding up with the Sovereign State of California. He also takes time out to call Marjorie Rambeau some kind of an "old muley cow." Beautiful Ann Baxter is dismissed as a "hip-switching little vinegar ball."

Highly interesting to all movie fans will be the appearance of Noah Beery, jr., as a young leading man. Noah looks more like his uncle than his daddy; surprises you with the thought that Uncle Wally Beery obliwas a good looking young fellow some 30 years ago.

Miss Rambeau Scores

Marjorie Rambeau isn't allowed to be as pretty as she was in "Primrose Path," but she does another beautiful chore as Josie Johnson, head lady of a Death Valley barroom and hotel. Leo Carrillo plays "Piute Pete," a lovable saddle-colored rascal. It's a natural for him. There had to be a city slicker in the story. Douglas Fowley was unlucky enough to be elected for the role which includes theft, attempted seduction, a smidgeon of murder and death a la coyote.

A spectacular Joan of Arc pageant and the brilliant singing-stepping of the Gray Family compete with the previously mentioned comedy values of the stage show. Helene Denizon is very lovely as Joan, both on her entry on a white horse and later as a solo dancer. Max and his gang of fox terriers offer a sho' 'nuff surprise in animal acts.

MARY HARRIS.

Gable to Enact Famous Figure

One of the cleverest and most colorful confidence men in the history of the West is to be brought to the screen by Clark Gable.

"Soapy Smith," famous character of the boom days of Colorado, is to be produced by Pandro Berman for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer as a Gable starring vehicle.

Based on the book, "The Reign of Soapy Smith," by William Ross Collier and Edwin Victor Westgate, the story tells the adventurous career of the man who started as a small-time "pitch man, selling soap, and who ultimately became a virtual dictator of a small Colorado town.

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Hollywood, May 24 (1935).—Never has a sociological picture attracted such sensational attention as the birth film, "The Fight for Life." So it is news indeed, my friends, to learn that Columbia has bought it for national release. New York critics broke their typewriters telling of the great poignant drama of Pare Lorentz's production—and the First Lady, herself, deemed it one of the greatest educational features ever filmed. The story is entirely concerned with the valiant fight made by young doctors and nurses to keep down the birth mortality rate in the slums of New York.

LOUELLA PARSONS

One publication went so far as to say that prospective mothers and young married women should not see it—because actual births are shown. But this brought violent protest from masses of women who claim the terrific background scoring of the picture, which records heartbeats of both mothers and babies during delivery, is not too much for them to take. One thing Columbia can bank on is that they have a picture on their hands that will attract controversial comments.

Starting Monday this column will be written for a few weeks by Harriet Parsons, who is known to many of my readers as Parsons, junior. She will tell you all the news and gossip of Hollywood and you'll probably like her column so well you won't even miss me. I'll be back in a few weeks, however, after a holiday in Honolulu, where my favorite doctor and I are going to take a much-needed rest. If anything new happens in Honolulu, you may be sure I'll cable it. From the number of picture people who are registered at the Royal Hawaiian, I fancy there'll be a spot of news here and there.

I have always said—and I say it again—there is no young character actress in Hollywood who can out-act Claire Trevor in the sort of hard-boiled character roles she plays so well. Now Paramount has signed her for a typical Trevor role in "Silver Queen," a story that deals with a Western mining town with a gal who bosses the gambling and financial interests—played, of course, by Claire. Allan Dwan, one of our better directors, has been signed to direct her and the picture is slated for early production.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Nancy Kelly denies she has broken her engagement to Irving Cummings, jr., but admits at the moment there is a coolness; Bette Davis is home with a cold; Douglass Montgomery beaued Esme O'Brien to the Cafe Lamaze opening. Hedy Lamarr and Gene Markey were with Myrna Loy and Arthur Hornblow, also there, listening to Greta Keller; Sabu at the Brown Derby with a small radio concentrating on war news.

George Raft, no less, taught Elsa Maxwell how to box in her battle with Slapsie Maxie; today is Elsa's birthday and the Darryl Zanucks are giving a small dinner in her honor; Johnny Weissmuller has gone to San Francisco to talk over a new deal with Billy Rose to star in the 1940 aquacade; Marcel Rogez, Wesley Ruggles' favorite girl friend, is having a terrific time getting out of France; Jacqueline Wells, once wed to Walter Brooks, is now a flaming redhead. She was out stepping the other eve with Henry Willson.

Diane Lewis, Bill Powell's youthful wife, looked like a schoolgirl at Perino's in a short skirt, socks and slack shoes; Simone Simon and Bill Josephy have been regular dinner guests at Perino's; Judith Allen makes a footlight bow in Hollywood at the Las Palmas Theater in "The Sixth Floor," on June 3. She was formerly wed to Jack Doyle, former pugilist.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

Aside from the American League standings:

NEW YORK—Where baseball is confined to the ball parks . . . and the man on the street is otherwise concerned . . . The Nats' hotel in the center of the cloak and suit district . . . Dempsey's, where you never see any New Yorkers . . . the constant rumble of subway trains beneath the sidewalk and the comforting reminder that here are ready-made bomb shelters . . . the strict rules against unescorted women at the hotel bars . . . the politest cops and cab drivers in the world . . . the suffocating efficiency of the hotel clerks and bellhops, and the 2-cent city tax on cigarettes . . . night-clubbing couples who look like father and daughter . . . to give them the benefit of the doubt . . . the cross-town traffic that moves like a rheumatic snail . . . Broadway's fruit-juice and hamburger stands outnumbering the fire plugs . . . Yankee Stadium, big, dark and forbidding, and the worst place in the league to watch a ball game . . . Babe Ruth in civilian clothes a bigger hero than any Yankee in uniform.

POVICH

BOSTON—The de luxe Copley Plaza Hotel which once upon a time would have no truck with baseball teams . . . on the theory that anybody who wore a cap wasn't genteel . . . downtown Boston with its dead-end streets . . . girls in flat-heel shoes and prim hats, and the impression that they are all studying to be librarians . . . Jack Sharkey's block-long bar . . . Beacon Street, where the blueboods cling to their out-moded hutches . . . the eternal squabbling between the hotel waiters and the chefs behind the swinging doors . . Harvard boys with crew haircuts and the studied carelessness of their clothes . . . and their marvelous unconsciousness of their broad A . . . Irish politicians . . . the city's amazing ability always to come up with a sensational murder case . . . the yearning for another major league pennant . . . Fenway Park, with a capacity of more than 40,000 despite the fact it is single-deck . . . Tom Yawkey's sumptuous press room where he keeps the trophies of his hunts . . . the Royal Box where Mrs. Tom Yawkey and Mrs. Joe Cronin watch the games.

PHILADELPHIA—The one town in the world where the street cars actually do chase you up an alley . . . where the city founders apparently thought that Philadelphia some day would be a thriving metropolis of 12,000 people . . . the unemployed sunning themselves around city hall, ignoring the "Men Wanted" bulletins posted there . . . the rows of ancient brick tenements, many still retaining the periscopes or "busybodies" which enable the occupants to look up and down the street while out of sight themselves . . . the big, new postoffice which rewarded Philadelphia Democrats . . . the conservative Bulletin, bible of Philadelphia newspaper readers . . . the dopes who spend Sunday in Philly, with Atlantic City only one hour away . . . the subway that few people use after ten years spent in building it . . . the Phillies' unused ball park, empty and ghost-like on valuable Broad street property . . . the kids around the press gate at Shibe Park, who insist on going to the game with you . . . Connie Mack's office, hidden among the rafters, from which he never emerges until ten minutes before game time.

CHICAGO—The only town with a chance of catching up to New York . . . Michigan Boulevard, where the shops rival Fifth Avenue . . . the loop, where all is confusion . . . the downtown subway ramp which is always pointed out to sightseers as the spot where Jack Lingle was machine-gunned by the mob . . . the largest Negro population outside of Harlem which has taken over the once-fashionable South Side section where once lived little Bobby Franks . . . victim of the Leopold-Loeb murder . . . the fastest-moving traffic in the world . . . the long Outer Drive, reclaimed from Lake Michigan and beautified . . . crusading District Attorneys . . . The Tribune, with its circulation more than 1,000,000, lucky to be the only paper in the Chicago morning field and seemingly impregnable to any challenger . . . the White Sox park, hard by the stockyards, and no flower garden when the wind is from the Southwest.

DETROIT—Where everybody knows somebody in General Motors and can get you a car at cost . . . they say . . . a boom town which is already rubbing its hands in expectation of war-machine orders . . . the Book-Cadillac Hotel, the haven of everybody who is in Detroit on an expense account . . . suspicious-looking youths in the cocktail lounges must sign a statement that they are more than 21 . . . Hamtramck, the Polish suburb where English is a foreign language . . . the gymnasiums filled with colored boys who aspire to be another Joe Louis . . . the newspapers still making heroes out of the Detroit ball players . . . radios in every shop blaring the play-by-play of the Tigers' games . . . Harry Heilman, the old Tiger outfielder, giving baseball broadcasts second only to Arch McDonald's . . . Sam Crawford, the old Tiger slugger, running an elevator . . . the all-day parking lots where the price is only a dime . . . Windsor, Canada, across the river and actually south of Detroit.

CLEVELAND—America's biggest overgrown village . . . where everybody is going or coming from the Public Square . . . Communists meeting in the square and ranting against the capitalist system . . . the quadroons who run the hotel elevators and wear the latest coiffures, undoubtedly at the hotel's expense . . . where the "For Rent" signs always direct the customer to the offices of Alva Bradley, who owns most of the town, including the ball team . . . the consarned tooting of the whistles on the lake boats throughout the night . . . the lake front where Billy Rose's aquacade was born three years ago . . . and unappreciated . . . where you wait until midnight for the morning papers, because the only morning paper has no competition . . . where everybody talks about Bob Feller . . . where Ladies' Day is a gathering of the she-wolves who boo visiting players from the moment they show their heads out of the dugout.

ST. LOUIS—Where there is utterly no reason to go down town if you are stopping at one of the suburban hotels . . . because St. Louis is hugely unexciting . . . the beautiful residential sections with private roadways barred to the public . . . the town that boasts the prettiest girls in the American League circuit, and the finest Municipal Opera . . . those hideous X-marks on the streets which denote that a person met his death in a traffic accident at that spot . . . the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, which is the best newspaper in the West . . . the stockyards section which would make a vegetarian out of the passer-by . . . ratty old Sportsman's Park, where the Browns and the Cardinals play their games . . . the fierce loyalty of the few hundred fans who watch the Browns play at home . . . the brutal climb to the press box under the eves, which is no goal, even after it is attained.

On the Line

With* CONSIDINE

New York, May 24.—There will be more jerks at the Garden tomorrow night than there were the time Fritz Kuhn made his speech there.

The old Muscle Maison will resound to the oomphs and wheeze of the national senior weight-lifting championship. One of the feature events is what the boys call a "two-handed clean and jerk." It describes the process of lifting one of those overstuffed dumbbells off the floor and getting it up to your chest, then giving it a sudden jerk ceilingward.

CONSIDINE

This differs sharply from the "two-arm snatch," which we hasten to describe as grabbing a weight off the floor and giving it a nonstop lift over the head. The other event—if it can be called that—is the "two-arm military press." This is a system of lifting that box-car axle and wheels off the floor, resting it on the chest a moment and pressing it slowly upward. This slow press thus makes it different than the jerk off the chest. But don't ask me how.

The most perfectly named weight-lifter in years, Steve Stanko, is the heavyweight (over 181 pounds) champion of the country. He won his title, and that A. A. U. medal, by lifting 290 pounds by means of the military press, 300 in the snatch and 380 in the jerk. His principal opposition is expected to come from Lou Ebele and John Davis, the colored light-heavyweight weight-lifting champ, who ate himself into the heavyweight division during the off-season.

The golden age of the weight-lifting game was between 1885 and 1914, when Eugene Sandow and Arthur Saxon were around. They were great showmen, made a lot of money, and could really tote those iron muddlers. Saxon lifted 370 pounds with one paw. Sandow lifted a capsized automobile out of a ditch near London.

The nonsense all started pretty seriously. A beer-hall revolutionist named Jahn began it back in 1848 in Germany. He was getting a gang together to change the order of things over there, and hit upon the lifting of weights as a means of training them. When he passed along another German, a Prof. Attila (not the Mr. Attila), made it into Germany's national sport, and that it stayed until 1914. The professor was tops for a long time, and performed before many thousands as a special attraction at Queen Victoria's Jubilee.

The A. A. U. swears there are 1,500,000 weight-lifters in America today—a safe assertion inasmuch as that was the question the census takers didn't ask.

However, only about a thousand or so of them go in for the thing competitively. About 60 of these have come to New

Bees Beaten In Rain, Fog In New York

Gumbert Hurls Five-Hit Ball to Win; Three Home Runs Help N. Y. Attack

By the Associated Press

New York, N. Y., May 24.—Ending their long holdout against night baseball with a merry-go-round ride at the expense of the Boston Bees, the New York Giants hammered out an 8-to-1 victory tonight behind the five-hit pitching of Harry Gumbert.

Three home runs furnished the big noise in the 13-hit bombardment by the Giants, who sent ten batters to the plate in the second inning.

Joe Moore shot one of the four-masters into the rightfield stands in the first inning and Bill Jurges and Albie Glossup added the others during the 6-run second inning.

This display apparently satisfied the crowd of 22,260 "first nighters" who came to view Manhattan's initial night baseball game, and before the show was half over many of the spectators had started homeward. The night was chilly and damp with a wet fog blowing into the park.

Armstrong Stops Zanelli In 5th Round

By the United Press

Boston, Mass., May 24.—World Welterweight Champion Henry Armstrong, perpetual motion man of boxing, tonight successfully defended his title for the seventeenth time when he scored a technical knockout over Ralph (Rippen) Zanelli, of Providence, R. I., in the fifth round of a scheduled 15-round bout at Boston Garden.

Armstrong, who, at 140½, conceded 5 pounds to the challenger, punched with machine-like precision to drop Zannelli four times for the count of nine before Referee Johnny Martin stopped the bout at 1 minute 30 seconds of the fifth round.

A crowd of 9,230 fans, who paid $17,336 at the gate, stood on their seats during most of the battle.

Armstrong started with a rush and his experience gave him a tremendous advantage over the 25-year-old Italian, who previously hadn't been stopped in 55 fights. Zannelli, a rough house brawler, tried gamely to stick close to the champion but after the first round had only one hope, to land a wild-swinging crusher.

Armstrong was credited with four rounds on the United Press score sheet. The first round was even.

Zannelli attempted to force the fighting in the first round but Armstrong tied him up. In the second round, Armstrong floored the Italian for a count of nine but was unable to finish him. Armstrong floored Zannelli in the third period for a count of nine and continued to batter him in the fourth.

Armstrong rushed from his corner at the start of the fifth and sent Zannelli to the canvas for another count of nine. The challenger staggered to his feet and promptly was dropped again.

As the Providence boy rose mechanically to his feet, Martin stopped the fight.

Feller Stars, Indians Beat Browns, 3 to 2

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, May 24.—Bobby Feller pitched and batted the Cleveland Indians to a 3-to-2 victory over the St. Louis Browns tonight in St. Louis' first major league night game.

Besides striking out nine, the young Cleveland highthander hit a home run—the first in his major league career—with none on in the third inning, tying the score.

A St. Louis run in the first resulted from an error by Third Baseman Ken Keltner. Alan Strange walked, went to third on Walt Judnich's double and scored as Keltner fumbled Harlond Clift's hard grounder.

The Indians counted two more runs in the fourth on a double by Jeff Heath, a single by Rollie Hemsley and a double by Ray Mack.

After the first inning, Feller had little trouble until the eighth when a single by George McQuinn and a double by Rip Radcliff produced the Brownies' last tally.

Leonard Faces Macks In Opener Here Today

Chubby Dean Will Oppose Knuckler; Plight of Mound Staff Has Manager Harris Moaning; Infield Shake-Up Brings Results

A bit sadder, a bit wiser, the Nats came out of the West last night to open a two-game stand against the Athletics at Griffith Stadium today.

Dutch Leonard will go on the mound today against the A's, despite a pulled leg muscle. Pitching for the Athletics will be left-handed Chubby Dean, two-time conqueror of the Yankees earlier in the season.

Manager Bucky Harris is moaning openly at the failure of his pitching staff to protect the leads they were given in the West by the newly generated power of the Nats. But that last item has tempered Harris' thoughts.

Harris learned things about his ball club in the West, where they finished with five victories against six defeats for their road trip. He learned that he sacrificed defensive ability for batting power with his infield shakeup, but he says he is still committed to his new infield arrangement.

"I know that Cecil Travis is a better third baseman than Buddy Lewis," he said, "and that Travis is out of position at shortstop. But we have to keep Lewis in there on account of his batting. We've been getting more runs in the last two weeks than any Washington club I've had in the last six years. I'm not going to disturb that batting order. It looks too good to me."

Welaj Slugging

Helping to make the batting order look pleasant to Harris is the slugging of Johnny Welaj and Jimmy Bloodworth, who have been lending Gerald Walker a potent hand in the matter of driving in runs. Welaj has not only tightened the Nats' outfield defense since he went to center field 10 days ago but he has been swatting in a manner befitting a third-place hitter.

Bloodworth has been the surprise

4,090 Dogs Entered In Essex Kennel Exhibition Today

By the Associated Press

Madison, N. J., May 24.—Dogs from leading United States and Canadian kennels will compete tomorrow in the fourteenth annual Morris and Essex Kennel Club's show, heralded as the largest in the world.

With an announced entry list of 4,090 dogs, the club has planned a full day of judging at Mrs. M. Hartley Dodge's Giralda Farms estate.

Competition will be for more than $20,000 in prizes with a new best-in-show champion to be decided. Last year's winner, Champion My Own Brucie, a cocker spaniel, is ineligible because his owner, Herman Mellenthin, of Poughkeepsie, is one of the show's judges. George S. Thomas, of South Hamilton, Mass., will judge best in show.

Dachshunds compose the biggest class with 272 entries. Cocker spaniels are next with 243.

Buxby and Mahoney Enter Tennis Finals

New Haven, Conn., May 24 (AP).—Martin Buxby, of Miami Beach, Fla., and Jack Mahoney, of New York City, experienced little difficulty today in winning their way into the men's singles finals of the Connecticut State tennis championships here.

Andy K. Romps To 5-Length Stake Victory

By the Associated Press

Belmont Park, N. Y., May 24.—Andy K., one of the major disappointments among the 1940 crop of 3-year-olds, today reclaimed some of his lost prestige when he raced to a smashing five-length victory in the first running of the Peter Pan Handicap, a mile and a furlong fixture named after the noted stakes winner and sire. The Jack High colt, which races for the Millsdale stable of Anthony Pelleteri and M. L. Emerich, did not run out as is his wont most of the time and, appreciating the soaking the racing strip has received in recent days, stepped the distance in 1:50 1-5 under top weight of 116 pounds.

Cockerel, racing for Trainer Hugh Dufford because Owner Alvin Untermyer is in mourning for his late father, annexed the place by two lengths. Mrs. Payne Whitney's Red Dock, the favorite, was third in the field of eight 3-year-olds.

Andy K., beaten off in Bimelech's Preakness, paid $15.30 for $2 and earned a purse of $9,575. It was his second victory in five 1940 starts and his first stakes success of the season.

The winner and W. L. Brann's Pictor, which stopped after setting the early pace, were the only starters named for the rich Belmont Stakes to come.

Know Your Dogs—

No. 73 of a Series

By George Berner

SIBERIAN HUSKY

As his name indicates, he comes from Siberia and has been used there as a sled dog for centuries. They were imported into Alaska about 1910 and hold nearly every dog-sled race record there. They weigh from 50 to 65 pounds

Tech Places Second, Four Points Behind

Mile Relay, 220 and 440-Yard Victories, Aid Vikings; Eastern, 3d in Track Event

By Bill Burnett

The public high school track crown which Central won in 1937 and 1938 but relinquished last year to a surprisingly strong Eastern squad, came home to roost at the Mount Pleasant school for another year yesterday.

Behind a dazzling mile relay team and its alternate, which also finished 1, 2, 3 and 4 in the 220 and 440 yard dashes, the Vikings amassed a total of 71 points to 67 for its nearest competitor. That, strangely enough, wasn't the defending Eastern team but a delegation from McKinley Tech paced by lean Eddie Barham and just as lean Dick O'Brien. Eastern was a poor third with 32½ points, Wilson came next with 25 and Roosevelt brought up the rear with 14½.

Hayden Paces Victory

Two new records were written into the books, but neither by the Vikings. With a leap of 6 feet 1 3/16 inches, Barham crashed the 5-year-old high jump mark of Ed Miller, of Eastern, by 5/16 of an inch. And apple-cheeked Earl Trager, of Woodrow Wilson, surprised everybody by winning the mile in 4:38.4, beating the record held by Eastern's Frank Miles since 1929. Miles' time was 4:40.4.

The possibility of a third record going down to the credit of Frank Culin, of Wilson, who ran the high hurdles in 0:15.4 during trials Thursday, was squelshed yesterday. By his own admission, Culin knocked over two hurdles in the effort, thereby ruining his record chances.

His stellar effort Thursday, as a matter of fact, tired Culin more than a little. He spent yesterday afternoon trailing Tech's O'Brien in his specialty, the hurdles. Yesterday it was O'Brien who ran the high hurdles in 0:15.4—Culin's time Thursday—but his mark was also disallowed when he toppled a pair of barriers Culin was a step behind, with five fallen hurdles behind him.

New Records Set

As expected, it was "Babe" Hayden, 220 and 440 yard dashman, who paced Central's winning effort. He won his two races with little trouble and took care of the leg lap in the mile relay. His mates in the latter event were John Thomas, Bill Edgerton and Clayton Norris. Run on a slightly "off" track, the time of 3:33.3 was exceptionally good.

To Barham with 17 points went individual honors of the meet. His efforts in Tech's behalf accounted for a first in the broad jump as well as in the high jump, second in the

Chisox Beat Tigers, 2 to 1; Fifth in Row

By the Associated Press

Chicago, May 24.—John Duncan Rigney set the Detroit Tigers down with three hits today for a 2-to-1 victory, running the Chicago White Sox winnnig streak to five straight.

Tommy Bridges and John Gorsica gave the Sox only four hits, but two walks and two singles produced the victory.

Bridges yielded a single to Bob Kennedy in the fourth, then walked Luke Appling and Mike Kreevich. Larry Rosenthal followed with a single, scoring Kennedy and Kreevich. Detroit's only run off Rigney came in the same inning when Charley Gehringer doubled and scored on Hank Greenberg's double.

Neither Bridges nor Rigney allowed a hit until the fourth.

Bruce Campbell reached first on a single in the eighth and Pinch-hitter Earl Averill, batting for Bridges, drew a walk. In every inning except the fourth and eighth the Tigers went out in order, Rigney striking out six batters.

Bridges allowed only three hits for the seven innings he worked and struck out seven. Corsica gave up the fourth hit in the eighth, but the runner died on base.

Minneapolis Man Fulfills Boast Of Hole in One

By the Associated Press

Minneapolis, May 24.—Steve Sivanich is one of those golfers who call their shots—even holes in one.

"Fourteen other guys have done it this year (made a hole in one in Minneapolis)," Steve remarked to three companions, "so why can't I?"

On the 190-yard hole at Hilltop, his tee shot sailed for the pin. It looked to have stopped against the flag. The foursome sprinted to the green only to find the ball a half-inch out.

Steve kept banging away and three holes later he smacked a seven iron into the cup on the short sixth. Now Steve can't get a bet with anyone hereabouts.

Charming Boy Wins Fifth at Charles Town Over Slow Track

Jockey Kirk Rides Victor In Good Style

Lena Girl Second; Trapshot Runs Third In Field of Eight Of Sprint Race

By Walter Haight

A Staff Correspondent

Charles Town, W. Va., May 24.—Charming Boy, well handled by Jockey Woodrow Kirk, scored a half-length victory in the fifth race, outstanding event on a featureless Friday program. The rains came to this track today and Charming Boy found the slow track and the dampness to his liking. He finished a half length in advance of Mrs. M. Knieram's Lena Girl, and another head in front of Mrs. W. C. Brown's Trapshot, in a field of eight going 6½ furlongs.

Charming Boy was only lukewarm in the betting and paid a $12.80 mutuel, while going the distance in 1:23, fair time under the track conditions. Brain Child and Espino Gold, which drew the bulk of the betting, were last and next to last.

Racing in the colors of L. Beavers, Charming Boy was off in the first flight, but Jockey Kirk steadied him along while Trapshot and Lena Girl waged war for the pacesetting honors. Along the backstretch Espino Gold moved up boldly to take command briefly and then faded. The order of the leaders then reverted back to Trapshot, Lena Girl and Charming Boy.

In the stretch, Kirk clucked to Charming Boy and the gelding responded with a drvie on the outside. Lena Girl headed Trapshot inside the sixteenth pole but had nothing left to match the closing rush of Charming Boy.

The daily double pay off reached the important money stage today with a $232.40 pay-off going to those who invested two bucks in the "2 and 7" combination. The Shenandoah Stable's Baliris paved the way for the large price by winning the second race at a $38.80 mutuel, defeating among others the heavily-played Hi Blaze.

The Fillman family did well in the third event, the concluding half of the double. Owner and Trainer N. J. Fillman saddled Bubbleworth and Jockey S. Fillman, the owner's son, did the riding. The 4-year-old gelding won by a nose in a blanket finish with Groucher's Boy and Trixie Lass to pay $10.60. Chief Evergreen was a disappointing fifth in the field of eight.

Mrs. K. N. Gilpin's Din turned in a good race for the favorite players in the fourth event, winning over Congo Prince and Kin Mag. Jockey J. Hernandez performed in good saddle style aboard the 3-year-old, a $4.20 proposition.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MISS WARNING, $4.20, $2.80, $3.20; CHIEF HOLLIS, $2.80, $2.60; RUNOUT, $6.00.

MISS WARNING, first to show at start, opened good lead on turn while being hard ridden, came slightly wide in stretch and just lasted under a hard drive. CHIEF HOLLIS, closest to leader from start, ran well in stretch and was catching winner. RUNOUT was off poorly, went into contention with rush and closed well. ROUGH BUDDY chased the top ones for a quarter, but tired. WHITTLE PETE was hard hustled throughout, but could not menace. FLY BALK lacked speed at any stage.

SECOND RACE—About 4½ furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:04½. Off 3:05. Winner, Shenandoah Stable's br. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BALIRIS, $38.80, $9.20, $6.80; HI BLAZE, $2.80, $2.60; HIGHER UP, $6.20.

BALIRIS disposed of HI BLAZE in opening quarter, drew out in run through stretch to be a driving winner. HI BLAZE, outrun by the winner, held on gamely, but could make up no ground. HIGHER UP, slow to leave the gate, rushed into contention while saving ground and held on well. CRUSAND ran an even race, but could not menace top ones. GRAY GLEAM was never a serious factor. QUEER PLAY showed nothing. JUSTA CANTER and PROUD KING could not reach contention.

THIRD RACE—About 7 furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:30½. Off 3:31½. Winner, N. J. Fillman's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BUBBLEWORTH, $10.60, $5.20, $2.80; GROUCHER'S BOY, $5.60, $3.40; TRIXIE LASS, $2.60.

BUBBLEWORTH took command approaching first turn while under hustling tactics, was well in hand while setting pace, responded well when placed to a drive and just lasted to beat GROUCHER'S BOY. The latter saved ground entering stretch to reach leaders and just missed. TRIXIE LASS lost ground throughout while chasing leader and held on well in closing stages. CHIEF EVERGREEN lacked speed in early stages and rallied when placed to a drive in last quarter. LAST SCAMP was close until stretch and tired slightly in last sixteenth. BROKEN RHYTHM was through early.

Daily Double, BALIRIS and BUBBLEWORTH, Paid $232.40

FOURTH RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good from gate. Won easily; place driving. Went to post 3:36. Off 3:39. Winner, Mrs. K. N. Gilpin's ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—DIN, $4.20, $2.60, $2.40; CONGO PRINCE, $2.60, 2.60; KIN MAG, $4.20.

DIN, outrun soon after start, went to outside to reach leaders, took command leaving backstretch and won with speed in reserve. CONGO PRINCE, slow to find best stride, lost ground while making move and was running well at end. KIN MAG opened good lead on first turn and saved ground when headed. CAMOLA lost ground at first turn, saved ground to take command on backstretch, but tired in closing stages under weak handling. CALL IT lost ground at the stretch turn. GROUCHY GIRL had good speed, but was through early. EDRA trailed throughout.

WEATHER, RAINING. TRACK, SLOW.

FIFTH RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $500. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:25. Off 4:26½. Winner, L. Beavers' br. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—CHARMING BOY, $12.80, $6.60, $5.40; LENA GIRL, $15.00, $7.00; TRAPSHOT, $8.80.

CHARMING BOY, rated off the early pace, came to outside for stretch run and got up to be going away at the finish. LENA GIRL forced pace from start, took command briefly between stretch and finish calls, but could not resist winner. TRAPSHOT was hard hustled while setting pace and tired in the final sixteenth. CHANNING closed well after being outrun. CURVES closed full of run. ARMENIDAS was taken up at first turn, reached contention on stretch turn, but was bothered when straightened out in stretch. BRAINCHILD was badly handled. ESPINO GOLD had a flash of speed.

SIXTH RACE—About 7 furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:53. Off 4:54. Winner, P. Deer's b. m. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BEACON QUEEN, $17.00, $7.80, $3.60; COL. HATFIELD, $5.40, $3.00; GREEN WATER, $2.20.

BEACON QUEEN collared TIMESAVER on backstretch to take command while well in hand, opened good lead on stretch turn, but was forced to a drive to stave off bid of COL. HATFIELD. The latter went to contention after a quarter, came to outside of leader at stretch turn, but was not good enough. GREEN WATER was outrun for a half and improved her position thereafter. TIMESAVER had speed to take command going to first turn, but tired when headed. HURDY GURDY went to her knees at the break and could not untrack herself in the going. RED ROBIN was through after a half. GOLD D'OR was through early.

WEATHER, THREATING. TRACK, MUDDY.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won easily; place driving. Went to post 5:19½. Off 5:20. Winner, J. L. Cartwright's ch. m. (5), by Trojan—Honesty. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $350; second, $75; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:50½.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BEST POLICY, $7.40, $3.80, $2.80; SUGABOOT, $5.40, $3.60; CLYMENE, $4.20.

BEST POLICY went to front at break, set pace under a good grip, was never challenged and won with speed to spare. SUGABOOT, close throughout, raced on outside in opening stages while under restraint and closed well under hard urging. CLYMENE, closest to winner for three-quarters, tired in final stages. BLIND BROOK was in close quarters at clubhouse turn, went to outside for closing rally. CAFFEINE ran an even race under hard urging. CANTER BELLE could not menace. HUPPY moved up boldly in run through stretch the first time, but was bothered at clubhouse turn and never recovered.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won handily; place easily. Went to post 5:45½. Off 5:47. Winner, Mrs. A. Hoskins' ch. g. (4), by Time Maker—Supinet. Trained by F. J. Ginley. Value to winner, $300; second, $60; third, $30; fourth, $10. Time, 1:51⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—RED FOOT, $4.20, $4.60, $3.20; BACKINTIME, $5.60, $3.60; LAKE SHORE, $4.80.

RED FOOT went to front at start and was never under a drive. BACKINTIME took up chase of leader on backstretch, but could not threaten. LAKE SHORE was off slowly and improved his position steadily on the outside. LUCKY ROLL had early speed, but tired gradually after a half. SILVERY WAY caught tired horses in stretch.

Selections at Charles Town

Dear Al:

Today's feature race is The Washington Post Handicap, a battle over a mile and a sixteenth course that should provide plenty of excitement for the week-end crowd. Racing Secretary Fred Burton has distributed the weights well and would be pleased if it ended in a three-way dead heat. Every member of the field has either been a winner or a close horse at this meeting.

BROUN

Beverley Broun, chairman of the West Virginia Racing Commission, has been visiting here. He conducts a thriving legal business in Charleston and is vice president of the National Association of State Racing Commissioners. Yesterday I was patting the assistant starters on the back and someone reminded me that I wasn't always so kind toward the fellows who wrestle the horses. I can't recall if I have written this, so if you have heard it, please turn to the comics. I believe it was the second year of this track when I got plenty hot about the assistant starters trying to hold two horses at the post and being unable to do them both justice when the break came. In addition, the boys, at that time, had a habit of jerking horses' heads and I wrote that they were a bunch of former street car conductors. Now one of the fellows, I learned later, could neither read nor write. His friends on the gate read him the piece I had written. He scowled. The next day there was nothing in the column about assistant starters, but they picked up the paper, pretended to be reading, and credited me with saying the whole bunch should be fired. Of course, the illiterate fellow believed it was on the level. This went on for a week, and this fellow, a giant of a man with hands like hams, began shaking his fist at the press box. I was not in on the "rib" and it came near costing me a couple of black eyes. This assistant starter finally became so mad that one day he waited for me to come out of the press box. But I saw him first and sent for a Washington heavyweight to whom I had given a pass. I got in the middle of the scribes when I came down and the assistant starter only gave me some hard looks. The following morning I came out early and luckily this fellow had been told it was a joke before I arrived. Jockey Robert Bernhardt has reported and will swing into action today. He was married recently to Isabel Hartzel, of Laurel, Md. See you on the rail.

First race—Stray Chord had speed on the milers and should go well from the No. 1 post position. Needs only the right handling. Olivile was bothered in the stretch last out and will be dangerous with clear sailing this time. Lady Doctor and Capstick are money possibilities.

Second race—Lula Khayyam turned in a nice victory last out and promises to do a lot of running here. Ivonia probably will have the off track she likes and deserves respect in this company. Canrock has worked well and fits nicely in this field.

Third race—Royal Veil can better that last considerably and has won at this short sprint route. I'm going to string along. Prosit has plenty of push and will be close. Lead Please may want more distance, but is a threat.

Fourth race—Snobbish Lady, second on the reserve list, has a good chance of getting into action and I'm going to be there. Vaneider ran away with a somewhat similar event recently. Gay Prank has shown form and belongs in the first flight here.

Fifth race—Charming Herod failed when sent back too soon last out, but in that previous test finished a driving second. Gets the rail position and may bound to the front and stay there. Royal Business has been beaten twice here and appears to have some kind of an "out." Bowman entry for the show.

Sixth race—Justa Jimmie seems well suited by conditions in this field and is the life of the party, I do believe. Limerick is as cheap as they come, but the opposition isn't much. Lucre Lude may make a money appearance

Eighth race—America First, if properly handled, can win at this long route. I don't want to see him go on top the first part of it, however. Erada will be the favorite and the one to beat. Bright Light and Never Idol are possibilities.

Substitute races—If these events are used, I'll take Consistent, Waugh Scout and Sail By in the first, and Sun Voter, Morning Fright and Depinard in the second.

Best Bet—Artist.

Charley Malone Shows Way in Open Golf Practice Rounds

Subpar 69 Shot atManor By Amateur

Al Jamison Wins Informal Pro Match With Par 70; Two Baltimoreans Play

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

One-third of the entries in Monday's National Open qualifying rounds at Manor Club tested the course yesterday in a practice round and one of the three amateurs entered, Charley Malone, made the pros play second fiddle.

The Congressional Club simonpure, better known as right end on the Washington Redskins, used only 27 putts in 18 holes as he cracked par by a single shot with a 69. Malone played the course for the first time in the morning and was around in 77, but in the afternoon, paired with Louis Fuchs against Harry Pitt and Ralph Gibson in a friendly match, he posted a round that stamps him as a definite threat in Monday's 36-hole test.

Al Jamison, Bradley Hills pro, was the winner of an informal pro sweepstakes with a par round of 70. Jamison was playing regulation golf and was only off the fairway twice, but he was only a shot lower than Mel Shorey, who scrambled out of woods, traps and ditches for a 1 over par 71. Jamison and Al Houghton, Beaver Dam, lost a match to Shorey and Leo Walper.

Two Baltimoreans Play

The only out-of-town entries to test the course, Nathan Kaufman and Ralph Beach, amateur and pro, respectively, from the Suburban Club in Baltimore, played with Eddie Stevens, Manor assistant professional, and Beach and Stevens reported 73's.

In another foursome, Lewis Worsham was low with a 74 as the Burning Tree pro played in the morning with Malone, Chevy Chase Pro Robert T. Barnett, who scored a 75, and Stanley Collings, of Columbia. The latter was 76.

Beach is the only visiting mentor to make two trips here to test the course. He also played Monday. Johnny Bass, of Baltmiore, played 18 holes on Wednesday and other than those two the visiting pros will apparently trust to memory for Monday's qualifications.

Vice Presidents Go Over Course

Dr. Robert A. Keilty, and Harry G. Pitt, vice presidents of the Maryland State Golf Association, went over the U. S. G. A. recommendations yesterday afternoon with Manor Greens Chairman Ralph P. Gibson. The State golf body will conduct the trials.

The parent golf association is anxious for all qualifying sites to be "fair" to all contestants and Pitt, Manor golf committee chairman, promised the entries that the pins would be in the middle of the greens on Monday.

The Manor course will play the longest in its history as the extreme back tees are all in good condition and a score of 145 for the twin rounds, five over par, is expected to be good enough to win one of the five places while the bronze medal for low qualifier will probably go to a pair of 71's.

Big Ten Favors Play-Off Game For Grid Title

By the Associated Press

Evanston, Ill., May 24.—Report that the Western Conference may soon go on record as favoring a post-season football game for the Big Ten champion circulated here today as conference athletic directors and gridiron coaches discussed 1934 football schedule.

A post-season game for the Big Ten champion was suggested some years ago but was voted down as evidence of over-emphasis. There long has been much sentiment on the West Coast in favor of the Big Ten grid champion annually meeting the Pacific Coast champion in the Rose Bowl and reports said that should Big Ten officials approve of a post-season game for the Big Ten champion it might be stipulated that the team play in the Rose Bowl contest.

The Athletic directors and gridiron coaches reportedly ran into difficulty lining up games for Iowa, Purdue and Indiana—schools with stadia comparatively of small seating capacity. The schedule discussing will be resumed tomorrow.

Among those here today as the gridiron schedule was under discussion were Elmer Layden, director of Athletics at Notre Dame; "Red" Herd, of Louisiana State; Charles Bachman, Michigan State football coach; Jimmy Hagen, Pittsburgh athletic director and the Pitt football coach, Charles Bowser.

Western High Golf Tea mStill in Race

Western retained a strong chance to finish second in the Interhigh Golf League yesterday by defeating Anacostia, 7-2, at Army and Navy. George Bass, of the winners, had 77 for scoring honors.

The losers' only points resulted from forfeit of one match in the final foursome.

Bass (W.) defeated Herby, 7 and 6; Sparks (W.) defeated Lowery, 8 and 7; best ball, Western, 10 and 8. Keene (W.), defeated Wrenn, 10 and 8; Sietekough (W.) defeated Miller, 6 and 5; best ball, Western, 10 and 8. Kimball (W.) defeated Kynhan, 6 and 5; White (Anacostia) won by default; best ball, Anacostia, 4 and 3.

Flaherty Leaves For West Coast

Coach Ray Flaherty of the Washington Redskins yesterday left for the West Coast to complete arrangements for his team's pre-season training for competition in the National Professional League.

Flaherty will make several stopovers in California to talk with players before arriving at Spokane where the Redskins will establish training headquarters. He will not return here until September when the Washington team opens its league schedule.

Indiana's One-Man Team Enters Finals of 4 Events

Roy Cochran, University of Indiana's star performer, is shown as he qualified for the broad jump finals of the Big Ten outdoor track meet yesterday at Evanston, Ill. Cochran also qualified in the 100 and 220 dashes and the 220 high hurdles, all this despite the fact that he is best in the 440 dash, in which he is not competing

Manor Women Beaten By Kenwood Golfers

Losers Drop to 4½ Points Back of Leading Chevy Chase Team in Championship Running; Defending Champions Are Tied, 6 to 6

Manor's chances of winning the District Women's Golf Association first team championship hit a snag in the form of the surprising Kenwood lineup yesterday at Argyle and the early season leaders now trail the defending champion Chevy Chase team by 4½ points, with one match to play. Kenwood is now in second place but they draw a bye on Tuesday.

While Congressional was holding the strong Chevy Chase team to a 6-to-6 tie, Manor lost, 6½ to 5½, to Kenwood to drop a net half point in the standings. With only Tuesday's match to play, Chevy Chase needs only 4 points out of the 12 against Manor to clinch the title for a second straight year, or 3½ points to tie.

Woodmont Beaten

Other matches yesterday at Argyle found Washington Golf and Country Club moving into sixth place in the 9-team league with an 8½ victory over Woodmont, while Army and Navy won, 8½ to 3½, over Columbia. The Service Club team has clinched fifth place.

Mrs. Myron Davy and Mrs. Florence Godfrey starred in the Congressional-Chevy Chase tie, the latter playing the first nine in 42, while on the back nine Mrs. Davy was only one stroke over men's par when the match ended on the sixteenth hole. The victims were Mrs. Bishop Hill and Louise Claytor. Mrs. G. S. Teal and Mrs. George Stratemeyer came through with 2½ points in the second bracket against Mrs. Y. E. Booker and Mrs. Landra Platt, of Chevy Chase.

In the No. 1 match in the Kenwood-Manor encounter, Mrs. Betty Meckley and Mrs. Harvey Cooper, of the former team, divided the 3 points with Mrs. Walter Stokes and Mrs. L. G. Pray, with Mrs. Meckley scoring a 78. The match was even through the fifteenth, but Mrs. Meckley dropped a 15-foot putt on the sixteenth to send her team 1-up. The Manorites won the next hole with par threes and the eighteenth was halved between Mrs. Meckley and Mrs. Pray, both missing putts for a victory.

Chevy Chase Favored

Congressional meets Army and Navy in the final series Tuesday and needs 9 of the 12 points to tie Kenwood for third, providing Manor gets enough points against Chevy Chase to take second place if it fails to win.

The consistent Chevy Chase golfers are not in the habit of giving any opponent 9 points, however, and will be heavy favorites to retain their title.

The second-team matches were completed at Chevy Chase, with the hosts having already clinched the title. The final point standing was: Chevy Chase, 43½; Army and Navy, 34; Manor, 31; Congressional, 30½; Kenwood, 26; Washington, 13, and Columbia, 10½.

Chevy Chase, 6; Congressional, 6

Mrs. Bishop Hill and Louise Claytor (Chevy Chase) scored 0 points to 3 for Mrs. Myron Davy and Mrs. Florence Godfrey (Congressional); Mrs. Y. E. Booker and Mrs. Landra Platt (Chevy Chase) scored ½ point to 2½ points for Mrs. C. S. Teal and Mrs. G. E. Stratemeyer (Congressional); Elizabeth Houghton and Mrs. J. W Beiler (Chevy Chase) scored 3 points to 0 for Mrs. J. J. McCarthy and Mrs. H. A. Knox (Congressional); Mrs. F. D. Letts and Mrs. L. O. Cameron (Chevy Chase) scored 2½ points to ½ point for Mrs. R. Ned Butcher Named Spider Baseball Captain

Richmond, Va., May 24 (AP).—Ned Butcher, outfielder-pitcher of the University of Richmond's Southern Conference championship nine, will captain the Spider baseball team next season.

Butcher, a Richmonder, has been undefeated in two years of varsity hurling, winning six games during the season just completed, four of them shutouts. He pitched a no-hitter against Yale in 1939.

19 Michigan Trackmen in Finals Today

Wolverines Bidding For Fourth Title; One Mark Is Broken

By the Associated Press

Evanston, Ill., May 24.—Behind another display of tis long-famed "balanced power," Michigan bid for a fourth straight Big Ten outdoor track and field championship today by qualifying 19 men for tomorrow's finals of the fortieth Western Conference championships.

Indiana, which had 13 athletes elegible for the finals after the afternoon's 10 preliminary tests, was rated a chance to snap the Michigan victory string. But most observers rated the Hoosiers distinct title longshots even should the Indiana spearhead, little Roy Cochran, have a "hot" day tomorrow.

The biggest surprise of the afternoon's program—which saw only one new conference mark enter the books—was Indiana's decision to withdraw Cochran from the 440-yard dash, a decision which robbed the preliminary program of an anticipated highlight.

The little Hoosier ran the distance indoors this spring in 48.2 for an American indoor mark. In the hope Cochran might pick up more points, Billy Hayes, Indiana coach, pulled his ace from the 440 and watched him qualify for the 100 and 220 yard dashes, the 220-yard low hurdles and the broad jump.

The new Big Ten mark was contributed by Indiana's Negro star. Archie Harris, who tossed the discus 166 feet 5¾ inches to break the old mark of 160 feet 10⅝ inches set last year by Michigan's Bill Watson. The next closest toss to Harris' effort was 147 feet 8¼ inches by Bob Fitch, Minnesota.

Cochran, defending champion in the 220-yard low hurdles, was one of five titilists who qualified for the finals in their specialties. The other four were Warren Briedenbach, Michigan, 440-yard dash; Myron Piker, Northwestern, 100-yard dash; Ed Buxton, Wisconsin, half mile, and Roger Poorman, Indiana, javelin.

Petworth to Play

Petworth A. C. ball club will travel to Martinsburg, W. Va., tomorrow to meet the Blair nine in a doubleheader starting at 2 p. m. Players have been asked to meet at 1418 Monroe street at 10 a. m.

Marion Miley Bows in Upset In Southern Golf Tourney

By the Associated Press

Fort Worth, Tex., May 24.—Two robots of the fairways, Mrs. Frank Goldthwaite and Mrs. Estelle Lawson Page, took their precision games into the finals of the Women's Southern Golf Association championship today with a blustery show of pars and birdies.

Mrs. Goldthwaite, of Fort Worth, eliminated Miss Kay Pearson, of Houston, the tournament surprise, 3 and 2. Mrs. Page, the cool Chapel Hill, N. C., veteran, beat back defending Champion Marion Miley's tardy surge, 2 and 1.

Tomorrow's 36-hole title match brings together a methodical pair who have dragged near-par games through rain, cold and sunshine since qualifying day last Monday.

Mrs. Page, the woman who started playing golf in 1931 and who never has taken a golf lesson, tightened her "baseball grip" on the seventeenth hole, slammed an iron second to within 18 inches of the hole and closed out Miss Miley, her old jinx, with a great birdie.

Before that shot the gallery surged over the muddied fairways in anticipation of another "Miley upset" after the Lexington, Ky., girl had started storming Mrs. Page's three-hole lead at the thirteenth hole.

Once before Mrs. Page, in this some Southern tournament, had Miss Miley six down and eight to play and lost on the thirty-seventh hole.

Determined Miss Pearson, the girl who yesterday astounded everyone but herself by taking out National Champion Betty Jameson in the quarter-finals, started to work on Mrs. Goldthwaite as if she intended to carry her giant killing to the extreme.

She won the first hole and halved the second with perfect pars. But the consistent game that gave Mrs Goldthwaite an outgoing 38 told on Miss Pearson.

Par fives which halved the sixteenth ended the match.

Whitney Stable Dominates at Harrisburg

Upperville Entries Finish One, Two in Model, Novice Classes

By Anne Hagner

Harrisburg, Pa., May 24.—Virginia horses dominated the 104th Cavalry Horse Show here today as Mrs. Elizabeth Whitney's quartet of hunters accounted for 16 ribbons to be the biggest winners.

The Whitney-owned string, from Upperville, triumphed with Faithful Heart in the model and novice classes, with Strong Tea, from the same barn, placing second in both events.

Not to be outdone, Strong Tea turned in outstanding rounds with Manager Norman Haymaker up to reverse the situation by winning a blue over Faithful Heart in the green class and also annexing the lightweight hunters' event.

In the pairs of road hacks, Faithful Heart and The Bear, another stablemate, combined to take top honors. Third place went to Betty Couzens' Repulsion and U. S. Randle's 4-year-old, Gee Ray Bee.

Miss Couzens' chestnut also went well in the lightweight class to finish second to Strong Tea. Randle's five hunters could do no better than third in any of today's classes, where they picked up a long string of yellow ribbons.

In a trick event judged on horsemanship and designed to stir up some excitement for the exhibitors, Miss Couzens led a team of six ladies who defeated Haymaker, Randle, Roland, Ridgeway, and other civilian riders. Also on the ladies' team was Mrs. Charles B. Lyman, former Washingtonian who is returning to the District early next month with her well known Maui Girl. The 104th Cavalry team placed third.

Marlborough, Landon Shows Held Today

Prince Georges Horsemen, Juniors In Nearby Events

Horse lovers of the District get their choice of entertainment today when a pair of interesting shows take place in this vicinity. Nearest will be the Landon School junior show on the upper school grounds near Bethesda, and a slight distance farther away will be the Marlborough Hunt Club show at the Fair Grounds, Marlboro, Md. The latter display will last two days.

Fifteen classes are listed in the Landon show which starts at 10 a. m. Four pony classes will occupy the morning competition, while in the afternoon the A. S. P. C. A. good hands and horsemanship events and the student team jumping class are expected to draw most attention.

Winners of the A. S. P. C. A. event will be eligible to compete in the national show at New York next November. Schools expected to enter the student classes are McDonough, Arlington Hall, Stuyvesant, Alice Deal Junior High, Bethesda-Chevy Chase High and Western.

Classes in the two-day Marlborough event also start at 10 a. m. today, though tomorrow's activity will not get under way until 1:30.

Twenty-seven classes, with some of Washington's finest mounts and their riders in action, will be observed. This morning's interest will be centered around the seven jumping and saddle classes for ponies. Hunter and jumpers will be featured in the afternoon

Furr Leaves for Madam Bey's To Train for Mamakos Fight

Phil Will Be at Summit, N. J., for Week to Condition Himself for D. C. Welter Title Bout

Setting a precedent as far as local fighters are concerned, Phil Furr, Washington's welter battler, yesterday boarded a plane for Madame Bey's camp at Summit, N. J., to open training for his 12-round fight for the District title against Steve Mamakos Monday night, June 3, at Griffith Stadium.

Furr was ordered to Madame Bey's by his New York manager-trainer, Chris Dundee, who Friday night seconded Phil's stablemate, Kenny Overlin, to the world's middleweight championship against Ceferino Garcia in Madison Square Garden.

Dundee thinks that Furr can give Mamakos the licking of his life, and that being away from his home town with a week of training in one of the best camps in the country would be just the tonic to put Philbert on edge. Dundee trained Overlin at Madame Bey's for the title fight and made it known yesterday that Furr would work with the new champion and also the world's welterweight titleholder, Henry Armstrong.

Armstrong has a title battle coming up soon with Lew Jenkins, the new lightweight king, in New York.

Mamakos will continue to train at the National Guard Armory.

Wood Breaks Records To Pace 'Met' Open

By the Associated Press

Bloomfield, N. J., May 24.—Rebounding from a disappointing performance a week ago in the Goodall Round Robin, Craig Wood, of Mamaroneck, N. Y., today broke every record in sight to lead the field through the first round of the Metropolitan Open golf championship.

The "Blond Bomber," runner-up in the National Open last summer, slashed six strokes off the revised par for the Forest Hill Fiield Club course, where he once was pro, with a round of 33-31, 64. This not only clipped a stroke from the competitive course record, held jointly by Phil Axt, home club amateur, and Horton Smith, but it was the best round ever made in a "Met" tournament. The back tees weren't used when Maurrie O'Connor shot a 64 last year.

Hogan Two Strokes Back

Despite this remarkable round, Wood held only a two-stroke margin on his closest pursuers, Ben Hogan, the sensational Texan, who won the Goodall tourney, and Ray Billows, of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., runner-up to Bud Ward for the 1939 National Amateur title. Hogan shaved one stroke from par with an outgoing 34, then took off three more with a 32 coming in. Billows carded a 35-31, 66.

So blistering was the pace today that nine players broke the revised par of 70. Before the tournament the 467-yard third hole was reduced from par 5 to 4. There were three even 70's and nine 71's.

Wood had to get out of two bad spots on the out nine. He reached the eighth tee 2 under par, then pushed his tee shot to a mound in the middle of the bunker. He hacked the ball out and dropped a 12-footer for a par. On the ninth his drive stopped behind a tree and not more than a foot from a fence.

Plays Bold Golf

Instead of playing safe he played boldly for the green, stopping 15 feet from the hole. Coming home, with pars needed for a 65, he hit the cup with a 20-foot putt on the seventeenth, but failed to make it, then sank a 20-footer for a deuce on the eighteenth.

The leading scores:

Friends Holds School Tennis Championships

The District of Columbia area elimination tournament for the national U. S. L. T. A. scholastic championships at Merion Cricket Club July 1-6, opens this morning at Friends School with 24 entries.

This tournament is open to all scholastic players, regardles sof age, unlike the invitational tournament held recently at Friends. Winners, finalists and semifinalists will qualify for the nationals. Doubles entries will remain open until noon today.

Bobby Bensinger, winner of the invitational play and boys' national indoor champion, has been seeded first, with David Kay, of Roosevelt, second; Eli Gottlieb, Roosevelt, third, and Hal Titus, Georgetown Prep, fourth.

Kay, who was barred from the invitational tournament because he was over age, is conceded a chance to upset Bensinger, who didn't lose a set in winning his latest title.

First-round matches will be played at 10 and 11 this morning. Anthony Latona, Friends tennis coach in charge of the tournament, requests that all players not listed to play first-round matches report at the Friends courts by 11 o'clock for second-round competition.

Washington Gun Shoot To Be Split Into Classes

Competitors in the Washington Gun Club's weekly shoot over its traps in Benning today will be divided into classes, it was announced yesterday, with prizes going to winners in the 50-target event. A special 25-target handicap based on scores in the first 50 will follow. Spectators are invited.

Purdue Bows Second Time in Conference

Lafayette, Ind., May 24 (AP).—Illinois Wesleyan inflicted Purdue's second nonconference baseball defeat in 13 starts today, 9 to 5. The teams meet again tomorrow.

The winners filled the bases in the first inning and Catcher Dickey's home run cleared them.

Ken Overlin Rematched With Garcia

15-Round Bout Carded for Madison Square Garden, Sept. 12

By the United Press

New York, May 24.—Ken Overlin, new middleweight king, will make his first title defense on September 12 against Ceferino Garcia, of the Philippines, from whom he wrested the crown last night.

This return 15-round bout will open the indoor season at Madison Square Garden.

Overlin, who received only $1,280.44 for last night's upset victory at the Garden, will fight as often as possible in nontitle matches. He leaves tomorrow for his home in Washington, D. C., to rest while his bruised left eye and battered ear heal.

Playboy Ken already has one over-the-weight match scheduled—a ten-round bout with Middleweight Ben Brown at Richmond, Va., on June 27.

Garcia, who received $5,541.68 for losing the title, departs tomorrow for his Los Angeles home. He will have three or four nontitle engagements before meeting Overlin in September.

Overlin's unexpected victory upset Promoter Mike Jacobs' plans for a "big gate" match this summer at Yankee Stadium between Garcia, who was recognized as champion by New York and affiliated States, and Al Hostak, of Seattle, who is recognized as titleholder by the National Boxing Association.

The Overlin-Garcia winner in September is expected to meet Hostak next winter to settle the nine-year title dispute.

NavyTrackmen Face Quakers This Afternoon

Middie Baseball Team Meets W. Maryland; Plebes Are Busy

Special Dispatch to The Post

Annapolis, May 24.—Navy's field and track team, one of the best in many years, which has disposed of all comers so far this season, including the crack North Carolina University outfit, left here today for a clash with the Nittany Lions, of Pennsylvania State College.

The meet was originally scheduled to be held at the Naval Academy, but the transfer was made at the request of Penn State.

The spring sports season at Annapolis, now fast waning, finds only one varsity event on the local card, the baseball team meeting Western Maryland College. The Plebes will engage in three contests, meeting Mercersburg Academy, of Mercersburg, Pa., on the diamond, Hun School, Princeton, N. J., at tennis, and golf with First Part High, of Baltimore.

Aside from the track meet with Penn State, Navy teams will engage in two other contests away from base—a rifle match with the 107th Infantry, New York National Guard, at Peeksville, N. Y., and golf with Georgetown University at Washington.

Boston Wool Market

Boston, May 24 (AP) (U. S. Department of Agriculture).—Very little business was being transacted in the Boston wool market today. The price situation remained confused because of the extremely limited buying interest and the reluctance of most holders to make an effort to sell wool.

Prices on scattered transactions were very irregular, ranging from about steady to considerably lower, compared with last week. An occasional voluntary offering of good French combing length fine territory wool in original bags was available in Boston at around 75 cents, scoured basis. Quotations were inclined to ease on country-packed ⅜ and ¼-blood bright fleece wools, although few offerings had been made at prices under 33 cents, in the grease, delivered to users.

Wool Dealers Caught

New York, May 24 (AP).—Wool dealers have been caught by steadily dwindling supplies and prices, trade authorities said today. The anomalous situation, it was said, arose from the European war causing such uneasiness among buyers that prices of wool contracts for future deliveries have slipped so far that Western wool growers are withholding their clippings.

New Security Offerings Fall During Week

By the Associated Press

New York, May 24.—Public offerings of new securities fell off sharply during the week ended yesterday, totaling only $6,415,000, the smallest weekly volume in six months, Poor's Publishing Co. reported today.

Several companies were forced to postpone sale of new issues because of weakness in stock and bond prices resulting from serious Allied reverses of the past two weeks. The situation was similar to that at the start of the war when weakness in the bond market kept new offerings at a very low level for ten weeks.

Comparison of the week's financing follows:

Grain Erratic, Trading Light, Trend Higher

By the Associated Press

Chicago, May 24.—Contrasting trade, the wheat market today was a quiet, peaceful affair in which a few professional traders and commercial interests participated at prices that fluctuated nervously although closing at net gains of about a cent a bushel.

Having liquidated large holdings since the start of the German westward invasion, many traders continued a watchful, waiting policy. Trade was sluggish and for minutes at a time not a hand was raised nor a shout heard in the crowded pit.

Wheat was about a cent up in early dealings but then dipped to about ½ cent below yesterday's close only to rally again. July closed at 83⅜ and September at 83⅝@83½. Corn finished ⅜-⅝ up, July 62⅝@62½, September 61⅝@61¾, oats ⅛-¼ up, rye ⅜-½ higher and lard 17/32 higher.

Ford to Increase Output at Dallas

Detroit, May 24 (AP).—Ford Motor Co. will step up output of its Dallas, Tex., plant to 350 units daily from 300 in a plant expansion program costing around $350,000, the company announced today. The increased facilities will require an additional 250 workers. Mosher Steel Co., of Dallas, has been awarded a contract for 640 tons of structural steel for the plant addition.

Investment Bankers Plan Publicity Drive

Campaign Is Aimed At Preservation Of Free Enterprise

A national publicity campaign to "knock the shaky props from under those who advocate a new social order in which there would be no private business" in America is being formulated by the Investment Bankers Association of America.

Disclosure of the campaign plan, which will be under the general direction of Bronson Batchelor of New York, came in a letter yesterday to all members from Emmett F. Connelly, president.

"The time has come to fight aggressively for the American system of free enterprise and the part that we as investment bankers play in it," Connelly said. "What we see happening abroad and its challenge to national defense here, adds urgency to the task that the I. B. A. has set out to do.

Wants Free Flow of Funds

"The most important contribution this association can make toward preparedness is to remove, so far as it lies in our power, every obstacle, every bottle-neck, every restraining influence that stands in the way of the free flow of investment funds into industry.

"Unless private finance breaks down barriers and provides the capital necessary for the industrial side of national defense, the Government is surely going to take over the job."

"Insurance Premium"

Connelly did not divulge the amount of money the organization proposes to spend on the propaganda campaign, but in advising members of the program and calling for their financial participation, he said:

"You can look at your contribution as a small insurance premium that you are paying in an effort to insure the continuance of your business for the future. It will be your share of a mutual undertaking to help preserve not only investment banking but the entire American way of living and doing business as free men under a free enterprise system."

War Dulls Trade In U. S., Reports Dun & Bradstreet

New York, May 24 (AP).—The European war put a dull edge on domestic business this week, Dun & Bradstreet reported today.

"War news ruled business sentiment and exerted an influence on buying activity even in retail markets," the credit agency said. "Consumer purchasing of durable and higher-priced merchandise showed some decline, particularly in larger Eastern cities. Retailers, who had shown no change in already-cautious buying habits last week, were inclined this week to show even greater wariness in future ordering and to restrict orders virtually to day-to-day needs.

Foreign Markets

London, May 24 (AP).—News of the German capture of Boulogne unsettled the securities exchange today after a steady opening. The gilt-edge list moved forward sharply for a time but eased from top levels. Industrials, where changed, were mostly a few pence lower. Foreign issues held up well except for a setback in French sterling loans. Kaffirs inclined lower in absence of support and coppers shifted uncertainly.

Paris.—The bourse fluctuated erratically within narrow price limits today despite the uncertainty created by the great battle waged in northern France. Rentes came back somewhat after a heavy start and closed 75 centimes higher to 160 lower. Mediterranean issues weakened.

Chicago Livestock

Chicago, May 24 (AP).—Hog prices fell 10 to 20 cents today as products increased shipments to market. Cattle prices were steady to weak in a dull trade and lambs were around steady.

Hogs topped at 5.70, most good and choice 180 to 270-pound kinds selling from 5.60 to 5.65. Receipts in the open market here were 2,000 more than expected, totaling 10,000, while receipts in the principal corn belt markets totaled 66,200, or 19,000 more than a week ago.

A very small run of fed steers and yearlings were steady to weak compared with yesterday's decline. Nothing choice was available, bulk selling from 8.75 to 9.75.

Good and choice clipped lambs sold early at 9.40, while bidding on others ranged from 9.00 to 9.25.

Consumer Credit, International Situation to Be Address Topics

By Thomas M. Cahill.

"The International Situation," and "Consumer Credit" are subjects of speakers at the twenty-second annual convention of the District of Columbia Bankers Association, at Hot Springs, Va., June 6-9.

Dr. Elmer Louis Kayser, dean of university students and professor of history, George Washington University, will address the assembly June 6 on the first-mentioned topic. The following day, Walter B. French, deputy manager in charge of consumer credit department, American Bankers Association, will speak on the second.

Dr. Kayser is a native Washingtonian and was educated at Western Hight School, graduating from George Washington University with B. A. degree and bachelor's diploma in education in 1917; with M. A. degree in 1918, and a Ph. D. degree at Columbia University in 1932. He has served successively as assistant in history, instructor, assistant professor, associate professor and professor at George Washington University since 1914; as assistant librarian, 1917-18; recorder, 1918; secretary, 1918-29; director of the summer school of the university, 1925-29; director, university students, 1930-34 and dean since 1934.

He was in the Field Artillery Corps, Officers' Training School, at Camp Zachary Taylor, Ky., resigning December 1, 1918.

He is a member of the American History Association and American Association of University Professors' author of "Outline of Ancient History of the Near East," published in 1924; "The Grand Social Enterprise," in 1932, and "A Manual of Ancient History," in 1937. During the recent international crisis, he has been contributor to newspaper and other publications of articles on developments in Europe and during the Czecho-Slovakian crisis interpreted developments from day to day on that situation over a Nationwide hook-up. He also conducted a course in "Current Events" for Washington Chapter, American Institute of Banking, during the current year.

French from New Jersey

Mr. French is a native of New Jersey. He was educated at New York University and American Institute of Banking, and also a graduate of the Graduate School of Banking, established at Rutgers University by the American Bankers Association five years ago. His thesis, "Small Loans—an Investment for Banks," at this school, has become recognized as an authority on the subject of consumer credit.

Establishment of the consumer credit department by the American Bankers Association, as part of its recent program of expansion of services and activities, is the result of growing demand on the part of bankers for information and help in developing the newer types of lending which have been inaugurated to take the place of the old commercial type of credit.

The association was very fortunate in securing the services of Mr. French, who in January was induced to leave his position as executive vice president of the Trust Co. of New Jersey, to direct the work of servicing needs of its members in the field of consumer credit.

Underwriters Elect

At a special meeting of the board of directors of the District of Columbia Life Underwriters Association, held recently with Joseph A. Marr, presiding, Raymond A. DuFour, Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance Co.; Raymond B. Hotchkiss, Phoenix Mutual Life Insurance Co., and Paul Grove, Home Life Insurance Co., of New York, became new directors of the association for three-year terms.

At the election of new officers for the year 1940-41, John D. Marsh, general agent for Lincoln National Life Insurance Co., was elected president; Mr. DuFour, first vice president; James A. DeForce, general agent for Continental American Life Insurance Co., second vice president; Mr. Grove, treasurer, and V. M. Summers, Lincoln National Life Insurance Co., secretary. They will be inducted into office at a regular meeting June 18.

List Sags in Dull Session as Gloom Spreads Over Possible Allied Defeat; Business News Offers Little Encouragement

New York, May 24.—Share prices gave ground again today in the dullest session since May 13. Rail equipments and motors finished higher while steels, stores, foods and utilities were steady. Some sharp drops occurred in blue chip manufacturing issues and metal and mining shares were weak.

The composite price of the 100 key stocks was 0.15 point lower. Sales totaled 871,360 shares, with more than 25 per cent of the volume concentrated in 15 issues, a third of them aviations.

Foreign bonds continued to be soft and the rest of the list was ragged. Swedish funds weakened in foreign exchange dealings. Most of the commodities advanced, tin being a notable exception. Crude rubber and copper futures were on the gaining side.

Pessimistic Toward Future

Brokers estimated that any enhancement of industry's prospects derived from a comprehensive national defense program, are being offset by pessimism on the future of American trade in the event of a Nazi-Fascist victory. In addition, the consensus of industrial and business views, as expressed at sessions of the National Industrial Conference Board and American Iron and Steel Institute this week, is that far more capable men than are now in the Government could be found to direct the Nation in the present crisis.

Business news gave little encouragement to the buying side today. Stock market weakness has evidently affected retail sales to some extent, as these were spotty.

Boeing Airplane was the most active stock of the day, losing half a point in the process on turnover of 26,700 shares. Curtiss-Wright, Continental Motors, North American Aviation and Lockheed were others of the air group to show activity, but North American was the only one to gain. Steel common, Bethlehem and Republic were among the most active shares, the first showing a loss of ⅝, Bethlehem gaining half a point, while Republic was unchanged. Loft, selling at 17¼ or less than half its price a few weeks ago, was ⅝ better.

Chemical issues were down 2 points or more. Mercantiles improved, notably J. C. Penney, U. S. Rubber, Savage Arms Canada Dry, Hercules Power, United Aircraft and a number of others made headway on the up side.

Bonds Are Quiet, Uneven

Listed bonds were quiet and uneven today, weakness being apparent chiefly among foreign dollar securities. United States Treasury issues continued their slow decline, but best corporate issues were fairly steady, speculative domestic obligations varied widely, with gains and losses about equally numerous. Foreign dollar securities moved lower with few exceptions, owing to the ever more serious implications of the war. Trading on all bonds was $5,160,000.

German bonds were irregular, around former levels, but Canadian and Australian issues were weak. Italian 7s regained an early loss. Belgian, Danish and Norwegian bonds continued to attract some buying.

United States Treasury bonds showed small losses, but the declines sufficed to place most issues at lows for the year.

Banks to Close

New York, May 24 (AP).—Member banks of the New York Clearing House Association voted unanimously today to remain closed each Saturday from June 30 through Labor Day week-end, "subject to such regulations as the clearing house committee may consider necessary."

U. S. Urged to Split Up Large Farms

By the Associated Press

A Department of Agriculture economist proposed yesterday that the Government find means of breaking up large farm tracts into "family-size" units in order to absorb part of the surplus rural population.

The suggestion was made to the Senate Civil Liberties Committee by Carl C. Taylor of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics. Part of the objective, he said, might be achieved by granting special tax exemptions to family-size, owner-operated farms.

Raymond C. Smith, another bureau offiical, suggested that a "rural works program" and a "rural housing program would be of much value in putting others of the surplus farm population to work.

Capital Tops Baltimore In Store Sales

4.8 Increase Noted Over April, 1939, By Reserve Bank

Washington topped Baltimore and Richmond in increased department store sales during April, the Statistical Department of the Federal Reserve Bank at Richmond announced yesterday.

Sales in April, 1940, increased 4.8 per cent in the Capital from the comparable month in 1939, while they were up only 2.4 per cent in Baltimore and down 3 per cent in Richmond.

Baltimore led Washington slightly in the first four months, reporting an increase of 7 per cent over the same four months in 1939, as contrasted to an increase of 6.4 per cent in Washington and 4.9 per cent in Richmond.

Stocks on hand April 30, 1940, as compared with March 31, 1940, were as follows: Washington, up 1.2; Baltimore, up 1.4; Richmond, up 5.2.

Comparisons by districts follow:

Increases—New York, 2 per cent; Philadelphia, 11; Cleveland, 8; Richmond, 10; Atlanta, 12; Chicago, 11; St. Louis, 2; Dallas, 1; San Francisco, 2.

Decreases—Boston, 3 per cent, and Kansas City, 15.

Cotton Rallies 19 to 28 Points On Strong Demand

New York, May 24 (AP).—Fears that supplies of spot cotton might tighten brought in vigorous support for the July cotton futures delivery today. Demand spread to later months and final prices were up 19 to 28 points.

War news played a secondary role for a change but a little more optimism regarding the Allied chances of success still was a big buying influence.

Brewers Win, 4 to 1, Tie for Lead

Three Runs In 9th Beat O'Donnell's

Beermen Stage a Late Drive to Win and Gain Tie With Cameo for League Leadership

The two-team battle for The Washington Post Industrial Baseball League lead was all tied up again yesterday when Heurich, scoring three runs in the last inning, earned a 4-to-1 victory over O'Donnell's Grill in a six-inning game on the Ellipse.

The Brewmen, city titlists last year, are deadlocked with Cameo Furniture for the top spot, each team with five victories and an even break in their two games against each other.

It was a pitcher converted into an outfielder, O'Donnell's J. Kafka, who made Heurich's victory possible. With men on second and third, Kafka allowed Cabell's high fly to sail through his arms untouched. Both men scored ahead of Cabell on the hit that went for a home run.

In the absence of several of its regular players, O'Donnell's was forced to make costly shifts in the line-up. It was that plus Schriver's four-hit hurling, that held the Grillmen safe until the crucial sixth.

Third Baseman Hershberger, of the Heurich Brewers, is shown sliding into third base in the third inning of yesterday's abbreviated and sunless Washington Post Industrial League game with O'Donnell's. The runner later scored to give the Beermen their first tally in a 4-1 victory on the Ellipse

Md. Anglers Protest Illegal Bass Fishing

Sportsmen to Demand More Game Wardens For Potomac River

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, May 24.—Sportsmen clubs in Washington County were preparing today to carry their demand for adequate game wardens to the new Inland Game and Fish Commission, following what they described as wholesale illegal bass fishing in the Potomac River.

Members of the Potomac Fish and Game Club at Williamsport reported they had information of plugging and bait fishing for bass in the river off Williamsport, while another report told of one gigger selling 96 bass in Hagerstown last week. Giggers' lights can be seen almost every night when the streams are clear on the Potomac River and Conococheague Creek, sportsmen report.

A year ago following reports of widespread illegal fishing in the Potomac River and its tributaries, eight sportsmen clubs here petitioned State Game Warden E. Lee LeCompte for a second full-time deputy game warden as provided for in the ne wlaw passed by the last Legislature. LeCompte said there were insufficient funds to permit the appointment of another warden.

Sportsmen explain that this is the spawning season for bass and that this game fish bites freely now. The season for bass does not open until July 1.

Leonard Faces A's Here Today

performer at bat. Despite his lowly spot in seventh place, he has demonstrated an amazing habit of driving in runs and has produced 25. Gerald Walker, second among the league's run producers, has batted in only four more mates than Bloodworth. A move that would shift Bloodworth to sixth place and drop Cecil Travis to seventh is not unexpected.

Despite the Nats' unsuccessful road trip they are only three games removed from the third-place Tigers. The second-division, however, is a dog-fight. One victory or one defeat can send any club rocketing from eighth to fourth or fourth to eighth.

Only one of the Nats' defeats in the West, their last one, is traceable to poor infield play despite Harris' acknowledgment that his present combination lacks the skill of the outfit which had Jimmy Pofahl at shortstop and Travis at third base.

Nats Need Relief Pitching

Lack of a clever relief pitcher has been the Nats' chief bugaboo. Two of their last three defeats were incurred by weak relief hurlers who couldn't hold comfortable leads.

Harris is bearing with his new line-up in the hope that his pitching will improve. Ken Chase has contributed two superb games in his last two starts, and on Thursday against the Browns Walter Masterson allowed only five hits in the first eight innings before tiring. It is young Masterson who now represents the new hope of Harris.

Young Sidney Hudson has had little success on the Western trip, being charged with three defeats, but Harris is retaining a measure of faith in the rookie right-hander. "He's too true with his strikes," says Harris. "If he can learn to pitch to the corners he can win. It's up to him, but I'm giving him the chance."

WPA Softball Team Beats General Counsel

Marketing Laws Survey of the W. P. A., defeated General Counsel Office of the Social Security, 9 to 1, in a softball game yesterday at Diamond No. 10.

Jasper Nine, McCullough Clash Today

Four Games Billed This Afternoon In Legion League

With the meeting of Cooley-McCullough and Sergeant Jasper nines of the Junior American Legion Baseball League today on the west Ellipse, an interesting schedule of four games for the week-end will get under way.

The feature clash, involving teams which are deadlocked for the league lead with four victories and no defeats, will start at 3 p. m., but if the weather is unfavorable, it will be played tomorrow at the same place at 1 p. m. In addition, games tomorrow bring together Costello and Potomac Posts at 1 p. m. on the north Ellipse; Police and Fort Stevens at 3:30 on the same diamond, and Sergeant Jasper and National Cathedral at 3:30 on the west Ellipse.

Third Baseman Hesley leads the youthful sluggers from Western High who compose Cooley-McCullough's team. His average to date is .636, and other stars are Catcher Shoemaker with .563, and Shortstop Kane with .444. The team as a whole is batting a neat .361 with 47 points in 130 times at the plate.

Most of Sergeant Jasper's stars hail from Central High. They have compiled a plate record of only .273 in their four games but are capable of much more. Denikos, Carrier, and Fielding are the clutch hitters, while Hill and Wilkerson lead the pitching staff.

Winners of today's game, the virtual first-half winners in the league, have been invited by Clark Griffith, president of the Nats, to see one of the Nats' regular games.

Veteran Rosenfeld Faces Tough Foe On Hill Thursday

Left-handed Abe Rosenfeld, Washington's dean of softball pitchers, will face one of the toughest slab foes of his career next Thursday night at Griffith Stadium when his Senate Beer ten faces the world champion Covington (Ky.) Boosters.

Mound star of the boosters is "Cyclone" Warken, the right-hand pitcher who paced the team to the title in last year's championship tournament in Chicago. Warken set a record then that will probably never be broken, hurling two no-hit games in one afternoon.

Immediately after Thursday's game the Beermen, who reached the quarterfinals of the Chicago tournament as Tru-Blu, will set out for Rochester, N. Y., where the Eastman Kodak ten will be met on June 1. The Kodakmen were titleholders in 1937.

Navy Golf Squad Faces Hoyas; Tough Battle Seen

Navy's golf team tested the Capital Club course in a practice round yesterday in preparation for today's match with Georgetown's Eastern champions. Coach Bob Williams and 10 members played 18 holes.

The match will start at 12:30 p. m. It will be Georgetown's last competition until the National Intercollegiates late in June. Navy is represented by one of its strongest teams and figures to give the Hoyas a good battle with an upset victory now out of the question.

York for the tournament. They are quartered for the most part in flops, for weight-lifting is the poorest sport, per capita, of them all. The men must pay their own expenses. Twelve States and Canada are represented in the tournament. Most of the competitors are of German, Russian or Hungarian descent. Some are jobless, others do manual labor. But two of the lighter weight champions, Tony Terlazzo and John Terpak, are associate editors of a magazine named "Strength and Health." Stanko works for a weight manufacturer, a fact that somehow has a hauntingly familiar ring.

The added attraction will be the selection of "Mr. America," the bloke with the most perfect body. Hot favorites in the body beautiful combat are a New York cop named Frank Leight and Gene Lantzen, a California boy who posed for the statue "David" at the San Francisco Fair.

Academy Registers Its 13th Straight Victory; Knight Is Winner

Special Dispatch to The Post

Ammendale, Md., May 24—Briarley Military Academy nine registered its thirteenth triumph in 20 games here today when it came from behind to take a 14-3 decision from Mount Rainier High. Ten runs in the fifth inning locked things up after the Cadets had amassed a 4-1 lead.

Buster Knight gave up five hits in the seven-inning game, fanning six and allowing only two walks. Peek started for the Mounts but was taken out after the fourth with five hits and four runs charged against him. Hughes was responsible for Briarley's ten runs in the fifth.

Anacostia A. C. Meets Aztec Today at Lincoln

Oxon Hill's new Lincoln Ball Park will be the scene of the colored Anacostia A. C.'s opening game of the year tomorrow against the Aztec nine. Diamond activities will get under way at 3 p. m., but a gala program will precede the game. Dr. William J. Thompkins, District recorder of deeds, will throw out the first ball.

G. W. and W.-L. High Game Is Postponed

The second clash of George Washington and Washington-Lee High nines in two days was postponed yesterday due to threatening weather. Scheduled for the W.-L. diamond in Arlington, the game was to have settled the issue between the hot rivals for the year. Washington-Lee won the first game Thursday, 3-1, in 10 innings.

Card Trackmen Face Big Test With LaSalle

Unbeaten Catholic U. Cindermen Up Against A Tough Foe Today

Catholic University's undefeated track record will be in jeopardy at Brookland Stadium this afternoon when the Mason-Dixon Conference champions end their season against LaSalle College at 2:30 o'clock.

Boasting plenty of strength in the field, the Explorers are feared by C. U. Coach Dorsey Griffith, who will be without the services of his sophomore dash star, Jim Milks, who is on the sidelines with a pulled muscle.

Heading the visiting team will be Phil Looby, who placed third in the discus at the Penn Relays; Paul Malseed, a pole vaulter who is expected to be far superior to any C. U. rival and Tom Farley, a two miler who probably will extend Johnny Corbett, card star who consistently runs the distance in around 9:48.

Wildcat Netmen Lead in Tourney

Evanston, Ill., May 24 (AP).—Northwestern University held a two-point lead over Chicago's defending champions today at the end of two days of Big Ten tennis competition.

The Wildcats, favored to win the tournament title, now have 16 points with one day remaining in the meet. Trailing the second-place Maroons are Ohio State with 7, Michigan 6, Illinois and Minnesota 4 each and Wisconsin 3.

Seymour Greenberg, Northwestern's No. 1 player, and Charles Shostrom, Chicago ace, survived the second day's competition in the top division of singles. They meet tomorrow for the individual championship. Greenberg, a sophomore, has defeated Shostrom twice during the regular season.

Northwestern, despite Chicago's stiff contention for a fourth straight conference net crown, still is favored to win the team championship.

Georgetown Prep Golfers Win Title

Avenging a previous defeat by Bethesda, Georgetown Prep golfers defeated the county team, 5 to 4, yesterday at Columbia Country Club in a playoff for the Metropolitan Scholastic League championship.

It was the seventh victory against one defeat in league competition for the Prep.

Bolton (B.-C. C.) defeated Boylan, 2 up; B. McDonnell (Prep) defeated Mrstik, 1 up, nineteenth hole. Best ball, Prep, 1 up, nineteenth hole; Willett (B.-C. C.) defeated Brayer, 6 and 4; Stewart (Prep) defeated Sullivan, 3 and 2. Best ball, Bethesda, 1 up; E. Sullivan (Prep) defeated Shannon, 6 and 4; Boerstel (B.-C. C.) defeated Murray, 4 and 3. Best ball, Prep, 2 and 1.

Two More Qualifiers For 500-Mile Auto Race

Indianapolis, May 24 (AP).—Louis Tomei, of Van Nuys, Calif., and George Connor, of San Bernardino, Calif., today became the seventeenth and eighteenth drivers to qualify for the Indianapolis motor speedway 500-mile race on May 30.

Rain and cold weather again plagued the drivers in their efforts to prepare for the speed classic.

Sport Notables To Attend Award Night

Athletes of J. C. C. Will Be Rewarded For Achievements

A star-studded list of headliners in sports has been invited to Jewish Community Center's annual athletic department award night at 7:30 p. m. tomorrow.

Joe Judge, Nick Altrock, Andy Farkas, Turk Edward, Charley Malone, Tuffy Leemans, Mush Dubofsky, Mac Posnack, Leon Shub, Bobby Goldstein and Jocko Miller are among the local athletes invited.

All athletes of the J. C. C. who have won various types of championships will be given their awards.

Buffet supper and entertainment will follow distribution of honors. Individual awards will be given to Eddie Dennison, winner of the Section B handball tournaments; Max Nausbaum, most valuable player in the section's senior basketball league; Bill Kaiser, the man who has done the most for athletics in the J. C. C., Jack Koster, winner of Section A handball, Jack Said and Abe Simon, senior handball champions.

Teams to be honored include the J. C. C. basketball, which competed in the Roosevelt Center League; Phalanx Club, champion of Section A of the J. C. C. senior basketball league; Club 13, champion of Section C basketball; Cardoza Club, champion of Section A basketball; AZA, of Section B intermediate basketball; Spartans, champions of J. C. C. junior basketball.

Pawnees Beat Aztecs, 14-12, Before 3,800

Washington Pawnees scored their third victory in four nights of Roller Derby last night by defeating the Chicago Aztecs, 14 to 12, before 3,800 fans, largest crowd of the series, at Riverside Stadium. The Pawnees now lead their rivals, 47 to 40, on the cumulative-point basis which will decide the 27-match engagement.

A pair of points by Capt. Roy Gowin broke a 12-to-12 tie in the final period and gave Washington a hard-fought victory after the Aztecs had rallied gamely to wipe out a 9-to-4 first-half deficit.

A couple of fights in the girls' competition between Chicago Capt. Vera McClelland and Honey Davis, and Alicia Gadias, Chicago, and Shirley Sachs, provided extra thrills.

Training School Beaten, 4 to 2

Jefferson High baseball team, of Falls Church, scored three runs in the eighth to beat National Training School, 4-2, on the Falls Church diamond yesterday.

The winning pitcher, Saveur, turned in 15 strikeouts and limited the losers to 3 safeties in 9 innings. K. Earman and Coleman hit doubles for the winners and McCalliser got a two-bagger for the losers.

Ohio State Beats Northwestern, 3 to 2

Evanston, Ill., May 24 (AP).—Ohio State defeated Northwestern 3 to 2, today and knocked the Wildcat baseball team out of a chance to win undisputed possession of the Big Ten championship.

The Wildcats need a victory over Ohio State in the second game of the series and their final of the season to share the title.

CEMETERIES

Cedar Hill's Cloister Mausoleum

HERE is an architectural masterpiece, built like the Pyramids to survive the passing of Time.

It affords single crypts, lounge crypts, family sections, a non-sectarian chapel, modern Crematorium and Columbarium.

Drive out Pennsylvania Avenue, S. E., to Cemetery Gates, open until 7:00 P. M.

D. 1940, AT TWO O'CLOCK P. M., the following collateral, to wit: One second trust real estate note, dated Washington, D. C., October 23, 1929, payable on or before one year after date, for $8,000.00 secured on lot 35, square 369.

TERMS: All cash. All parties in interest please take notice.

ADAM A. WESCHLER & SON, Auctioneers.

TRUSTEES' SALE OF CEMENT BLOCK BUNGALOW, NO. 440 FIFTIETH STREET NORTHEAST.

By virtue of a deed of trust recorded in Liber No. 7140, folio 253, et seq., one of the land records of the District of Columbia, and at the request of party secured thereby, the undersigned trustees will offer for sale by public auction, in front of premises, on THURSDAY, THE SIXTH DAY OF JUNE, 1940, AT FOUR O'CLOCK P. M., the following-described property in the District of Columbia, to wit: The north 75 feet frontage on Bell street (now 50th street) by full depth thereof of that part of lot 1 in Section 4 of subdivision known as "Lincoln" as per plat thereof recorded in County Subdivision Book Governor Sheobert, page 23 of Surveyor's Office records of the District of Columbia, which was known for purposes of assessment and taxation as Lot 901 in Square 5185, but which is now known for purposes of assessment and taxation as Lot 824 in Square 5185, the parcel of land hereby conveyed being more particularly described as follows: Beginning for the same at the northeast corner of said lot one and running thence in a southerly direction along the east boundary line of said lot one, 75 feet; thence in a westerly direction and parallel with the north boundary line of said lot one, 100 feet; thence in a northerly direction and parallel with the east boundary line of said lot one, 75 feet to a point on the north boundary line of said lot one, thence in an easterly direction along the north boundary line of said lot one, 100 feet to the point of beginning.

TERMS OF SALE: One-fourth cash, balance represented by promissory note of purchaser payable in three years, with interest at six per cent per annum from day of sale, payable semiannually, secured by first deed of trust upon property sold, or all cash, at option of purchaser. A deposit of $200 required of purchaser at sale. Examination of title, conveyancing, recording, revenue stamps and notarial fees at cost of purchaser. Terms to be complied with within thirty days from day of sale, otherwise trustees reserve the right to resell property at risk and cost of defaulting purchaser, after five days' advertisement of such resale in some newspaper published in Washington, D. C., or deposit may be forfeited, or without forfeiting deposit trustees may avail themselves of any legal or equitable rights against defaulting purchaser.

Listen! with Slocum

Thursday the radio correspondents in Washington celebrated. The figurative cake had one candle on it. In honor of the first anniversary of the opening of the Radio Correspondent's Galleries of the U. S. Senate and House of Representatives, the one-year-old Radio Correspondents' Association of Washington devoted themselves to a bit of a banquet at the Mayflower Hotel.

The radio correspondents are those gents (and ladies too), 30 or more hale and strong, who "cover" the Nation's Capital for the radio networks. One year ago this spring, Congress voted them gallery facilities at the Senate and House of Representatives similar to those enjoyed for many years by the fourth estate. Equal recognition by the White House and the executive departments of the Federal Governments followed soon afterwards.

Second purpose of Thursdays conviviality, if banquets must have more than one purpose, was to install new officers. Albert L. Warner, WJSV-C. B. S. Washington commentator, took over the presidency from Fulton Lewis, Jr., M. B. S.'s radio reporter from the Nation's Capital. The elevation to the presidency of the Radio Correspondents' Association of Warner, who was president of the White House Correspondents' Association in 1935-36, comes at the time that Al's broadcasting activities have also assumed a new phase. As the daily program of "The World Today" brings to Washington and C. B. S. listeners throughout the country first-hand reports by Columbia correspondents in the capitals of Europe, the voice of Al Warner from our own capital is now heard more frequently. And, now that world-wide problems and the problems of Europe are foremost in our minds, the voice of Warner will be bringing to his Nation-wide audience news and interpretations of the news of the never-more-important Washington scene.

Orphans in Love

By Marion White

SYNOPSIS

Ellen Carlan has loved Peter Storm since both were children. While picnicking, a storm forces them to take refuge in the old Tucker House and they see a picture of old Jonathan Tucker who resembled Peter. As the result of a tenement fire, the papers write up Peter as a hero, connecting him with the Tucker house. Attorney John Abbott and his wife fear their deception years ago when they abandoned the only heir at the orphanage, will be discovered. Abbott offers Peter a job. Ellen is hurt when Peter says Millicent Abbott is the most beautiful girl he has ever seen. Mother Rosa at the orphanage helps Ellen by sending her to Rosalind, a famous fashion designer, for a job as seamstress, but she is hired as model. Peter calls for Ellen to celebrate and is astounded by her new glamour. Ellen is gloriously happy until Millicent Abbott and her friends enter the Rainbow Room and monopolize Peter, who doesn't seem to mind.

Chapter 19

"WE'LL ALL drive up to Cambridge next week. I'll have father get the tickets . . ."

Peter grinned. "You're forgetting that I have a job on Saturday, Millicent. I can't go——"

"Don't bother about that! I'll arrange with father . . ."

Her words possessed them, made the job he held so proudly appear trivial and inconsequential.

Ellen Flushes

Ellen flushed for him, feeeling the hurt within herself. But Peter had not noticed. He was looking down into Millicent Abbott's eyes, lost in a dpeth of loveliuess beyond his comprehension.

Her words were merely a musical accompaniment, tinkling and melodious, but without importance.

Raises Eyebrow

Lita Savage raised a smart eyebrow in tolerant amusement, smiled at Ellen meaningly. "Don't take Millicent too seriously," she cautioned lightly. 'She's the hero-worshiping type . . ."

Ellen forced a dry, hard little laugh. Aren't we all?"

Mr. Harrison, whose expression heretofore had hinted at nothing beyond utter and absolute boredom, was beginning to soften. His eyes, as they studied Ellen, warmed with a slow admiration. He smiled, reassuringly.

"Matter of fact, Miss Carlan," he offered, "she treated me the same way two years ago, after I made one spectacular touchdown."

Lita laughed. "Haven't you been able to forget that yet, Duane?"

"How can I. It was the only important thing I ever did . . .

So the light chatter went on among the four of them, while off to the side Millicent and Peter monopolized each other, their voices hushed to a low, whispered intimacy.

And Ellen dared not glance over at them, because she knew that Peter's eyes were lightened with a tenderness that they had never held for her, and she could not bear to witness it.

She sipped, occasionally, at the cocktail which had promised so much delight: it was only a bitter taste upon her lips, and with each drop she swallowed, her heart became more heavy.

Ellen stood on the sidewalk beside Peter and waved good night to the others. Her lips were parted in the same fixed smile she had worn all through this long, horrible evening, and her cheeks ached from the muscular strain imposed upon them.

"Goodnight, Millicent . . . goodnight, goodnight . . ."

"Goodnight, Peter! It's been a lovely party . . . Don't forget tomorrow!"

Millicent and Peter. It had been their night, their celebration of victory. Lita Savage and the young men had been bright accessories.

Their carefree chatter had kept up the spirit of the party; their gay friendship had afforded the approving background for Millicent and Peter. Only Ellen had not fitted in. She had been the piece of excess baggage, the undesirable alien.

And now——

"What a wonderful night it's been!"

Bright Eyes

Peter's eyes were bright and eager, his whole being thrilled with the hope of tomorrow. He could say, what a wonderful night!

She bit her lips until they hurt, relieving the ache in her jawbone. She blinked her eyes in the cold night air. "Wonderful!" she echoed, and no one would have guessed, from her voice, that the word was spoken in bitterness.

For that fact alone, she was grateful. No one had guessed the misery this evening had cost her. Not Lita Savage, with all her shrewd, analytical curiosity. Not Harvey Thorne, for he had lost his guessing ability after the third cocktail.

Not Duane Harrison, who had danced every other number with her and protested his eternal adoration of red hair. Most of all, not Millicent nor Peter, for they had been too preoccupied with themselves . . .

Looks for Car

You won't find it, Ellen thought. Like Cinderella's coach, it's turned back into a pumpkin. The spell is broken.

Before jumping in beside her, he gave a light-hearted irresponsible order to the chauffeur. "Back to One Hundred and Fifteenth street. But take it slow and drive through the park."

Drive through the park! What for? Oh, Peter, what for?

Presently he told her. "I hate to have this night end, Ellen. We've entered a new world, you and I. Do you realize that? We have the world at our feet . . ."

We? How can you be so blind, Peter? You have your world: mine has just tumbled about me. The crash still echoes in my ears.

Sit Back

Aloud she said: "Let's just sit back a moment and hold it, then. Let's close our eyes and relive each moment . . ." Foolish words, but she needed some excuse for not talking.

She couldn't enter into his mood: it excluded her, left her forsaken on the doorstep of his happiness. She couldn't trust herself to keep up the pretense of enjoyment any longer.

It had been difficult enough there, surrounded by laughter and gayety. But here, alone with him . . .

She leaned back, tried to take hold of herself. Instead, she took stock. She took inventory to details which had ruined this night, of trival words, intercepted glances, tender gestures . . .

She recalled the brave self-assurance which had fortified her earlier in the evening. Hold your head so . . . look down with just a touch of arrogance . . . How ridiculous to think one can conquer the world with such a plan! It takes no reality into consideration, leaves no defense against heartbreak, against the insurmountable truth that this other person is all that I am not.

She had wanted glamour. What a fool she had been to think one might acquire it, in one swift application, like a coat of shellac.

Her effort had amounted to just that: she covered the surface with a clear, brittle polish, so transparent that the substance beneath showed up more boldly for the gloss which accentuated it. She hadn't deceived a soul.

They drove north on Fifth avenue, up toward the entrance to Central park. Traffic had thinned down to a bare trickle of late joy-seekers, shop-windows were dark and uncommunicative.

A street light gleamed for an instant on some responsive substance, reflected its shimmering surface. Ellen's lip curled upward. Cloth of gold she thought. Cloth of gold.

She drew in a long, sustaining breath, held it high in a false suggestion of satisfaction, and remembered the moment when her own bright raiment had been stripped from her by one careless laugh, leaving her shorn and unworthy before them.
